13 PERSONS KILLED IN AIRPLANE ACCIDENTS

Six, Including Woman and Child, Burned to Death Near Thorold, Ont., on Pleasure Trip.

FOUR DIE IN AIR COLLISION IN CHICAGO

Two Fatally Hurt at Berkeley, Cal.—St. Paul Flyer Makes Unsuccessful Parachute Jump.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Six persons, one woman, one child and four men were burned to death shortly after 6 o'clock tonight after a monoplane belonging to Skyway, Ltd., of Toronto, crashed in a field between Merriton and Thorold, Ont.

The plane caught fire after the crash.

THE DEAD:

Frank M. Bradfield, Toronto, Ont.

James McDonald, St. Catharines, Ont.

John Bond, St. Catharines.

Bond's 9-year-old son, Allan.

Mrs. Walter Bennett, Hamilton, Ont.

Louis Bennett, St. Catharines Heights.

The bodies were removed to St. Catharines, Ont.

The plane had taken off an hour before the accident from a new airport in St. Catharines, where a two-day celebration was in progress. A special rate was offered by Bradfield to passengers who wished to go up for a short flight, and five in the crowd accepted.

Bradfield, an experienced flyer, was a war pilot and an air engineer, and had to his credit more than 2500 hours in air.

Four Killed in Air Collision at Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Two airplanes collided at an altitude of 900 feet here tonight, killing four persons.

The dead included both pilots and a passenger in each plane. They were dead before rescuers reached the wreckage.

THE DEAD:

Pilot Walter Meyers, licensed flyer.

Mrs. Benjamin Bird, his passenger and sister of the owner of his plane.

Pilot Charles Krone, an unlicensed pilot.

William Johnson, Deerfield, Ill., his passenger.

As the planes neared each other, Meyers, apparently sensing the danger endeavored to maneuver away from the other plane. He tried to side-slip past Krone's ship but was unsuccessful.

Krone, who was seen by witnesses to be working frantically to prevent the collision, almost had his ship clear, but the wing dipped slightly just when it appeared the pilots would be successful in their efforts to prevent an accident.

The tip of the lower wing of Krone's plane brusned the top wing of Meyer's ship. Locked wing to wing, the two ships began to turn over slowly like a beautifully executed "falling leaf" of the stunt flyers. They straightened out and for the slightest instant leveled off, then dropped like a plummet.

Krone's machin was a biplane powered with a wartime motor. Meyers was piloting a late model owned by Albert E. Lour, a Chicago business man.

Accounts of the accident differed, but some witnesses said that Krone's plane was laboring to attain altitude and was handicapped by a pronounced wiggle in its fuselage. For several months, attaches at an airport near the scene said, Krone's plane had been stored in a shed on a nearby farm. Today Krone won over it and made adjustments which permitted him to get it off the ground.

Meyers was returning from North Brook to his home port at Dempster road when the accident occurred.

LEAGUE APPROVES ROOT WORLD COURT PROTOCOL

Renews Invitation to U. S. to Send Representative to Hague—Defeats Effort to Alter Qualifications of Judges.

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON,

Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (The New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—The final chapter of America's second effort to get into The Hague court, so far as the League of Nations is concerned, was written late this afternoon when the Assembly of the League unanimously approved the Root protocol and opened the document for signatures. Within half an hour 18 delegations had signed.

Action was taken without delay so far as the Root protocol was concerned, but the protocol for the revision of the court's statutes precipitated a bitter last minute struggle. Following a week of discussion with the jurists' conference and the first assembly commission over the election methods and qualifications for candidates for judgeships, the Norwegians carried the fight to the Assembly by introducing an amendment to the jurists' draft.

In effect, the amendment would have struck from the original text the statement that candidates nominated by national groups for The Hague bench "should possess practical experience." The opposition contended that practical experience meant that Judges should be men who had negotiated or drafted treaties, conventions, etc., the merits of which they might later be called upon to decide.

Obviously this opposition was aimed against the placing upon the bench such men as Sir Cecil Hurst and Henri Fromageot, legal advisers for the British and French foreign offices, respectively. Both are candidates for the bench and undoubtedly will be elected before the Assembly adjourns.

The Norwegian delegation was supported by the delegates from China, Bulgaria, Ireland, Hungary, Sweden, Switzerland, Denmark, Chile and Poland.

The amendment was defeated by a vote of 32 to 15.

Patrick McGilligan, Foreign Minister for the Irish Free State, is the only signatory recently to announce the acceptance of the compulsory arbitration clause of the Permanent Court of International Justice.

Ireland also dealt one of the first blows to the Briand suggestion of a European confederation of states when it announced through its representative, Prof. John O'Sullivan, that it would not participate in a two-year tariff truce proposed by the French and British delegations to the League Assembly.

"Asking us to relinquish tariffs is equivalent to asking us to commit industrial suicide," said O'Sullivan.

W. D. Euler of the Canadian delegation refused to commit his Government to the French and British proposals, and gave as one of his reasons the impending tariff developments in other countries, and the possibility that Canada might have to seek elsewhere for markets for Canadian products.

LAMAR, COLO., BANK HOLDUP SLAYERS MOVED SECRETLY

Two Taken to Denver and One to Colorado Springs When Lynching is Feared.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 14.—Manacled and chained to officers, Howard Royston, George J. Abshier and Ralph Fleagle, confessed members of the Fleagle gang that held up the First National Bank of Lamar, Col., were spirited out of Lamar last night to avoid the danger of lynching, it was learned today.

Fleagle and Royston were brought to Denver and placed in the Federal tier of the Denver county jail here. Abshier was placed in jail at Colorado Springs.

Four men were killed in the Lamar robbery escape, one of them a physician who treated the wounds of one member of the gang.

10 PER CENT INCREASE IN AUTO FATALITIES IN YEAR

Death Rate Mounts From 22.1 to 24.3 Persons Per 100,000 Population.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Statistics made public today by the Safety Committee of the American Motorists' Association showed that there were 10 per cent more automobile fatalities last year than the year before.

The death rate by automobile for the year ending Aug. 10, 1929, was given at 24.3 persons per 100,000 population. That for the preceding year was 22.1 for each 100,000.

CHICAGO EXCHANGES CLASH OVER SECURITIES

Board of Trade in Open Break With Stock Exchange on Control of Trading.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—The Chicago Board of Trade committed the final overt act preliminary to the opening of its fight Monday with the Chicago Stock Exchange for the securities trading of the Chicago region.

The last gesture was the publication of the list of stocks that will be written up on the new board when trading begins at 10 a. m. Monday on the Board of Trade Securities market. The list, comprising 20 issues of 14 corporations, included the stocks of five companies already on the Chicago Stock Exchange which has a total listing of nearly 250 companies. This confirmed the earlier announcement that the board would list any issue regardless of whether the stock already was traded on some other market.

Beyond the keen public interest in the rivalry of the old and the new, Chicago's two great trading marts, for the securities trade here, was the interest in the plight of 73 joint members of the two exchanges.

Until now it has been the rule of the Stock Exchange that its members might belong to no other security market in Chicago. The rule was altered this week by the board of governors to permit its members to retain their seats on the Board of Trade, but with the proviso that no member might buy or sell securities on the new board if it listed stocks already traded on the Stock Exchange.

That was the final word from the Stock Exchange, and, uttering it, R. Arthur Wood, its president, departed for a month's vacation on his farm in Washington. This brought a reply from the Board of Trade president, S. P. Arnot:

"We do not intend to allow any organization to tell our members what they may or may not do," he said. "Should any other exchange adopt a rule limiting activities of our members, officers of the board will deem it their duty to recommend a rule denying the right of its members to belong to such an organization."

The 73 joint members faced a prospect of choosing which board they shall trade upon and ultimately, perhaps, relinquish one of their memberships.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The body of Mrs. Virginia McPherson, 21 years old, was found in the bathroom of her apartment late today by her estranged husband, Robert A. McPherson Jr., who is held for questioning. She had been dead about two days, police say.

Dr. Joseph D. Rogers, Deputy Coroner, found a pajama string tied tightly about the young woman's throat. Her death was caused by strangulation, Rogers said.

EXPOSE IS LIKELY TO MAKE U. S. DO OWN SHIPBUILDING

Airing of Propaganda of Private Companies Sure to Bring Renewed Demand in Congress.

NAVY CONSTRUCTION GOVERNMENT'S JOB

And Law Says So but Contractors Have Been Getting More and More of the Work.

By CHARLES G. ROSS
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. — Whatever else may result from the Senate investigation of William B. Shearer's secret employment by American shipbuilding interests, it is certain to bring about an increased demand in Congress for the building of naval vessels exclusively in Government yards.

As already told in the Post-Dispatch, all three of the shipbuilding concerns involved in the Shearer disclosures have received building contracts from the Government. The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation built the airplane carrier Lexington, and the American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation built its sister ship, the Saratoga. Both of these corporations, as well as the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. were awarded contracts for cruisers authorized in the 1924 program.

In the early days of the country, naval construction was regarded as a Government function. Recent years, however, have seen a tendency on the part of the Navy Department to turn to private contractors for a large amount of construction. It was this fact that led Congress, in the act of Dec. 18, 1924 to provide that naval construction should take place in Government yards when, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Navy, this would not involve an appreciable increase in cost.

This provision did not prevent the department, under the 1924 act, from alloting five of the eight authorized ships to private contractors—the same three contractors who are now under charges of having sought, through Shearer's propaganda, to break down the Geneva conference of 1927.

The fight made in 1928 by Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger (Rep.), Massachusetts, for construction of naval vessels in the Government's own yards is being recalled. In the debate on the 15-cruiser bill, then pending in the House, Dallinger declared:

"It stands to reason that where a private corporation organized for profit bids on a ship of this kind, it has to get interest on the immense amount of money invested in its plant and overhead.

"In the case of the Government navy yards, that is all borne in the regular appropriation bills, and if the true facts should be obtained from the Navy Department, they would show that every one of these cruisers can be built in these navy yards and arsenals, where the people have hundreds of millions of dollars invested, for $3,000,000 less per vessel. But the facts are suppressed, because it is in the interest apparently of certain people to give these contracts to private corporations, so that they can make big profits from them."

If Dallinger was correct in his estimate, $15,000,000 would have been saved to the people if the five cruisers awarded to private yards under the 1924 act had been given to the navy yards.

Influenced by the sentiment which Dallinger helped to arouse, the House adopted an amendment providing for the building of eight of the 15 new cruisers by the Government. This amendment, known by Dallinger's name, survived the Senate debate and became a part of the 15-cruiser act.

SCHWAB CALLED IN SHEARER INQUIRY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—American shipbuilders were notified today to appear next Friday before a Senate investigating committee to explain the activities of their paid agent at the unsuccessful Geneva naval limitation conference of 1927.

The decision to call the shipbuilders first was taken as indicating a determination by the committee to center the inquiry on them rather than on the individual, William B. Shearer, big navy propagandist, who alleges in a suit

R. SHAD BENNETT'S BROTHER NAMED AS THIRD IN PLOT

Ransom Bennett Arrested as Member of Alleged Conspiracy to Kill Illinois Bankrupt.

ANOTHER LAWYER ALSO INDICTED

Private Detective Alleges He Was Hired to Kill Olin King to Collect Insurance.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Sept. 14. —With the arrest of Ransom Bennett, brother of R. Shad Bennett, St. Louis attorney, in Benton, Ill., yesterday, the identity of the third man under indictment on charges of attempted murder and conspiracy to murder, became known. Shad Bennett and Archer C. Britt, law office associates, are under bond in the same case.

Ransom Bennett was brought here late yesterday by Sheriff Pritchard of Franklin County. His arrest, like that of his brother and Britt, is thought to have resulted from the testimony of Charles Lowe, St. Louis private detective, before the Crand Jury here, that he was hired by Shad Bennett to kill Olin King, a bankrupt meat dealer of Carbondale, Ill., in an insurance plot.

According to Lowe's story, Ransom Bennett was sent to Carbondale to trace King, who had moved from his former home in West Frankfort. Shad Bennett had lent King $20,000, with life insurance policies for $12,000 as security, and following King's bankruptcy there had been ill feeling between the meat dealer and the lawyer.

Britt, who it is charged introduced Lowe to Bennett, was arrested at his office 810 Wainwright building, Thursday night. He lives at 5084 Cabanne avenue. He declined to comment on the charge and said he would resist extradition to Illinois. He was released a short time later on a $5000 bond arranged by Shad Bennett, and returnable in Judge Bader's Court of Criminal Correction Tuesday.

Shad Bennett, who lives at 6200 McPherson avenue, furnished bond for himself when his indictment became public Wednesday. Previously he had been under bond on an information sworn out by King. He denied the charge.

Lowe's story to police was as follows: Attorney Bennett, desirous of collecting King's life insurance, hired him to kill King and gave him detailed instructions on how to reach King's new home in Carbondale. Lowe confided in the authorities and was instructed to pretend to carry out the scheme. Accordingly, King was reported to have disappeared, with evidence of foul play, and Lowe reported back to Bennett that he had killed King, surrendering King's personal papers as proof. Bennett paid him $200 "on account" and promised him $300 more when the death was positively established. Efforts were then made to lure Bennett into Illinois and arrest him, but he departed on a trip to Florida. Learning he was wanted at Murphysboro on a conspiracy to murder charge, he returned to St. Louis and gave bond, denying there was any truth in the informer's story.

GIRL KILLED WHEN SAFETY PARACHUTE FAILS TO OPEN

Feet Catch in Lines as She Jumps From Plane of Elinor Smith, Endurance Champion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 14.—Miss Helen Belle Smith, 18 years old, of Thomas, Ok., making her first parachute leap, was killed late today when she fell 2000 feet from the plane of Elinor Smith, holder of the women's solo endurance record, at the Braley Flying School field here.

Officials at the field, where exhibition parachute jumps were being given by the traveling safety crew of the Irving Air-Chute Co., said the girl, a stranger, asked to make the leap.

Field attendants said Miss Williams' feet apparently caught in the parachute's shroud lines, preventing it from opening. The parachute trailed unopened behind her.

In the plane with Miss Smith was Miss Jean Herrick of Wichita, who was to jump after Miss Williams. She was not allowed to make the attempt.

Apparently afraid she would lose her nerve, the girl jumped as soon as the door was opened without listening to final instructions, it was said.

MITCHELL SAID TO HAVE DISAPPROVED SINCLAIR PARDON

Attorney-General Reported to Have Found No Evidence of Ill Health.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. — The Washington Star will say tomorrow that the petiton of Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, and his assistant, H. Mason Day, for pardons, have been disapproved by Attorney-General Mitchell and they must finish their sentences in the District jail.

Sinclair was not incapaciated from his duty as jail pharmacist by reason of ill health, the Star will say. In addition to this plea, Sinclair's petition asserted that the affairs of stockholders of his companies were likely to suffer if he was forced longer to remain from active direction.

The story adds: "While United States District Attorney Leo S. Rover and District Supreme Court Justices Gordon and Siddons, to whom the petition was referred by the Department of Justice, have declined to comment on their recommendations, it is understood that two of them were favorably inclined toward the pardon.

SHOES FROM OLD AUTO TIRES

Albania Imports Worn-out Rubber for Footgear.

By the Associated Press.

TIRANA, Albania, Sept. 14.—Making new shoes from old automobile tires is a regular industry in Albania. The country imports large quantities of the worn tires from other European countries and cobblers cut them into required lengths, fashion a toe and a tongue and lace a strip of leather around the top to bind the whole together.

The finished article has the general shape of the wooden shoes seen in Northern Europe. Demand for this type of footwear is great. The shoes, of course, cost less than those made of leather and they wear longer than sandals.

Reason for Cuban Sobriety.

HAVANA, Sept. 14.—Sobriety among Cubans, in the face of cheap and plentiful alcoholic drinks, surprises visitors here but is explained by the Cuban sweet tooth. Demi-tasse coffee at 5c is taken three spoonfuls of sugar and other drinks are in proportion. The large consumption of sweets is said to supply the system with the required alcohol.

WAGGONER DECIDES TO FIGHT EXTRADITION

Telluride Banker's Attorney Says He Will Demand Hearing at Cheyenne.

By the Associated Press.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 14.—C. D. Waggoner, of Telluride, Colo., bank president whose manipulations obtained him half a million dollars credit from six New York banks, waived a preliminary hearing at Newcastle, Wyo., late today, and was remanded to the County Jail at Cheyenne.

Waggoner retained attorneys to represent him in an effort to resist removal to New York, but made no attempt to raise the $100,000 which the Government will demand as bail.

Arrested at Cambria, Wyo., and removed to the jail at Newcastle, Waggoner had indicated to officials earlier in the week that he would not fight removal to New York. Late today, however, A. D. Walton, United States Attorney here, announced that he had been informed by E. C. Raymond, attorney for Waggoner, that the banker would demand a hearing at Cheyenne on the removal order.

Immediately after the formality of arraignment at Newcastle today Waggoner was taken back to the County Jail, where he packed his personal effects preparatory to departure for Cheyenne early tonight. He is due to reach Cheyenne at 9:15 a. m. Sunday.

Under orders of Hugh L. Patton, United States Marshal, in Cheyenne, Waggoner will be taken to Cheyenne, handcuffed.

Mrs. Waggoner left Newcastle just before the arraignment of her husband. She had a long conference with Raymond, former Judge of the Seventh Judicial District of Wyoming, who announced he had been retained by Waggoner along with S. D. Crump of Denver.

SLAYERS MEANT TO BAR COMMUNISTS FROM A MEETING

Turned Back Party of 20 and Began to Shoot When Visitors' Auto Collided With Another.

VICTIM WAS MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN

Publicity Agent for Union and His Chauffeur Arrested and Held Without Bail.

By the Associated Press.

GASTONIA, N. C., Sept. 14.—A mob of anti-Communists late today fired on a truck in which 20 mill workers were riding and instantly killed Mrs. Ella May Wiggins of Bessemer City. The mob had been watching the highway from Bessemer City to Gastonia with the object of keeping mill workers from attending an advertised meeting of communists and members of the National Textile Workers' Union.

Gathering near the Loray mill of the Manville Jenckes Co. in Gastonia, the crowd had turned the truck back toward Bessemer City. Several automobiles filled with men followed the truck. When the truck had reached a point near a bridge over the Southern Railway an automobile turned suddenly into the road so close that the truck driver could not avoid hitting it.

Woman Shot to Death.

Men riding in the automobile with which the truck collided opened fire on the mill workers. The 20 occupants of the truck fled in every direction to escape the fusillade. When the smoke cleared away, Mrs. Wiggins, mother of four little children, lay dead in the roadway.

Solicitor Carpenter and Coroner J. F. Wallace of Gaston County went to Bessemer City to investigate the death of Mrs. Wiggins. An autopsy was ordered and the inquest will be held at the courthouse at Gastonia tomorrow morning.

The physicians examining the body told newspaper men tonight that a single pistol bullet entered the woman's chest, causing almost instant death.

George B. Lingerfelt, driver of the truck in which the strikers were riding, was ordered held for investigation. Solicitor Carpenter said he wanted to question F. P. Morrow in connection with the shooting. The car which collided with the truck and in which the persons said to have fired 15 or 20 shots at the fleeing mill workers were riding, was said to be registered in the name of Morrow. The tag had been removed from the car after the wreck.

Labor Publicity Man Arrested.

While this was going on 25 Deputy Sheriffs armed with shotguns and pistols continued to patrol the vicinity of the Hanover cotton mill near which the meeting was scheduled to be held. Several hours after the scheduled hour for the appearance of speakers who were to address the meeting, non had arrived, and a crowd of several hundred persons who had gathered dispersed.

Before the crowd dispersed, however, Linton M. Oak of New York, publicity director for the International Labor Defense, with offices in Charlotte, was arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Police said they found a pistol in his pocket. Arrested with Oak was C. M. Greer, who was acting as chauffeur for the publicity man. Greer was charged with reckless driving.

The two men received a hearing before a Justice of the Peace, but bail was denied pending a conference with Solicitor John G. Carpenter.

John T. Huston, photographer for the Charlotte Observer and the Associated Press, reported that he had been detained for an hour by guards at the Pinckney mill

INTEREST CENTERS ON ATTITUDE OF PARIS AND ROME ON NAVAL PARLEY

Whether They Are Now More Ready Than When They Refused Coolidge's Bid in 1927 Is Not Clear.

ITALY LIKELY TO SEEK PARITY WITH FRANCE

Proposed December Conference Likely to Be Arranged by Notes to Five Powers Concerned.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Despite the approaching visit of Prime Minister MacDonald to Washington, interest concerning naval reductions had shifted to an extent today from London and Washington to Paris and Rome.

Announcement by the State Department that the way had been cleared by tentative Anglo-American cruiser accord for calling a new five-power naval reduction conference caused this shift. The question involved was whether France and Italy were any more ready today to enter such a conference than they were in 1927, when they declined President Coolidge's invitation politely but firmly.

That was Coolidge's first disappointment in his effort to round out the Harding-Hughes naval agreements of 1921-22. Complete failure of the three power conference with Great Britain, Japan and the United States only participating, ended Coolidge's hopes and laid the foundation for the 15 cruiser bill he later approved.

All Advised of Plans for Accord.

It was intimated in Washington that Paris, Rome and Tokio had been kept advised of the Washington-London naval accord conversations. Whether that meant that Paris and Rome had now indicated willingness to join a five-power attempt, in which they had declined to participate two years ago was not clear.

There was little doubt that Japan was quite as ready to enter into any naval reduction move as she was in 1927. What auxiliary ship ratio she might ask was another question.

But for France and Italy such a conference would bring up the whole question of the Mediterranean. Italy claimed and obtained parity with France in capital ships and plane carriers at the Washington conference. Neither country had then or has since disclosed any intention of building heavily in these types. Both accepted a ratio figure of less than two as compared to the British-American-Japanese 5-5-3 without very serious objection. The whole battleship question seemed to be then largely an academic matter to Paris and Rome.

Possible Cause of Friction.

Such intimations as have come unofficially from Paris indicate French desire for a far higher ratio in submarines and cruisers, while Rome is expected to demand parity with France, which France might be unwilling to concede.

Both are building cruisers and submarines. It was generally believed in 1927 that their refusal to accept the Coolidge invitation to a five-power conference was due to unwillingness to bring this dispute between them into the open.

Paris and London worked up a naval accord a year or so ago which proved wholly unacceptable to Washington. It was sunk without a trace by America's blunt rejection of it.

In that agreement, France reserved the right to build as many submarines of 600 tons or less as she desired, while British interests were to be safeguarded by unlimited small cruiser construction. There has been no suggestion that the Anglo-American accord would show any similar latitude.

Notes Likely to Be Exchanged

An exchange of notes by the five naval Powers interested is considered to be a more likely means of arranging the naval conference, tentatively scheduled for December, than the conversations between President Hoover and MacDonald. Secretary Stimson said today that the details of a five Power naval conference to consider all categories of fighting vessels, probably would not be discussed by the President and the Premier in Washington.

The decision of the place of the conference and the time of its meeting, Stimson said, probably would be a matter for diplomatic exchanges between the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, all of which it is anticipated will participate in the conference.

The negotiations which have been going on between Ambassador Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald in London and which led to an agreement on the basic factor that caused the failure of the tri-partite conference of 1927, have been the subject of discussions in Washington by Secretary Stimson and the Japanese, French and Italian Ambassadors.

Officials of the State Department said it was assumed the diplomats in Washington had informed their governments of progress as it was made, toward an agreement between the American and British statesmen. Similar discussions were carried on between Ambassador Dawes and the representatives of these countries in London.

The manner of notifying the other three Powers of the desire for a naval conference has not yet been determined upon nor has it been decided in what form they will be notified of the points of agreement so far reached between the United States and Great Britain. Both MacDonald and the President are desirous of expediting the arrangements for a naval conference.

The prompt response of Admiral Takarabe, Japanese Minister of the Navy, that Japan would do her utmost to be ready at the suggested time was well received in official circles here, and a favorable indication from France and Italy to a similar effect was hoped for.

France Friendly but Cautious in Attitude Toward Conference.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 14.—France officially, and unofficially through the newspapers, seems to be holding her fire on the proposed five-Power naval conference mentioned for Washington in December as a consequence of successful continuation of Anglo-American naval disarmament conversations.

France wishes to know everything possible about the scope of the conference before discussing it. The Government withholds comment as a matter of course because it has not yet received an invitation.

The repeated moves for world peace by France and Premier Briand's recent launching at Geneva of his European confederation idea, however, cause most observers to take for granted that this nation will do her utmost for success of the conference within the limits of what she regards as needful for her protection.

The French Government displayed much interest in the progress of the naval conversations between Premier MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes, but experience has made French statesmen cautious.

Newspapers show that they have not forgotten their disagreeable reaction when the defunct secret naval understanding with England was made public last year. Difficulties which observers foresee in disarmament discussions at Geneva add to the French wariness.

The afternoon newspaper Temps, usually regarded as a semi-official organ, says: "Reduction in military, naval and air forces must be the basis of an absolute assurance of peace. So far as we are concerned we will not cease to repeat that the greatest vigilance must be exercised in this respect, and that France cannot in any case support a policy of systematic disarmament which is not compensated by lasting peace through arbitration and through security guaranteed equally to all nations."

POWER UTILITY INQUIRY WILL OPEN NEXT MONTH

Federal Trade Commission to Investigate Financial Structure of Such Concerns.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The Federal Trade Commission indicated today that open hearings in its investigation of the financial structure of public power utilities would begin probably the second or third week of October.

The commission last October opened hearings into the financial structure of the Electric Bond & Share Co., but was blocked by the refusal of the company's officers to produce certain books. The commission petitioned the courts to order that the books be produced but early this year an adverse decision was handed down by a Federal District Court in New York. This judgment has not become operative, as both parties requested and obtained a delay until next Monday for the filing of further motions.

BRITISH SURPASSES U.S. FLEET BY 51,260 TONS

Navy Puts England's Total Tonnage at 1,345,232; America's at 1,293,972.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The first table of relative Anglo-American naval strength which has compared the two fleets on a basis of standard tons, made public today by the navy, gives Great Britain 1,345,232 tons compared with 1,293,972 tons for the United States.

Under the new figures the United States loses 59,401 tons by comparison with the last tables issued by the Navy, while Great Britain's total tonnage decrease is only 21,105 tons. This increases the British preponderance over the American fleet from 12,964 to 51,260 tons.

In announcing the revised table, the Navy said the standard ton measurement had been employed in the recent limitation negotiations and that the new figures were made public "in view of the differences in figures as to the strength of the United States and the British Empire appearing in various papers."

The new table placed the American cruiser tonnage, the crux of the negotiations, for a new limitation conference at 300,500 instead of 305,000. The cruisers of the Omaha class were listed as of 7050 tons, instead of 7500 tons as previously. The British cruiser figure was increased from 397,300 tons to 401,791.

In airplane carriers the British ton advantage is raised from 15,050 to 25,264. The American destroyer preponderance has been reduced by 7807 tons and the advantage over Great Britain in submarine tonnage decreased 1284 tons.

No change was made on the figure for capital ships because the Washington limitation treaty provided that all such vessels then built should be measured in accordance with the method then employed in their respective countries.

The British, Rodney and Nelson, completed subsequent to the treaty, are the only capital ships measured in standard tons.

The figures given include effective fighting ships of all classes whether built, building or authorized, with the exception of 12 American destroyers authorized in 1926 for which no appropriation has ever been made. The complete American 15-cruiser building program is included as are the British Surrey and Northumberland, cruisers, construction of which has been postponed.

The last tables made public by the navy were issued in July, based on the best information available to the intelligence branch at that time. Admittedly they were not strictly accurate as the tonnage of all classes of ships was given in terms of national measurements, which, in the case of Great Britain, did not compare with the American tonnage.

$497,000,000 INCREASE IN U. S. EXPORTS IN YEAR

10 Per Cent Rise Sends Total to $5,374,000,000; Imports Also Up 3.5 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—A steady advance in the value of finished manufactured articles exported from the United States was said today by the Department of Commerce to have been chiefly responsible for an increase of $497,000,000 in exports for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Exports for the year were valued at $5,374,000,000, an increase of 10 per cent over the previous year, while imports totaled $4,292,000,000, a 3.5 per cent gain.

"The accelerated growth of exports of finished manufactures," the department said, "was the most notable feature of export trade during 1928-29. This group totaled $2,509,000,000 and was responsible for seven-eighths of the gain in total exports."

A large share of the growth was due to increased foreign shipments of automobiles, parts and accessories, which totaled $591,000,000 in 1928-29, a gain of 39 per cent over the previous year. The number of passenger cars, bodies and trucks exported was 36 per cent greater than the previous year and more than 10 times larger than in 1921-22.

PROSECUTOR SLAIN TO GET EVIDENCE, POLICE SUSPECT

Document Borger, Tex., County Attorney Planned to Use in Murder Trial, Is Missing.

By the Associated Press.

BORGER, Tex., Sept. 14.—Officers investigating the assassination of County Attorney John A. Holmes announced today important evidence which Holmes planned to use in the prosecution of William J. (Whitney) Walker, notorious bank robber, on charges of killing two deputy sheriffs here in 1927, apparently had been stolen.

The County Attorney was shot and killed from ambush outside his home here last night.

The missing evidence, which investigators think may have provided the motive for the killing of Holmes, is a statement alleged to have been made by Roy Harmon just before he died of bullet wounds suffered in an attempted bank robbery at Wildorado, Tex., last year.

Sheriff Joe Ownbey and Curtis Douglas, former District Attorney, obtained the statement in which Harmon is alleged to have implicated Walker in the killing of the two deputy sheriffs here. Walker now is in jail awaiting trial for murder.

High Walker and Ed Bailey, also charged with implication in the 1927 killings, are at liberty on bond. Officers are investigating their whereabouts.

Several days ago Holmes, according to several associates, took the Harmon statement from the files of his predecessor in office. A search today failed to find the document in Holmes' office.

Gov. Moody at Austin assigned Texas Rangers to the case and offered a reward of $500 for the capture and conviction of Holmes' slayer. A reward of $250 was announced by the Texas County and District Attorneys' Association.

The Governor also announced that should conditions warrant he will declare martial law in Borger. He is awaiting reports from the rangers.

INQUIRY IN DEATH OF WOMAN WITNESS IN LIQUOR PLOT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 14.—A government investigation of the death of Mrs. Sadie Webster, 21-year-old Indian, who was to have been a material witness in cases involving alleged conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in Pottawatomie County, has been ordered, it was learned today.

Mrs. Webster was shot to death Thursday near Hoover, Ok. She was at the home of Pete Kennedy, 27-year-old, who has told county officers that she shot herself. Kennedy, Pete Weaver, 29; Almo Chappel 22, and Berdina Bone, 22, have been taken into custody and held at Tecumseh for questioning.

Vanour and Hoyt Sherill, sons of a former mayor of that town, were arrested and charged with intimidating Ira Embree, a witness, and beating him into unconsciousness.

Communist Officer and Textile Organizer Reported Missing.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 14.—Reports that William Dunne, secretary of the Communist Party in America, and Hugo Oehler, Southern organizer for the National Textile Workers' Union, were missing reached persons connected with the two organizations here tonight. They were last seen, it was said, when they entered a taxicab in South Gastonia this afternoon a few minutes after Liston M. Oak was arrested.

Friends of the two men said that when Dunne and Oehler entered the cab and drove away three cars loaded with men followed them. Their friends feared the men may have been kidnaped.

The inquiry here into kidnapings and beatings by a Gastonia anti-communist mob by Judge Thomas J. Shaw, was recessed for the week-end this afternoon after the defense had begun its efforts to disprove statements by State witnesses as to the identity of mob members.

At the same time, the eight Communists and union members arrested here Thursday night charged with attempting to overthrow the Government by dissemination of Communi' doctrines, were released on $1000 bond after Judge E. McA. Currie, City Recorder, had continued the case against them until Monday.

SHEARER INVOLVED IN NAVAL LEAK IN 1924, NEWSPAPER ASSERTS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.

THE WASHINGTON STAR will say tomorrow that records exist in the files of the Navy Department that are alleged to connect William B. Shearer, so-called naval expert, with a serious leak of confidential naval data in 1924.

These records, the story continues, give the details of an inquiry conducted in secret session into the affair and may be produced during the forthcoming Senatorial investigation.

The alleged leak involved publication of private correspondence between the head of the Naval War College and another officer as a result of which a court of inquiry was convened before which Shearer was called to testify in secret session.

The inquiry affected Capt. Hugo W. Osterhaus, then head of the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., and Capt. Robert L. Berry, U. S. N. retired, then in charge of naval recruiting. Both officers were exonerated.

The letters were published in 1924, the Star will say, and after criticism had been directed upon several naval officials, Shearer issued a statement in which he sought to assume responsibility.

for money he says is due him for services as their agent at Geneva. He will be called later.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, is among the first four shipbuilders summoned. The Bethlehem Steel Corporation controls the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co., which was one of the three firms sued by Shearer for more than $250,000 he alleges is due him.

The others called by the committee include S. W. Wakeman, vice president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co.; C. L. Bardo, vice president of the American Brown, Boveri Electric Corporation, and Norman R. Parker, treasurer of the same corporation.

In his suit Shearer named the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co., the American Brown, Boveri Electric Corporation and the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Corporation. Officers of the last named company would be called later, Chairman Shortridge said.

Asked why Shearer was not summoned as the first witness, Shortridge replied: "We want to get the facts and the truth."

The committee has a certified copy of Shearer's court complaint.

The absence from the city of Senator Allen of Kansas was a factor in setting the opening of the hearings for next Friday. Senator Robinson (Dem.), Arkansas, is the other member of the committee.

MACMILLAN FINDS CLEWS TO 400-YEAR-OLD TRAGEDY

Explorer Thinks He Discovered House of Martin Frobisher's Party in Arctic.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, N. S., Sept. 14.—Clews to an unsolved mystery of nearly 400 years standing—the fate of five men left on Kadlunarn Island by Sir Martin Frobisher in 1576 to protect supposed gold mines—were reported by Donald B. MacMillan on his return today from a two-months' expeditionary voyage to Baffin Land.

A stone house, thought to have been built in Frobisher's time, was found, the character of the dwelling indicating that it was the work of white men. The hut was discovered by MacMillan on an island in Countess Warwick Sound, about 50 miles from Kadlunarn.

At Kadlurnan a house built by Frobisher was found to be in a fair state of preservation and leading to the Sound were traces of a ship's way. This evidence, in conjunction with a legend of the Eskimos of that region indicates to MacMillan's mind, that the small band left by the English explorer may have built a ship and set out to return to England. Presence of icebergs in that vicinity tend to the theory, the explorer said, that the ship was crushed and that one or more swam ashore and built the shelter in Countess Wa wick Sound.

Hitherto it had been supposed that the members of the little band were murdered by Eskimos.

DEMOCRATS SEEK FACTS ON PROFITS OF CORPORATIONS

Call for Data on Income Returns of 100 Companies and Taxpayers Benefiting by Tariff.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The names of approximately 100 corporations and individual taxpayers will be sent to the Treasury by Democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee with a request for information on their financial condition, for use in the tariff debate.

The request will be made pursuant to the recently adopted Simmons' resolution authorizing the committee as a whole or Republican or Democratic members to obtain data from income and capital stock tax returns of taxpayers whose products would benefit by the pending tariff bill.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the committee, submitted the list to Chairman Smoot for transmission to the Treasury. Simmons was unconcerned over publication of the names, but Smoot said he would determine Monday whether they would be made public.

20 Amendments Approved.

The Senate today tentatively approved more than 20 non-controversial amendments proposed to the administrative provisions of House measure by the majority of the Finance Committee.

At a three-four session the second reading of the special and administrative provisions for consideration of minor amendments was completed, but the clashes over important changes relating to reorganization of the Tariff Commission, liberalizing of the flexible clause, and transfer of ad valorem rates to the basis of United States value were deferred until next week.

King Assails Trusts.

Before the Senate returned to the reading of the bill, Senator King (Dem.), Utah, and Senator Fess (Rep.), Ohio, engaged in a discussion of the growth of trusts and monopolies in the United States and the effect of the tariff on them.

King said there has been a "tremendous growth of trusts," determined to maintain high prices in order that "they may reap illegitimate profits from the prostitution of the power of the Government in their behalf."

The Standard Oil Co., he added, was "infinitely more powerful today in its devastating course or its destructive manipulation of the markets and of prices than it ever was before."

Fess said he did not think the tariff had anything to do with the growth of trusts and King replied there was a great difference of opinion as to that.

Changes Accepted.

The more important committee amendments receiving tentative approval were:

To authorize Porto Rico to impose a tariff on coffee, including foreign coffee entering the islands from the United States. Coffee is now on the American free list, which applies alike to goods entering Porto Rico.

To authorize the negotiation of reciprocal agreements with foreign countries to provide for the free entry of dispatches or shipments through the mails of advertising matter in the form of circulars or books to individual addresses. Exception would be made in the case of foreign printed matter advertising the sale of articles by persons engaged in the business in the United States.

To strike out a House provision requiring appraisers to report the value of imported merchandise to collectors within 120 days after date of entry.

To eliminate a House provision forbidding the entry of wild mammals or birds from countries restricting the killing or exportation to the United States of such game. Chairman Smoot said the committee felt this Government should not attempt to enforce the laws of other nations by such a provision.

To strike out a House clause to make the owner of a vessel as well as the master liable to a penalty of $25 an ounce for every ounce of opium found unmanifested.

More than 40 boxes of dynamite were stored in various caches in pockets in the tunnel. W. B. Hill, in charge of the camp, said the burning dynamite did not explode, he said, but gas caused the fatalities by asphyxiation.

$200,000 SETTLES COUSINS' CLAIM ON REBSTOCK ESTATE

They Had Threatened to Contest Will Leaving Two Men $10,000 Each and Woman $20,000.

ATTORNEYS' FEE IS HALF OF AMOUNT

St. Louisans Assented to Avoid Litigation Over Property Inventoried at $2,278,228.

St. Louis heirs of the late Charles L. Rebstock, wholesale liquor dealer and philanthropist, who died last October leaving an estate inventoried at $2,278,229, settled for $200,000 the claim of three Western cousins who threatened to contest Rebstock's will, it was learned yesterday.

Negotiations for the settlement were handled by Harvey B. Cox of the law firm of Foristel, Mudd, Blair & Habenicht, in the Title Guaranty Building. The firm was paid $100,000 as its fee in the case, according to John L. Gust of Phoenix, Ariz., husband of one of the beneficiaries.

Payment was made by Mrs. Anna Rebstock of 3222 Hawthorne boulevard, sister-in-law of Rebstock, and her two daughters, Mrs. Caroline Harting and Mrs. Corinne Penney, who divided the bulk of Rebstock's estate by the terms of his will.

Preferred to Avoid Suit.

Conversations that led to the settlement ran over a period of six months and the law firm had proceeded to the point of preparing a contest petition, alleging undue influence and mental weakness. Mrs. Rebstock said yesterday that she and her daughters paid the $200,000, without employing counsel, rather than face the trying procedure of a law suit.

Rebstock, who made liberal gifts to charitable and educational institutions during his life, including $1,000,000 to Washington University in 1925, bequeathed the bulk of his estate in three equal shares to the widow and two daughters of his brother, William Rebstock, who had lived with him at the Hawthorne boulevard address for many years.

The Western claimants, children of another deceased brother, Edward Rebstock, received specific legacies. Charles E. and Duane Rebstock of Los Angeles, $10,000 each, and Mrs. Ada L. Gust of Phoenix, $20,000. Several other relatives were remembered with similar amounts in the will, which was written eight years before Rebstock's death.

Branches of Family Separated.

The two branches of the Rebstock family had been separated for many years and to some extent estranged. Charles L. Rebstock, the oldest son in a poor family, started his career as a bookkeeper at the old Anheuser-Busch brewery, supporting his widowed mother and two younger brothers. Later he went into business for himself in 1880, building up the liquor firm of Rebstock & Co. He was the only one of the three brothers to achieve financial success.

The three brothers married and William and Edward had three children each. Charles Rebstock's wife died without issue about 25 years ago.

Edward Rebstock moved to the West where his wife divorced him, gaining custody of their children and remarried. William Rebstock died and Charles took the brother's family into his home. One of William's three daughters died leaving a daughter, Dorothy Ann Rebstock, for whom the wealthy brother created a $200,000 trust fund in his will.

Edward Never Reconciled.

Edward Rebstock, never reconciled with his wife or children, died in St. Louis in 1913 after years of wandering. Meanwhile, Charles Rebstock had maintained the widow and children of his one brother in his home and had maintained cordial relations with the divorced wife and the children of his other brother.

At times, the wealthy brother made substantial financial gifts to the Western relatives, assisting one of his nephews with an allowance during his college years. During the later years of Charles Rebstock's life, when he was making substantial philanthropic distributions, the Western sister-in-law and her three children each received valuable gifts of corporation stock.

Charles Rebstock retired with the advent of prohibition, liquidating his business and devoting his time to philanthropy and world travel. Since the time of his retirement, the value of his estate is said to have increased from about $500,000 to its present value above $2,000,000 because of his judicious investments in the common stocks of corporations which included substantial blocks of shares in St. Louis banks and various railroad companies. He was 82 years old when he died.

Shoots Himself Accidentally.

While examining a revolver which he thought was unloaded, Milton W. Rust, 27 years old, a bookkeeper, of 4000 Cora avenue, shot himself in the left knee last night at the home of Carl Wecker, 4114A Clarence avenue.

TEAMSTER SLAIN ON LEVEE NEAR HIS HOME

R. T. Henson Shot to Death —Man With Whom He Had Quarreled Sought.

The body of Rudolph T. Henson, 40 years old, a teamster of 3600 South Main street, with a bullet in his head, was found yesterday afternoon in a gully near the bank of the Mississippi River at the foot of President street.

Police are searching for another teamster, with whom Henson had quarreled.

Investigating in the neighborhood, policemen found a man who said he had seen Henson a short time before he was killed. Henson said he was going to the other teamster's home near the place where he was killed to get some bed clothing he had left there. "There's going to be something doing when I get there," Henson is reported to have said.

The other man's home, a river-front shanty, was unoccupied when police arrived.

PLANS TOLL MOTOR SPEEDWAY ABOVE RAILROAD RIGHT-OF-WAY

Grand Trunk Contemplates 26-Mile Route Between Detroit and Pontiac.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 14. — Plans for the construction of a motor speedway from Jefferson Avenue in Detroit, to Pontiac, 26 miles northwest, and operated as a toll road, were announced today by C. G. Bowker, general manager of the Grand Trunk western lines. The speedway would be constructed above the proposed electrified lines of the Grand Trunk railway.

The plans call for a 40-foot paved roadway over a four track railway right-of-way to be completed in 1931. The cost of the entire project, including a new eight-story terminal building, has been estimated at $100,000,000.

The motor speedway, it is said, will be the first of its kind in this country. The project will be submitted to the Michigan Public Utilities Commission for approval.

By the Associated Press.

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex., Sept. 14.—The first of 15 mental experts for the defense testified today in Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers' fourth trial in connection with the robbing of the Farmers' National Bank in Buda, Tex., in 1926. The peculiar actions of Mrs. Rogers during her student days at the University of Texas and after she had robbed the bank could only have been those of a person of unsound mind, the expert testified.

After detailing peculiar actions of Mrs. Rogers that had been told previously to the jury by non-expert witnesses including how she often greeted friends warmly and later refused to recognize them. The expert was asked by Otis Rogers, the defendant's husband and chief of counsel, if such actions were symptoms of insanity.

"They are," the witness replied.

Last night it was officially stated that all vessels of the fleet had returned to Kronstadt undamaged. The official Tass news agency today said that their report of yesterday was incorrect and was intended only to convey that no ship was lost as was rumored abroad.

The collision was said to have occurred during a violent storm.

HOSPITAL ORDERLY HELD AFTER DEATH OF CITY PATIENT

Coroner Investigating Scalding in Bath of Jack Ready, 63-Year-Old Transient Workman.

Investigating the death of an intoxicated patient in a bath at City Hospital, police yesterday arrested Charles Aubuchon, 24-year-old hospital orderly, at the request of Coroner Dever who will conduct an inquest tomorrow.

The patient, Jack Ready, 63 years old, a transient workman, with relatives in Dayton, O., and New York City, died at 7:50 p. m. Friday at the hospital to which he had been taken 12 hours before by police who found him drunk on the sidewalk at Ninth and Market streets.

An autopsy by Dr. T. L. Carriere, Coroner's physician, disclosed that Ready died of burns. A report prepared by Dr. Carriere stated that the body was "burned from head to foot," and that Ready in addition had suffered a fractured breast bone and a fractured rib. He declined to discuss how the injuries might have been sustained.

There was no trace of cerebral oedema, a swollen condition of the brain accompanying alcoholism, Dr. Carriere said. Before the autopsy, Hospital Commissioner Lohr, who had made a personal investigation, said Ready's death appeared to be due to burns about the lower back, legs and feet; to cerebral oedema and to acute alcoholism.

Dr. Lohr Renews Warning.

Dr. Lohr renewed a warning to attaches of city institutions to be careful in bathing patients to test the temperature of the water by placing their own arms in the water, which he said was the common method, or by using thermometers.

Aubuchon has been employed at the hospital since May 30, 1927, and for the last six months has been an orderly in CL3—the inebriates' ward.

"I'm willing to take an oath the bath water was not overly hot," Aubuchon told police. "I stuck my arm up to the elbow in the tub before bathing the patient. I noticed the patient's skin was red before he was placed in the tub. The patient was not obstreperous. He made no complaint."

Bath Takes 15 Minutes.

Two and a half hours after his admission, Orderly Aubuchon gave him a hot tub bath with the assistance of a volunteer attendant, a Negro patient, Solomon Montgomery. The bath required about 15 minutes, Aubuchon said.

Returned to his bunk, Ready was heard groaning at midnight. He was removed to a surgical ward, where he died the following night.

Police had booked Ready to appear in City Court No. 1 "when sober."

Sometime before his death, Ready told attendants he was unmarried and a pipeworker. He said he had a sister, Mrs. John Hughes, 57 Regal place, Dayton, O. His possessions included a letter on stationery of Hotel President, New York City, addressed to "Uncle John" and signed "Edna," discussing family matters and stating "Everybody's well."

TWO WOODSMEN ACCUSED IN KILLING OF MISS DUEBBERT

Warrants Issued for D. A. Miller and Norman Tanner, Once Worked on Femme Osage Farm.

Two woodsmen who formerly worked on the farm of Miss Pauline Duebbert, who was shot to death on her farm near Femme Osage the night of Aug. 22, and her cousin, August Meyer, seriously wounded, are charged with her murder in a joint warrant issued yesterday at St. Charles.

The warrant, against David A. Miller, 44, and Norman Tanner, 21, formerly of Boonville, was issued by Justice of the Peace Thoelke at the requst of Prosecuting Attorney Bloebaum, who acted on evidence presented by Sheriff Isadore Grothe, who is directing the search for Miss Duebbert's murderers.

A pair of sun glasses, found on the wooded ridge overlooking the apple orchard where the shooting occurred, furnished the first clew which pointed to Miller as one of the fugitives, Sheriff Grothe said. Miller, who with Tanner cut timber on the Duebbert farm and neighboring places about 18 months ago, was often referred to in the neighborhood as "the woodcutter with the glasses." A flashlight, abandoned by the slayers, was traced to Boonville.

Traced to Boonville.

Sheriff Grothe learned that the two men left their hotel in Boonville early on the morning after the shooting, abandoning Tanner's sedan, which he had equipped with new tires a few days before.

Sheriff Grothe, while declining to tell the source of his information until the men had been apprehended, said that they were in Indianapolis last week, a message requesting their arrest reaching there a few minutes after they had departed.

Meyer, who is convalescing from his wounds, when informed yesterday that warrants had been issued against the two men, recalled that after they had cut some timber on the Duebbert farm, that he had trimmed and sold some of the pieces they had abandoned. The timber cutters worked in the neighborhood for eight months and were familiar with every inch of the land there, Grothe said.

Less than two weeks after the men had left Boonville, several worthless checks drawn by Miller on a bank at St. James, Mo., were cashed by merchants in Boone and Cole counties. The Missouri Bankers' Association has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest of Miller for embezzlement. There is also a $500 reward offered by the St. Charles County Court for the arrest and conviction of the slayers.

Asks Aid of Shartel.

Sheriff Grothe wrote Attorney-General Shartel yesterday requesting his aid in bringing about the arrest of the fugitives, whom he thinks will be apprehended in another State. The Sheriff detailed his evidence against the men and explained that he had not accepted an offer of aid tendered recently by the Attorney-General at the time it was received because he was anticipating a development momentarily which would result in the issuance of the warrant. The expected development materialized Sunday, he said, and subsequent investigation prompted the Sheriff to request the issuance of the murder warrant yesterday.

Circulars were sent last night to police departments all over the country. They describe Miller as 44 years old; six feet tall; weight about 165 pounds; curly brown hair, and blue eyes. His occupation is listed as a timber and concrete worker and he is described as a loud talker.

Tanner is 21 years old; 5 feet 11 inches tall; weighs 155 pounds and has light hair, a fair complexion and blue eyes.

Land Daniel Boone Sold For $320 Brings $70,000

Bond Firm Buys Part of Ground Congress Granted to Pioneer in St. Charles County.

Five hundred acres of the 1000 arpents of land in what now is St. Charles County, granted to Daniel Boone by Congress after the Louisiana Purchase, have been acquired by a St. Louis firm of bond brokers who plan to use it for week-end entertainment for the firm and clients. Boone sold the land for $320. The bond firm, although the price was not disclosed, is reported to have paid more than $70,000 for it.

When Congress gave the famous pioneer 1000 arpents of land—an arpent is 85-100ths of an acre—he was dissatisfied. The Spanish Government had given him 10,000 arpents, but he had neglected to have the grant recorded by the Crown agent, and while Congress agreed that he was entitled to 10,000 arpents, he received only the 1000, comprising a homstad, that all other settlers in the territory got.

Although it was Boone's homestead, he never lived there, ancient records set forth. His only Missouri home was with his son at what now is New Melle, Mo., five miles away. Nathan Boone's homestead now is owned by F. M. Currlee, St. Louis attorney, who uses it as a summer home.

The bond firm has started extensive improvements on the old mansion built on the site of an Indian fort Boone erected on his land, and proposes to construct a golf course, an airplane landing field, shooting blinds and a fishing lodge on the well-stocked 23-acre lake.

Boone sold the land to William Cashow, and it remained in the Cashow family for many years. Two years ago, John M. Reilly, 6338 San Bonita avenue, purchased the tract at foreclosure. He obtained a deed to the land signed by Daniel Boone, from Mrs. Mary A. Matson of Fort Meyers, Fla., wife of the grandson of William Cashow.

Schuyler Van Blarcom Says Money and $2500 Ring Disappeared at Hotel.

Mrs. Dorothy Countryman, who was known in St. Louis as Dorothy Small, is held at Police Headquarters on a warrant charging larceny issued on complaint of Schuyler Van Blarcom, manager of the S. L. Van Blarcom Leather Co., 1627 Locust street.

Van Blarcom complained to the police that he met the woman Wednesday and took her to Hotel Mayfair. The next morning the woman was gone and so was $500 in currency and a $2500 diamond ring, Van Blarcom told police.

A detective, accompanied by Van Blarcom, located her at the home of her mother in Dayton, O., and brought her back to St. Louis yesterday. She denied she had taken the money or the ring.

AMBASSADOR and MISSOURI SHOWS GO ON

THE best in entertainment waits you at the Skouras Super-Theaters today! The latest all-talking, singing, dancing pictures! Made possible by the miracle of Vitaphone.

WE are carrying on, as usual! Offering the popular Ambassador and Missouri entertainment! And on the Ambassador stage is their regular New York production, Art Frank in "Rah! Rah! Rah!" featuring Helen Lewis' Union Orchestra.

MEANWHILE, we wish the public of St. Louis to know the facts—that Skouras Super-Theaters have no quarrel with the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association! The Musicians' Association has agreed with us as to musicians' salaries and working conditions in the Ambassador and Missouri Theaters! And in spite of any controversy raised by the Association, the fact remains, UNDISPUTED, THAT OUR MUSICIANS ARE EAGER AND ANXIOUS TO WORK! Satisfied as to salary! As to working conditions!

BUT the Musicians' Association seeks to link the Skouras Super-Theaters with the St. Louis Amusement Company. However, the problems of the Musicians' Association and the St. Louis Amusement Company's Neighborhood Theaters in no way concerns the Ambassador and Missouri Theaters. These companies have different management! Different operation! Different stockholders!

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF WITHDRAWING 47 MEN FROM THE AMBASSADOR AND MISSOURI THEATER ORCHESTRAS RESTS SOLELY WITH THE MUSICIAN'S ASSOCIATION

UNDER these circumstances we believe that we deserve the support of Organized Labor, their friends and the general public, and we are satisfied that we will receive it.

FOUR WITNESSES IGNORE SUBPENAS IN HYLAND SUIT

Cited to Testify in Proceedings to Oust Dog Track Owner's Widow as Administrator.

CONTEMPT ACTION IS THREATENED

Sheriff Among Recalcitrants —Difficulty of Plaintiffs in Getting Evidence Persists.

Contempt proceedings were threatened yesterday when four witnesses failed to appear at an East St. Louis law office to give depositions in the suit of two sisters of the late Martin J. Hyland, wealthy promoter of the Madison Kennel Club, to remove Hyland's widow as administrator of his estate.

The witnesses are Sheriff Otto Herman of Madison County, where the Hyland dog track has prospered without official interference; John J. Hyland, a brother, who was originally a party to the suit with his sisters, Mrs. Mary Martin and Mrs. Catherine McClurkin, but withdrew without disclosing his reason; F. R. Anderson, secretary-treasurer of the kennel club, and Murray Kemp, described as "head calculator."

A Constable testified that he had served subpenas on Sheriff Herman and the others and had served a subpena for the production of the club's books before Chester Farthing, East St. Louis lawyer. The books, like the witnesses, were missing.

Citation for Witnesses.

Joseph McAtee, attorney for the plaintiffs, asked Farthing, who agreed, to cite the witnesses into court to show cause for their absence under penalty of proceedings for contempt. McAtee has repeatedly encountered a wall of silence in his search for information about the club's financial affairs, club officers and bankers declining to testify.

Mrs. Hyland's lawyer, former State Senator A. E. L. Gardner of Clayton, attended yesterday's hearing and when asked where the records were, replied: "Search me." He declined McAtee's invitation to testify.

Hyland's sisters assert that Hyland's estate amounted to $213,500, instead of the $64,000 reported by his widow, and they ask for her removal as administrator on the ground she is concealing assets of the estate to defraud them.

Widow Claims Title to Tracks.

Mrs. Hyland in her inventory omitted mention of Hyland's dog track holdings because she declared Hyland had transferred them to her prior to his death. She denied her weekly income from the Madison stock was as high as $30,000 a week, as alleged by her sisters-in-law.

In an effort to prove that Hyland, who died March 13, was an officer and therefore a stockholder of the Madison Club, Attorney McAtee exhibited a photostatic copy of a report to the Illinois Secretary of State, as of Feb. 28, which listed the Madison club officers as follows: Hyland, president; Richard Wilder, secretary; George Sawyer, treasurer. Sawyer is now touring Europe with East St. Louis City Counselor Dan McGlynn Jr.

NEW YORK GANGSTER SHOT ON ARRIVAL IN CLEVELAND

Police Think Daniel Ahern Tried to Extort Money From Ohio Gamblers.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 14.—Daniel Ahern, 28 years old, shot down here three hours after his arrival from New York, was the victim of gambling resort operators whom he tried to "shake down," Emmett J. Potts, acting chief of detectives, said tonight.

Potts expressed the belief that the reputed gangster, who was reported in a serious condition endangered himself through his connection with New Yorkers who have been preying on gamblers here.

Police had two widely divergent accounts of the shooting. Some witnesses said Ahern was shot from an automobile as he was crossing a street with three New York companions, while others said he was lured within the range of a gunman stationed in the vicinity.

Ahern's relatives in New York said he was related to a court official prominent in politics, but refused to disclose his identity.

Ahern's three companions are under arrest while their Bertillon measurements are being checked by New York police. All of them denied seeing the shooting or knowing its cause.

Ahern was shot a few hours after Alfred L. Tully, said by his wife to be a paid Federal prohibition informer, was shot. Detectives think he was the victim of the same band who killed Leo Klein, a Federal informer, last August 1.

WHALEN MODIFIES DRY LAW STAND IN LETTER TO CAMPBELL

New York Police Head Says Department Will Continue 'Vigorous Enforcement.'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Police Commissioner Whalen, in another letter to Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator for this district, made public today, backed from a little from his previous stand taken in New York's liquor controversy.

Although reiterating his statement made last month that the Federal prohibition machinery in the city is ineffective, Whalen in his second letter to the administrator said the Police Department would continue "a vigorous enforcement of all penal statutes without discrimination and would make a "determined effort to wipe out all speakeasies selling poisoned liquor, harboring disorderly persons, hangouts of criminals and every crime-breeding dive."

NO ORCHESTRAS TODAY IN SKOURAS THEATERS

Manager Issues Statement on Failure to Reach Agreement With Union.

The orchestra pits of all Skouras Theaters, including the Ambassador, Missouri, Grand Central and the St. Louis Amusement Co.'s 24 neighborhood theaters, are expected to be empty today as the result of the inability of the theater officials and the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association to agree on contract terms.

The union musicians voted Friday to adhere to a policy of all or none, maintaining the Skouras interests should renew all contracts. The Skouras interests, on the other hand, offered to renew contracts for the Ambassador and Missouri orchestras but sought a reduction in the minimum number of men to be employed in neighborhood houses from 134 to 35.

The result of the deadlock was that Guy M. Dailey, president of the Musicians' Union, announced that 300 musicians employed in the Skouras theaters would not return to their work today. Loew's State abandoned its orchestra Sept. 1 to rely solely on "canned" music. The Fox Theater, St. Louis Theater and Grand Opera House have signed new contracts assuring those theaters of orchestras.

The Ambassador's stage show will carry on without the regular theater orchestra, having the services of a 10-piece women's orchestra, members of the New York Musicians' Union, which had been engaged as one of the acts and which is unaffected by the local controversy.

Statement by Skouras.

Charles P. Skouras, general manager of the Skouras Super Theaters—Missouri and Ambassador—issued a statement outlining his position last night. It follows:

"The Skouras Super Theaters, always a staunch supporter of organized labor, are anxious, willing and ready to employ members of the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association. Their positions are open to them and there is no controversy with their association as to compensation or working conditions.

"The members of the Ambassador and Missouri orchestras are more than satisfied with their positions. They are eager to renew their contracts.

"The men in these de luxe theaters are paid on a liberal scale—a scale virtually equal that of any other theater in the country. For instance, the Ambassador musicians draw an average weekly wage of $115 or more. Although their contract calls for seven hours per days, they are required to work only five hours or less. During the time when they are not actually engaged in playing their time is their own. Their contracts guarantee them 52 weeks of work a year.

"During the period of one year's contract just expired the Skouras Super Theaters paid $350,000 to the members of these orchestras.

"We Are Helpless to Act."

"The responsibility for throwing 47 members of the Ambassador and Missouri orchestras out of work with the ensuing loss of huge sums rests solely with the Musicians' Association. We are helpless to act in the present situation, as all of our offers have been flatly and unfairly rejected.

"Proof of our good faith and cooperation is evidenced by our offer to fulfill every request for pay and working conditions asked by the Musicians' Association. Further proof of the fairness of our stand is the attitude of the members of the Ambassador and Missouri orchestras who are most anxious to return to their positions.

"Most unfairly and most unfortunately the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association is withholding from the orchestras of this company the right to contract with us unless and until the St. Louis Amusement Co. yields to certain demands made upon that company over which Skouras Super Theaters have no control. As a matter of fact they are two separate entities. The stockholders are different. The management is different. The policies are different. Consequently, the disagreement between the St. Louis Amusement Co. and the Musicians' Association in no way concerns the Skouras Super Theaters.

"Musicians Satisfied."

"Skouras Super Theaters' treatment of organized labor is shown by the records of the Central Trades & Labor Union. All business connected with our de luxe houses has always been transacted by organized labor.

"Going further, the Musicians' Association is satisfied with our offers as to the pay and size of our orchestras. It is agreeable to working conditions. It recognizes the fairness of our contracts and yet the association has steadfastly refused to permit the men to work in our theaters owing to a controversy with another company over which Skouras Super Theaters have no control.

"Under these circumstances, we believe we have the right to expect and are satisfied we shall receive the continued support of organized labor and the patronage of its friends and the general public."

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Va., Sept. 14.—President and Mrs. Hoover, with a large group of guests, arrived late today by automobile from Washington for a week-end stay at the President's Rapidan River Lodge.

Others in the party include Secretary of Commerce Lamont, Mrs. McNary, Assistant Secretary Heath of the Treasury; Charles K. Field, California, a schoolmate of the President; Palmer Field, Alameda, Cal.; Harry L. Litt, Jersey City, former Gov. Goodrich of Indiana; Charles C. $500,000,000 IN INCOME TAXES TO BE PAID TO U. S. TOMORROW

Quarterly Payment Estimated to Be Only Slightly Less Than That of June.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Approximately a half billion dollars will be turned into the Treasury by Monday night through the payment of the third quarterly installment of the 1928 Federal income tax.

The date for payment of the installment expires Monday. The installment is due as of Sept. 15, but as that date falls on Sunday, the time limit was extended for a day.

While the Treasury Department will not compute the exact figures on the collections for several days, Under-Secretary Mills estimated today that the payment would be only slightly less than that of last June, which totaled $544,256,508. Last March the Treasury set a new high record collection of $601,363,804, despite the one and one-half per cent reduction in corporation taxes which went into effect with that payment.

BODY FROM WRECKED LAKE STEAMER FOUND

Rough Weather Delays Search for Other Members of Andaste's Crew of 25.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Sept. 14.—The body of a man washed ashore near Holland and scattered bits of wreckage appearing at various points along the shoreline between this city and Saugatuck today dispelled the last hope that the freighter Andaste and her crew of 25 might have weathered the storm which swept Lake Michigan Monday night.

The body was identified as that of Ralph Wiley of Benton Harbor, second engineer of the freighter. The identity was established by John Van Ingenin of Holland, former member of the crew of the Andaste.

Near Saugatuck today, four boys playing along the beach discovered a life preserver bearing the name Andaste. They reported seeing much wreckage along the shore.

The turbulent water of the lake today kept searching vessels from the spot 14 miles off Ottawa beach where the freighter is thought to have foundered. Tugs sent out by the Chicago Materials Co., operators of the Andaste, were standing by with Coast Guard craft tonight and planned to put out tomorrow if the weather clears.

First definite information concerning the fate of the 37-year-old freighter which left Grand Haven for Chicago Monday night with a cargo of gravel, began to come to light late yesterday when the crew of a fishing tug found pieces of wreckage. Additional wreckage was reported from various points along the shore.

SENATE ACTION DEFERRED ON UNITING DRY BUREAUS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Senator Jones (Rep.), Washington, made an unsuccessful attempt to obtain action in the Senate today on President Hoover's recommendation for a commission to study the question of consolidating prohibition agencies.

Senator Moses (Rep.), New Hampshire, objected to Jones' request for consideration of his resolution to carry out the recommendations.

"The President is desirous of action," Jones said, "and I've done all I can."

Jones added that Senators Hawes, Missouri, and Glass, Virginia, Democrats, had withdrawn their objections.

Woman Swindled of $200.

Mrs. Sofia Sturnberg of 4746 St. Louis avenue reported to police yesterday that two young men with engaging manners, whom she had never seen before, swindled her out of $200, leaving in her care a bolt of worthless suiting material which one of them was to "buy back" from her later. One of the youths left to go to the bank to get his money, after Mrs. Sturnberg had advanced the other youth $200 for the material. Neither returned.

AMERICAN SPEEDBOAT CAPSIZES IN CUP RACE

Pilot and Mechanic of Miss America VII Hurt—Making 85 Miles an Hour.

VENICE, Italy, Sept. 14. — The Miss America VII, champion speedboat of the world, was a total wreck at Haval Arsenal here tonight and her pilot, Phil Wood of Detroit and mechanic Orlin Johnson were in the Marine Hospital at Santa Ana painfully hurt as a result of a spectacular spill during competition for the Count Volpi cup this afternoon in Venice lagoon.

The Miss America VII, traveling 85 miles an hour, struck a wave created by Major H. O. D. Segrave's Miss England, several yards ahead, leaped twelve feet into the air and came down with a crack that could be heard across the lagoon.

Wood and Johnson were tossed out yards ahead of their craft. The speedboat, broken almost in two by the impact, rushed on until it burled itself in the sand.

The Miss America V, piloted by Prince Ruspoli, hurried to the rescue of Wood and Johnson and reached the latter just in time to save him from drowning. Wood, swimming with difficulty, was picked up shortly afterwards.

At the hospital it was found that Johnson was suffering from the effects of the wate ras well as from cuts on the head. Wood suffered contusions on the hips and shock. X-ray examinations failed to disclose any serious fractures and physicians said both would be fully recovered within a few days.

The accident which turned the race into a walkaway for the English sportsman, occurred directly in front of the judge's stand.

Paul Bernard, American representative at the Regatta, said the hull of the Miss America VII would be burned after the engine has been dismantled and removed.

Tomorrow Segrave will have only Count Bestegui's Baby Gar to beat i nthe finals of the Count Volpi Cup competition.

There was considerable criticism of the committee's decision to change the time of today's big race from 4:30 when the lagoon's waters usually are placid to 2:30 when the water was rough. A half hour after the accident had occurred the lagoon was mirror-like in its placidity.

B. Y. P. U. Picnic Saturday.

FIRST BRITISH TROOPS LEAVE THE RHINELAND

Evacuation Will Be Gradual and Will Be Completed Dec. 17.

By the Associated Press.

WIESBADEN, Germany, Sept. 14.—Three officers and 30 men from each of the small spas — Koenigstein and Bad Schwalbach, left today as the beginning of the evacuation of the Rhineland by British troops. Bureaucratic delays over arrangements for removal of the forces stationed here since the world war prevented a general movement.

Evacuation will begin officially at Koenigstein on Monday, and on Tuesday 600 officers and men will leave Bad Schwalbach, completely evacuating that spa by Sept. 25. The departure of British troops from Wiesbaden and its suburbs will follow Sept. 29. It is here that most of the British troops are quartered. There are about 5000 of them. The first to leave are artillery and cavalry units.

Following the general policy of having the troops move out unostentatiously, the departures will be gradual, lasting throughout November and ending Dec. 17, eight days before Christmas, when the last British Tommy will have left the Rhineland. This plan has the further advantage of enabling the British ministry of war to distribute the returning troops through England without congestion or confusion.

However, the British flag on the Hotel Hohenzollern, British headquarters since Dec. 30, 1925, will not be hauled down until the last English soldier has left Wiesbaden. There will be no more parades, the last having taken place Sept. 3.

Although Koenigstein and Bad Schwalbach can rejoice in the freedom of their soil, 160 French soldiers will remain at Wiesbaden and this city has been practically agreed upon as the seat of the interallied Rhineland control commission, the headquarters of which hitherto have been at Cologne. This in spite of the action of the Wiesbaden chamber of commerce, which vainly petitioned the German ministry of the occupied areas to avert "this heavy blow to Wiesbaden's economic position as a cure and watering place."

It is not known whether after British evacuation the French or Belgians may not move to Bingen until the final evacuation of the third zone. Under the agreement at The Hague reparations conference, this should be completed by June 30, 1930.

NO SUNDAY BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR CHIEF JUSTICE TAFT

But Next Year's Dinner Will Be More Elaborate Than Any Before; 72 Today.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Chief Justice William Howard Taft, now at his summer home at Murray Bay, Canada, will be 72 years old tomorrow, but will have no birthday party.

The anniversary falling on Sunday, Mr. Taft has decided to postpone the party until next year. He promises to compensate then for the delay by providing a more elaborate dinner than has so far marked such occasions.

It has been customary for many years for Mr. Taft to climax the celebration with a dinner to about 100 guests, all that could be seated at tables in the numerous living rooms in his large summer home. He will, of course, be the recipient of numerous gifts of flowers and other remembrances and the numerous letters and telegrams of congratulation, which always pour in on his birthday.

F. X. Mancuso in Union With Native of Gardner, Ill.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Despite his denials, official records indicated today that Judge Francis X. Mancuso of General Sessions Court, chairman of the board of the defunct City Trust Co., was secretly married July 11 to Miss Paula Helena Thompson, a model, 28 years old, a native of Gardner, Ill.

The marriage license was issued July 3, and a Roman Catholic priest made the return eight days later.

Polar Ice Theory of Drouth.
By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—A theory that insufficient ice around the North Pole caused the drouth in England this summer was advanced by Dr. C. E. P. Brooks, a meteorologist. He said that dwindling in the ice areas weakened the atmospheric circulation over the northern hemisphere, thus lessening the number of Icelandic storm centers responsible for England's usual rains.

TELLS OF UNDESIRABLE SIDE OF SEX EQUALITY

Miss Lillie R. Ernst Advises Business Women's Club to Avoid Uniformity.

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Missouri who met with their State officers and directors last night at Hotel Statler were warned by Miss Lillie R. Ernst, acting assistant superintendent of instruction in St. Louis public schools, of some of the less desirable features of equality of the sexes.

"If you are seeking equality with the men of America," she said, "may I ask you to look seriously at that for which you ask. They are more conditioned by a fear to be unlike the mass than anything I know of. They are afraid of inequality. It is timidity that makes men seek equal levels and compels them to follow the conventions of their kind.

"You may spend your time at meetings of men's business and professional clubs from Monday until Friday of every week and when you have finished you will not be able to distinguish one of them from another. This uniformity amounting to monotony in likes and dislikes, enthusiasms and purposes, is not accidental but the result of long years of seeking the medium level. It has brought them to a fatal equilibrium, because for every pull up, there is a pull down. May heaven deliver us from universal equality. If there is one thing the American commonwealth has suffered from, it has been a mistaken idea of equality."

Miss Ernst spoke on the subject "The Realty of Equality." She took the position that inequality of the sexes exists only in the functional differences peculiar to each.

"Yet there has been inequality of a sort as a result of social traditions long accepted," she said. This is being obliterated, she added, by women who are entering business and professional life prepared to face the things they undertake without any thought of sex. To such women ready and equipped to succeed the doors of opportunity will be opened without any 'creaking or fussing,'" she said.

Women's equality with men has brought with it the phenomenon of the unmarried woman in business which Miss Ernst characterized as one of the most serious of its complications.

"It possesses strong possibilities for a social tragedy for a period, which may be avoided only by deliberate action," she said. "I can offer no better objective for a women's organization such as this than the analysis and control of this growing problem. I have always preached marriage to the young women with whom I have come in contact. I think as time goes on we will have to preach it awfully hard to get enough of it done."

The spinster of today is a very different person from the spinster of a generation ago, she said. In the early years of the present century the majority of girls who left school intended to marry within a few years, but now, she estimated, 95 per cent of them are interested in careers, and marriage has become a secondary consideration.

Miss Ernst shared the porgram with Dr. Vera Young, of Chillicothe, president of the Missouri Federation. Dr. Young reviewed the growth of the Federation since it was founded in St. Louis three years ago.

The meeting was a feature of a two-day conference which ends today.

OREGON FOREST FIRES ABATED, CALIFORNIA AREA IN FLAMES

Several Settlements Threatened in Latter State; Ukiah Apparently Saved.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 14. — Improvement in the forest fire situation in Oregon was indicated today in reports from the Western fronts where during the last week flames have transformed forests into ruins. However, 40 fires were burning over an area of 60,000 acres of brush land in California, threatening several settlements.

More than 300 men had been mustered to combat the California fires, which are in an area around Ukiah which was swept by flames in 1922. Last night concentration of forces and equipment apparently saved the town. The threat was still lurking tonight, however. Most of the fires were in Humboldt and Mendocino counties. Flames on the fire line were visible from the streets of Ukiah during the night and residents were ready to flee if a conflagaration started in the town.

The pall of smoke from Oregon's fire had covered half the State today. Travelers from Eastern Oregon reported a haze so thick that driving on the Columbia River Highway east of the mountains was difficult. Throughout the city of Portland smoke was so dense today that visibility did not extend more than three or four blocks at street level.

The Gavel Club is composed of the presidents and immediate past presidents of the service clubs of St. Louis and St. Louis County.

KEWANEE

The magnificent, modern structures which mark the rise and progress of great cities, were all built from the boiler up. Not one has ignored the fact that the heating boiler is of dominant importance.

In former years, the heating boiler was the last thing thought of. It was merely an incident. Few owners of buildings actually knew what boilers they had. And they cared less.

Since then, the world has discovered that the success of every fine building depends on its heating boiler, and now it's the FIRST thing that's thought of.

Those buildings equipped with the KEWANEE ALL-STEEL (riveted) FIREBOX BOILER — which lasts forever and a day — are permanently-paying investments. This boiler saves their tenants — saves their fuel — saves their profits. This boiler has proved a boon to city and rural schools which no longer indulge in prolonged shut downs for "lack of heat" or "boiler repairs". Apartment-house owners no longer have countless unsatisfactory explanations to make to freezing tenants.

The Kewanee All-steel [riveted] Firebox Boiler is not only the best and most lasting heating boiler in the world, but it is also SMOKELESS with any type of fuel and saves you 25 per cent on your fuel-cost. See or telephone our branch Manager in your city.

SHOUSE IN DENOUNCING TARIFF, RAKES HOOVER

"President Willing to Accept Whatever His Party Can Get Away With."

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—A vigorous attack on the pending tariff bill and on President Hoover was made today by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, in an address at a luncheon of the Massachusetts Democratic State Committee.

Declaring that the Republican party was "striving to burden the country with a tariff monstrosity that in many of its provisions is the most vicious, the most reprehensible, the most unnecessary in our economic history," the Democratic leader described President Hoover as "willing to accept whatever his party can get away with."

"While all this has been going on, what have we heard from the White House" Shouse asked. "Not a word since that message in which the President told Congress that tariff changes should be limited to those industries that snowed a real depression, resulting in unemployment, as a result of foreign competition.

"Larcenous Hash."

"We have heard from his self-appointed interpreters. They continue to assert that the President will not stand for the wholesale tariff raid. But what sort of a Chief Executive is it who would sit back and permit his own Congress to make a larcenous hash of its whole session—the session he called for a specific purpose, farm relief—when by a word he could direct the flow of legislation into any channel he desired?"

Shouse said that the President's apologists, "who wish the country to believe that the President is waiting to smash the indefensible measure with a veto, are painting a picture of an Executive so feeble, so futile, so destitute of leadership, so lacking in self-assertion, that no political foe would dare present it.

"Of course it is not a true picture. The President is willing to accept whatever his party can get away with—else he would have stopped the foray, as he did the debenture, with one blast."

Overlooked Lobbyists.

"Much attention has been given in the newspapers the last few days to the fact that the President of the United States properly and publicly excoriated an alleged lobbyist for shipbuilding interests. I commend the President for his position, but may I not ask why he confines his condemnation to this one individual who is claiming in the courts that he has not been fully paid by his clients? The President cannot be ignorant of the fact with which everybody else in Washington is familiar, that from the very opening day of this extra session of Congress the town has swarmed with lobbyists for every possible interest that could be benefittel in any posible way by a revision of the tariff, and yet not a word, not a suggestion has come from the President concerning this horde of privilege seekers.

A Pennsylvania Tariff.

"The plain truth is, the pending tariff bill is a tariff of Pennsylvania, by Pennsylvania, for Pennsylvania. The charge is unhesitatingly made that Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Manufacturers' Association of Pennsylvania, has had more to do with framing the provisions of the bill—at least as they affect all Pennsylvania industries—than have any three members of the House. Instead of being designated as the Hawley-Smoot bill, this proposed piece of legislation should be known as the Grundy-Reed bill in order that history may record its real authorship.

"Either the bill will be materially changed or else it will not be passed, and such changes as are made, such betterments and improvements, will be due to the fight the Democrats of the Senate are waging against its intolerable provisions."

BALTIMORE ENDURANCE PLANE TURNS BACK ON FLIGHT WEST

Pilots on Transcontinental Attempt Say They Could Not Attain Safe Altitude.

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 14.—The monoplane City of Baltimore, which took off from here early today for Los Angeles on an attempted trans-continental refueling endurance flight, returned to Municipal Airport at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

The pilots said they were unable to gain a safe altitude and that after flying as far west as Las Vegas, N. M., they decided to return to Wichita. They announced their attempted cross-country endurance flight probably would be abandoned.

Admits Kidnaping Story Was Lie.

Afraid that he would be punished if he returned home after remaining out late, Carl Szerzinski, 17 years old, 2224 Montgomery street, tied his feet with a strip of canvas and told police that he had been taken for a ride and thrown out of an automobile at Russell boulevard and Longfellow place, where he was found at 4 a. m. yesterday. After questioning by police, he admitted that the story was false.

Hotel Accountants to Meet.

Alvin J. Benner of the Pace, Gore & McLaren accounting firm, will give an address on "Capital Assets."

NEW PARADE ROUTE FOR VEILED PROPHET

Will Traverse Widened Olive Street and Avoid Vandeventer Avenue.

Changes in the route of the Veiled Prophet parade, for the first time in 20 years, were announced yesterday by the committee in charge of this year's program. The 1929 parade, to be held the evening of Oct. 8, will be routed to traverse widened Olive street and to avoid Vandeventer avenue, now under reconstruction.

The new route will be:

Start from the den on Rankin avenue.

West on Laclede avenue to Sarah street.

North on Sarah to Olive street.

East on Olive to Jefferson avenue.

North on Jefferson to Washington avenue.

East on Washington to Broadway.

South on Broadway to Olive street.

West on Olive to Jefferson avenue.

South on Jefferson to Market street.

West on Market to Ranken and Laclede.

The new route will occupy the same time as the old one and will cover virtually the same distance. Broadway having been substituted for Fourth street on the east to offset the substitution of Sarah street for Vandeventer avenue on the west. The parade will start at the usual time, 7:15 p. m.

The change in this year's route will be the first important change since the line of march was extended west from Jefferson avenue to Vandeventer avenue, and that, in turn, was the first important departure since the western boundary was moved from Eighteenth street. It has not been decided whether this year's route will be permanent.

The theme of this year's parade and the fifty-first annual ball to follow on Oct. 9 at the Coliseum will be announced later.

BRITON IGNORES COURT, FLEES WITH DAUGHTER

Los Angeles Officers Seek Him in Australia—Child Awarded Mother in Divorce.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 14.—The reported flight of Gerald C. Mumby, former British Army Colonel, to Australia with his 7-year-old daughter, whose custody had been awarded to Mrs. Mumby, occupied the attention of Los Angeles officials today.

District Attorney Buron Fitts cabled Brisbane authorities requesting that the child be held for deportation, and Attorney William J. McNichols, counsel for Mrs. Mumby, asked that felony charges be filed against Mumby.

Mrs. Mumby was awarded final decree of divorce from Mumby here yesterday. She had testified that her husband had spent several thousand dollars upon an actress, and upon schooling for the actress' son, while she herself had been froced to call upon her parents for financial aid.

Mumby was reported to have arrived in Brisbane Sept. 6. Since then British Consular authorities have been exchanging telegrams with District Attorney Fitts in an effort to determine the legal status of Mumby and the child.

Mrs. Mumby said her husband who posed as a film director, previously had been married to Adele Covert of New York. They were divorced in 1920.

ANTHONY WAYNE MEMORIAL AT TOLEDO IS DEDICATED

Secretary Good Calls General "Second Soldier and First Fighter of Revolution."

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 14.—A bronze memorial to Anthony Wayne, known as Mad Anthony, American military hero, was dedicated at the battlefield of Fallen Timbers, near here today to mark the place where the General led American troops to a decisive victory over the Indians, Aug. 20, 1794, which saved for the United States the territory between the Great Lakes and the Ohio River.

The statue was unveiled by Miss Imogene Van Camp of Columbus, O., descendant of William Sloane, a bugler in Wayne's army, in the presence of William Wayne, Paoli, Pa., a direct descendant of the General, and Mrs. Fredrika Hull and Miss Rilla Hull of Maumee, O., descendants of Chife Little Turtle, who was Wayne's opponent.

The memorial is the work of Brunce Wilder Saville. It depicts Gen. Wayne standing between a white settler and an Indian brave.

Secretary of War Good, in a speech, eulogized the General as the "second soldier and first fighter of the Revolution."

ONE MINER KILLED, FOUR IMPRISONED BY CAVE-IN

Two Engineers Employed in Pennsylvania Colliery Escape; Rescue Crew at Work.

By the Associated Press.

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., Sept. 14.—Seven men, including two engineers who later escaped, were imprisoned in the Buck Mountain colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal & Navigation Co. near here today.

Rescue crews, after several hours of digging, sighted the lifeless body of one of the miners. The fate of the remaining four was unknown.

The miners were starting work on a new section when the cave-in occurred, burying them 15 feet below the earth's surface.

The two rescued, John Davies and Edward Mockitis, both of Mahanoy City, were nearer the surface than their companions and were easily rescued from the shaft. Davies was unhurt, but Mockitis suffered a fractured skull.

Rescuers reported that several tons of earth must be removed before the entombed men could be reached. They said that they could hear the cries of at least one man.

LAVARRE ON STAND BERATES PUBLIC UTILITY COMPANIES

"Everything About Them Rotten," He Says at Southern Newspaper Control Trial.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 14.—A vigorous attack upon power companies and public utilities corporations was made in Federal Court today by William Lavarre, one of the principals in the litigation over the control of four Southern newspapers purchased with money put up by the International Paper Co., a subsidiary of the International Paper & Power Co.

"Everything about the power companies and public utilities is rotten," Lavarre asserted from the witness stand. Other remarks were so pointed that he later apologized to the Court for using unseemly language.

Lavarre's outburst came during his cross-examination in the hearing of the suit brought against him by Harold Hall, who seeks to establish an equal interest with him in the control of the newspapers.

VETERAN OF ARGONNE GETS $5290 JUDGMENT

Raymond Tucker Also to Receive $57 a Month for Rest of Life.

Raymond Tucker, 34 years old, of 2344 South Spring avenue, a disabled soldier, was awarded a judgment of $5290 against the Government, representing back compensation plus interest since May 11, 1925, and $57.50 a month for life by Federal Judge Faris yesterday.

Tucker, a former machine gunner in the Seventy-Eighth Division, was struck in the right arm by a shell fragment Oct. 23, 1918 in the battle of the Argonne. He was subsequently discharged from Walter Reed Hospital as a disabled veteran and his compensation fixed at $57.50 a month.

On May 11, 1925 the Veterans' Bureau stopped the compensation on the ground that Tucker had received vocational training and was able to support himself as a salesman.

Evidence was introduced at the hearing before Judge Faris to show that Tucker's arm is useless and that his condition is such that he can not work regularly.

Assistant United States District Attorney Claude Crooks, who was also wounded in the Argonne offensive, represented the Government at the hearing and announced that the court's award will not be contested.

WHY SWITCHING RATE OF L. & N. WAS DENIED

I. C. C. Points Out That Line Has Proprietary Interest in Terminal Association.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today made public its reasons for disapproving rate schedules proposed by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, whereby that company would absorb only $3.15 of the $4.95, which the Alton & Southern charges per car for interchange of freight in the East St. Louis switching district.

The Louisville & Nashville contended before the commission that since the Terminal Railway Association—the Alton & Southern's competitor in East St. Louis—charged $3.15 per car for freight interchange, the shipper should pay the $1.80 difference if the Alton & Southern was used.

In disapproving the proposed schedules, the commission pointed out that the Louisville & Nashville was one of the owners of the Terminal Association and intimated that as such, it might have an interest in giving business to the Terminal.

When the Terminal reduced its charges in June, 1928, from $4.95 to $3.15 per car, the Alton & Southern's interchange business dropped almost one-third. Later, the trunk lines entering East St. Louis sought to eliminate the Alton & Southern as a participating carrier in certain tariff naming joint through rates, but last spring the commission ordered these proposed schedules canceled as unjustified.

Speaking of the Louisville & Nashville's interest in the Terminal, the commission, in its opinion made public today, said: "Where respondent (the L. & N.) is one of the proprietary lines that approved the reduction in the switching charge of the Terminal, and it now seeks to use that reduction as the basis for refusing to absorb more than $3.15 of the charges of a carrier that competes with the Terminal without offering any evidence regarding the reasonableness of the Terminal's switching charge.

"The fact that the Terminal is operated on a cost-of-service basis indicates that its shipping charge is not a maximum reasonable charge.

"It is the view of the respondent," the opinion concluded, "that the burden of establishing the reasonableness of its shipping charge of $4.95 is upon protestant (the A. & S.), but we have frequently found that so far as the shipping public is concerned the effect of a switching absorption is to establish a joint rate. Consequently, the burden of justifying the increase resulting from the considered changes rests upon respondent. That burden has not been sustained."

Commissioner Thomas F. Woodlock dissented from the majority but without stating his reasons.

CAR UNION LEADER UPHELD IN EFFORT TO END STRIKE

Delegates Rebuke New Orleans District Chief for Criticising National President.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 14.—Upholding efforts of W. D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Car and Electric Railway Employes, to obtain a settlement of the New Orleans street car strike, delegates to the annual convention of the organization today delivered a rebuke to J. Foster, president of the New Orleans District Labor Council, for his criticism of Mahon.

Foster yesterday telegraphed asking the convention to condemn the action of Mahon in approving the compromise suggested by officials of the American Federation of Labor for ending the strike. Replying to Foster, the convention said, "The delegates resent your unwarranted criticism."

Mahon, when he received details of the proposed settlement, said he felt definite assurance that all strikers would be re-employed must be given before it would be acceptable.

UNEMPLOYMENT CUTS DOWN WAGE GAIN RATE

Dr. W. T. Foster Says Losses of Jobless May Offset Increases of Those at Work.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Dr. William T. Foster, director of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research, today amplified a statement on wages he made before the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Aug. 29.

"To determine the share of wage earnings as a whole in our recent prosperity, it is necessary to take account of changes in the numbers who are unemployed," said Foster. "The man who has no job gains little comfort from reading about the gains made by the man who has a job. In view of what we actually do know about the decreases in the numbers employed in manufacturing industries, it is entirely possible that the gains in real wages during the past few years of those who have had jobs, have been wholly offset by the losses of those who have not had jobs.

"We shall not know whether wage earners as a whole have had any share whatever in the prosperity which seems to be revealed from day to day in stock market reports, until our present fragmentary and misleading statistics of the unemployed are replaced with comprehensive and reliable data. Fortunately such data can readily be obtained and fortunately one important step towards obtaining the needed data will be taken in the next census of population."

PORTER KILLED OVER DICE GAME ON TRAIN

E. W. Odell Shot, Apparently by Passenger, on Illinois Central's Chickasaw.

E. W. Odell, Negro chef of Memphis, was shot to death early yesterday on the Chickasaw, St. Louis to Memphis Illinois Central limited, in what was thought to have been a row over a crap game with a party of passengers.

The shooting occurred near Tilden, Ill. Information given the police at Carbondale, Ill., when the train arrived there, was that a drinking party had been in progress aboard the train, which left St. Louis at 11:30 p. m. Friday, and that the trouble started when the chef was denied permission to enter a dice game. The body, with five bullet wounds, was taken off the train at Carbondale and returned to Tilden.

W. E. Crawford, conductor of a Pullman car attached to the train, said the Negro had insisted that he be allowed to participate in the game, and the passengers had appealed to the train conductor. When the conductor and Crawford encountered the Negro in a smoking compartment, Crawford said, O'Dell, already armed with a knife, drew a pistol and fired, the bullet going wild when Crawford grabbed his hand. Crawford said someone in the car instantly opened fire and killed the Negro.

A previous encounter between the passengers and the Negro was said to have occurred in the buffet car.

Coroner W. W. Byrne of St. Clair County ordered the return of the Negro's body to Belleville for an inquest, since the killing is thought to have occurred in St. Clair County.

Passengers who were questioned about the shooting denied knowing who fired the shots. Many explained that while they were present, their backs were turned and they did not see who had fired the weapon.

PARADE OF 150 HISTORICAL FLOATS AT BALTIMORE

Many Hurt in Rush for Exits at Stadium During Rain; None Seriously.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 14.—The biggest crowds since Baltimore began its bi-centennary celebration turned out today for a pageant which carried the city's history and progress from the early settlement to the present.

While 50,000 occupied seats at the stadium, where the pageant completed its journey, many thousands more crowded streets and sidewalks in a parade route several miles long through which the 150 floats wended their way.

A sharp shower struck, as the pageant came to an end and a rush for exits at the stadium resulted in injuries to many. Ten were treated at Union Memorial Hospital, but physicians said injuries were light.

Tonight was given over to a street carnival and appropriate church services tomorrow are to mark the closing of the four-day celebration.

FARIS REJECTS INSTALLMENT PLAN FOR FEDERAL COURT

Refuses to Allow Liquor Law Violator to Pay $50 on Account.

Federal Judge Faris' court will not go into the installment business, the Judge announced yesterday when Joseph Weber, 3813 Weber road, St. Louis County, asked permission to pay $50 on account on a $500 fine. Weber was granted a temporary stay of execution last May when he was convicted of possession of property intended for the manufacture of liquor.

"While it has become popular to sell stoves, refrigerators, radios and automobiles on time payments," the Judge said, "I don't think the Federal courts ought to go into the installment business and this court won't. I will extend the stay until Oct. 3. That will give the defendant an opportunity to pay the fine or make the necessary preparations."

INQUEST FAILS TO DISCLOSE HOW CHILD WAS FATALLY HURT

Open Verdict Is Returned in the Death of Girl 8, Fatally Burned.

A Coroner's jury was unable to determine yesterday how the clothing of Josephine Radil, 8 years old, 1719A South Fourteenth street, caught fire, resulting in her death Friday at City Hospital.

Mrs. Julia Radil testified she was attracted by her daughter's screams in a rear yard on Wednesday. She looked through a window and saw the child in flames. She dashed to her side and extinguished the flames with a blanket, but not in time to be of material assistance. The girl told her mother that she was not playing with matches and could give no reason for her clothes being afire.

An open verdict was returned.

FIVE PUBLIC HIGH SCHOOLS ENROLL 12,290 PUPILS

Total Expected to Be About 200 More Than Last Year at End of Month.

Enrollment in the five public high schools of St. Louis at the close of the second week of the school year totaled 12,290, indicating the schools will have about 200 more pupils than last year at the close of the month.

The greatest increase is shown in the Cleveland, Soldan and Beaumont districts.

DR. HARRISON QUITS PULPIT AT MEMORIAL PRESBYTERIAN

Will Preach Tonight on "Why I Am Leaving St. Louis"; Going to Minneapolis.

The Rev. Dr. Norman B. Harrison has resigned the pastorate of Memorial Presbyterian Church, Skinker and Wydown boulevards, to become pastor of Oliver Presbyterian Church, Minneapolis, Minn. His sermon tonight will be on the theme, "Why I Am Leaving St. Louis."

Dr. Harrison said last night that his relations with his congregation had been harmonious, and that relations with fellow clergymen had been pleasant. He and his congregation hold to fundamentalist tenets. He came from Seattle in 1924 to the pastorate of Washington and Compton Church, as it then was, and he directed the removal of the church to its present location.

The severance of his pastoral relations with Memorial Church will be passed on by the St. Louis Presbytery tomorrow. His successor has not been chosen.

TWO CONFESS TURNING IN FALSE ALARMS OF FIRE

Walter Sebold and Anton Brunsmann First Deny Then Admit the Charge.

A warrant charging Walter Sebold, 6626 Macklind avenue, and Anton Brunsmann, 4884 Hamburg avenue, with turning in false alarms of fire early Friday was issued yesterday by the Circuit Attorney's office. The charge is a felony which provides punishment up to three years in the penitentiary. Minimum punishment of six months in the workhouse or of a fine up to $500 is also provided.

Police took the young men into custody at Gravois and Tyrolean avenues, following the ringing in of three false alarms in the vicinity. At first they denied the charge, but later told of having been drinking and of turning in the alarms on their way home. The alarms came from Dahlia and Terrace avenues and from Kingshighway boulevard and Finkmann avenue. These, Brunsmann said, he had caused. Sebold said he cut his hand breaking the glass on a fire alarm box at Tyrolean and Salzburger avenues.

Morganford Bus Line Terminal

The Morganford-Kingshighway-Loughborough bus line, operated by the Public Service Co., will terminate at Devonshire and Macklind avenues, beginning tomorrow, instead of Gravois avenues. The Morganford road as heretofore, will be known as the Southern-Loughborough bus route No. 1.

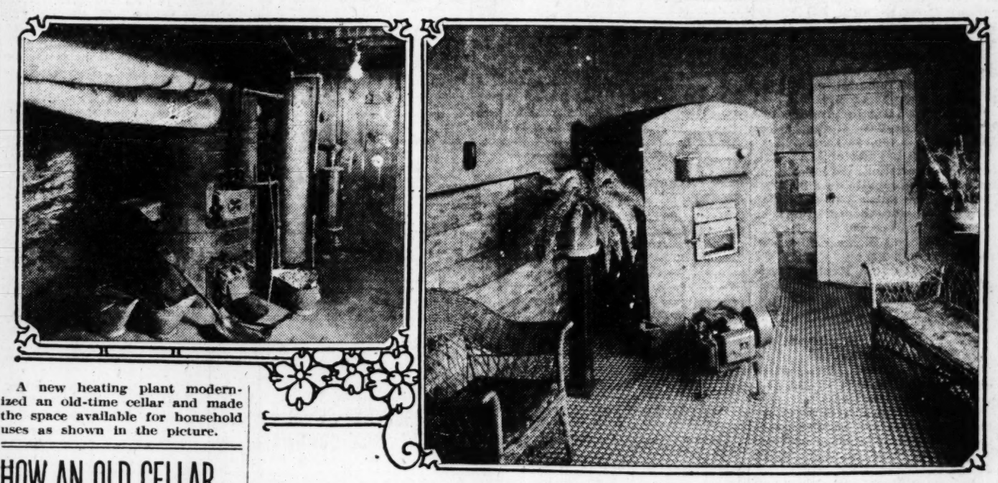
SEE WHAT MODERN IZATION DID HERE!



A new heating plant modernized an old-time cellar and made the space available for household uses as shown in the picture.

HOW AN OLD CELLAR WAS MODERNIZED

Why a Lindell Boulevard Householder Rid Out the Basement.

One homeowner, when discussing modernization recently said that the installation of a fuel oil heater eliminated his cellar. Investigation showed that his home was an old house and when equipping the residence with a modern heating plant, a small space was partitioned off in the basement sufficiently large to contain the heating plant. The fuel tank, of course, was buried out of doors adjacent to the house. The remainder of the old cellar was cleaned up, walls covered and decorated, woodwork painted, and the space given over to household uses.

The oil burner heating plant is automatic in operation. It acts with what seems to be almost human intelligence. A thermostat is installed in dining room or living room and this automatically regulates the degree of heat in the home.

A thermostat is nothing more than an automatic electrical thermometer which can be set at the temperature desired. For instance if you want your home to be heated at 70 degrees you merely push a little lever below 70, the thermometer automatically turns on oil burner in the basement and it will continue to operate until the temperature upstairs reaches 70 and then it breaks the electrical contact and the burner is shut off.

Oil burners also have safety appliances which work independently of the thermostat. For instance, there is a safety device which prevents the overheating of boiler and another which acts immediately in case the flame should be extinguished for any reason whatsoever.

YOUR HOME IS YOUR CASTLE

The Manner of House Indicates the Manner of Man Within.

No expenditure is so important as that which you make for a home. You are to live in it for a period of years, you will see it every day, and every day your neighbors will see it.

It must have the quality of strength and durability, that is, it must wear; and it must have style. The quality you want for the comfort, safety and welfare of yourself and family; the style you want to satisfy your own and their taste. Both, you want for your neighbors and even passing strangers to judge you by.

INSULATION KEEPS HEAT IN AND THE COLD OUT

Equip the Roof and the Walls of the House With Insulating Material.

Among older houses poor or no insulation is a frequent cause of cold interiors and high fuel bills.

Many of the older residences were constructed only with tarred paper as an insulator—decidedly a makeshift in light of modern building practice.

Basically there are two ways to insulate a house—with a rigid material or with a flexible material. By rigid material is meant tarred paper, wall board or similar product. A flexible material may be a blanket of fluffy wood fiber that looks like sheep wool, or a fine, powder-like substance that is poured between the 2x4's comprising the side supports of the wall.

Dead Air an Insulator.

Dead air spaces made a splendid insulating material and many products are designed with dead air cells to give this protection. Most of the rigid insulating materials are built with dead air cells.

LARGE FAUCET AND NEW PIPE FILL THE BATHTUB QUICKLY

Quick-Filling Bathtub Avoids Tedious Delays and Loss of Temper.

Of all the boons which science has conferred upon the grateful householder that of the quick-filling bathtub probably will be held in high esteem, since every one has experienced the impatience of waiting while a maddeningly slow trickle brought up the level of water in the old-fashioned tub.

Quite often, where pipes are corroded or the pressure is low, the water is uncomfortably cool, before the tub is full enough to use.

A large supply pipe and large faucet can now remedy this fault, filling a tub in about one minute.

ADDS ANOTHER ROOM TO HOME

Spare Bedroom Convenient for the Occasional Overnight Guest.

The average home owner, however, cannot afford to add another room to the house with the sole idea of having available a spare bedroom for the chance guest.

The modern wall bed solves the problem of the extra room. The wall bed is hid behind a door in a closet, the bed being swung out and lowered when needed. The closet space behind may be great enough to use as a dressing room or it may be a simple recess.

Something to Remember.

No matter if you are modernizing your house with no intention of selling, salability should always be considered. The selling value of a house is the only adequate measure of its worth.

CLASSIC LINES BEAUTIFY THE MODERN RADIATOR

New Radiators Add Modern Note to Rooms Equipped With the Old Type.

The modern radiator fits into any room and harmonizes with any type of interior decoration. Architects and interior decorators both regard it as an important factor in making the homes they design and furnish beautiful and attractive.

The present-day radiator, with its graceful, narrow tubes owes part of its beauty to these characteristics which give it grandeur.

This type of radiator is of recent design. Until a few years ago, radiators were made with wide columns. These old fashioned radiators were a marked improvement over exposed pipes that were once used for heating buildings.

The new-type radiator was developed for two reasons. It is first of all better mechanically, as it has a larger heating area in proportion to its size than its predecessor. It is, furthermore, more beautiful.

The obliging manufacturer also builds a low, broad radiator which can be enclosed in a metal or wooden cover thus virtually becoming a piece of furniture.

These low radiator covers may be used as window seats if by chance the radiator is placed under the sill of the window.

Such an arrangement as this places the radiator out of sight. The cover of the radiator may be finished to match the furniture of the room.

WEATHERSTRIPS IN WINDOWS MAKE FOR FUEL ECONOMY

Because the Volume of Inleaking Air Determines the Heating Cost.

Comfortable interior temperatures, economically obtained, mainly depend on keeping the warm air in and the cold air out. Just one ordinarily loose window can admit enough outside cold air to chill the room. This, of course, requires extra fuel.

And, as the cracks around the window increase, due to the seasoning and shrinkage of wood, this volume of inleaking air will increase. An increased fuel consumption will be the inevitable result.

So, famous architects, for their finest buildings, and for their own homes, carefully weatherstrip doors and windows with the best device they know—and save one-third their fuel.

Closets Always Useful.

When modernizing the home and remodeling the interior look over the plans to see if it is possible to provide another closet. Closet space is particularly desirable from the housewife's standpoint, and it is always safe to add another one if the space is available.

CHANGES POSSIBLE IN AVERAGE HOUSE

Interior Decorating Can Be Planned for Home or Several Rooms.

Modernization is an all embracing word. Your home may have the modern lines that are now in vogue yet contain many accessories that are out of date or the home may be lacking in those conveniences that have recently come into such generally accepted use.

Home modernizing really starts with the interior of the home. It is here that the home life functions and it is only right that the home be equipped with the newly devised equipment that makes living so worth while.

Even though the exterior lines of the dwelling be smartly up to date, now is the time to thoughtfully consider the interior to see if you are receiving full satisfaction from it.

Marked changes are possible in the average house. The layout of the rooms is often inconvenient and unsatisfactory. Certain rooms may need enlarging or alterations. A lack of closets is a handicap to the housekeeper. The stairs to the upper floor may be inaccessible or narrow.

Changes in wall decorations are also another angle of home modernizing.

Standard wall paper, however, comes out each year with new designs and color effects and will always remain in vogue.

Lately canvass covered walls, painted with several coats of flat paint, have been popular.

Many newly constructed homes use no wall covering, the plaster being tinted and finished in a rough yet striking texture.

ABOUT BASEMENT FLOORS

Sanitary, Germ and Fireproof Floors Are Basement Necessities.

Many of the older residences still have dirt floors in the basement, or wooden platforms over the excavation. This is not only an unsanitary condition but also an expensive one. Dirt floors hold moisture which breeds microbes. Dirt is also tracked up to the main living floor where it grinds into the floors and rugs with resulting cleaning expenses.

It is an easy matter to install a sanitary floor in the basement. Different types of composition, granitoid and concrete floors may be laid directly over old wood floors without causing much inconvenience to the householder.

FOLDERS ON ST. LOUIS FOR FOREIGN BUYERS

They Are Printed in Four Languages — Distributed by Industrial Club.

Attractive folders printed in English, French, Portuguese and Spanish, setting forth the advantages of St. Louis as a leading export center, are being distributed by the Advertising Committee of the Industrial Club of St. Louis to large buyers in various foreign markets.

Headed, "St. Louis — One of America's Leading Centers of Manufacture, Commerce, Art and Learning," the folder bears photographs of the municipal docks on the Mississippi River, skyline of the city, the Municipal Theater and Washington and St. Louis Universities.

"St. Louis is the sixth largest manufacturing city in the United States," the folder sets forth. "Its products are of remarkable variety and interest, including more than 61 per cent of all the different kinds of goods manufactured in this country. As the key city of the rich Mississippi Valley—whose busy cities and towns are famous for their manufactures—it is the central shipping point for a vast output. From it, all-water routes serve the markets of the world. In art, in science and in education, St. Louis ranks high; a great, active metropolis, full of interest to the visitor, and a business center which offers unusual advantages for buyers of reliable, up-to-date American merchandise."

Listed in the folder are 269 of the principal lines now exported from St. Louis. "Nearly 3000 great industries, experienced in export requirements," it continues, "are waiting to serve you from this source with better goods, lower prices and direct-route shipments. Here, in the heart of the busiest section of the United States, are excellent sources of supply, and good markets for many of the products which your country sells."

Distribution of the folder is in line with the Advertising Committee's foreign trade advertising program, designed to increase exports of St. Louis. It is being distributed both through St. Louis manufacturers and direct-by-mail to foreign buyers.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

Orders, factory productions and other business items, compiled daily by Standard Statistics Co., Inc., New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—National Canners' Association estimates that 1929 crops of there great canning staples—corn, peas and tomatoes—will show the second largest total in history with 47,379,700 cases for combined pack. This would be about 6,400,000 cases above 1928, and augurs well for excellent 1929 profits for the two leading can companies, American Can and Continental Can. Portland Cement production during August aggregated 18,594,000 barrels, while shipments were 23,019,000 barrels. This resulted in a 4,425,000 barrel reduction in stocks from previous month to a total of 20,101,000 barrels at end of August. Although August witnessed a step in right direction for reduction of excessive inventories, stocks at mills were still 3.8 per cent higher than a year ago. Railroads—July gross of 182 class 1 carriers aggregated $557,568,000, a gain of 8.5 per cent over year ago, while net operating income of $122,782,000 was 28.9 per cent higher. Record efficiency of railway operation is permitting this large gain in earnings on a moderately higher gross. For the seven months net operating income of $685,508,192 was 22.9 per cent over 1928 period on only a 5.7 per cent increase in gross. Rubber—Consumption of crude rubber in July of 38,274 tons was somewhat lower than the 38,274 tons in July. For the first eight months of 1929, consumption amounted to 349,108 tons, approximately 20 per cent above year ago. Stocks of rubber on hand Aug. 31 totaled 90,769 tons, a reduction of 4767 tons from previous month. Stocks afloat Aug. 31 amounted to 41,619 tons, as contrasted with 39,859 tons on July 31.

WEST COAST UTILITIES CONTROL IS SOUGHT

Southern Cal. Edison, Pacific Gas and Pacific Lighting Get Offer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—A possibility of a deal involving several leading Pacific coast utilities appeared today with announcement of an offer by the newly organized Public Utility Holding Corp., sponsored by Harris Forbes & Co. and United Founders Corp. interests, to exchange its stock for stocks of the Southern California Edison Co., the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., Pacific Lighting Corp. and the Portland Electric Power Co.

The plan encountered an obstacle, however, in the opinion of R. W. Miller, executive vice president of the Pacific Lighting Co., who stated that the terms of exchange were arbitrary and failed to take into consideration the probability of varying increases in the business of the companies concerned. He advised stockholders of his company to give careful consideration to the advantages of retaining their voting identity in a corporation listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

The bid by the Harris-Forbes group is a part of a major race for control of several of the leading public utility companies in the West. Leading holding companies have been active recently in acquiring operating units west of the Mississippi. A few weeks ago, reports were current that some of the Pacific Coast utility companies were about to merge themselves.

The exchange terms offered holders of common stock of the companies mentioned follow:

For each share of Southern California Edison common, two shares of Public Utility Holding common with warrants attached and one detached perpetual warrant to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

For each share of Pacific Gas and Electric common, two shares of Public Utility Holding common with warrants attached and two detached perpetual warrants to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

For each share of Pacific Lighting common three shares of Public Utility Holding common with warrants attached and two detached perpetual warrants to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

Tow two shares of Portland Electric common, three shares of Public Utility common with warrants attached and two detached perpetual warrants to purchase common stock at $30 a share.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Clearing house statement as reported by Dow, Jones & Co., exchanges $1,590,000,000; balances, $293,000,000. Weekly exchanges, $6,520,000,000; balances, $1,151,000,000.

NEW WYORK, Sept. 14.—The silver bullion market was comparatively quiet here today, following the spectacular selling in China yesterday, which sent prices here down 5c per oz. to the lowest level since 1915. The price this morning was 50.34 cents an ounce, a drop of ¾ of a cent from yesterday's closing quotation. Local quotations were on a parity with the London price of 23¾ pence, off 1-16 of a pence. Bullion brokers here were of the opinion today that the Chinese speculators, who yesterday unloaded their holdings and sold 30,000,000 ounces short, would soon have to buy silver back. Increased production of silver, mainly in this country, was stated to have been a main factor in yesterday's decline.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Treasury receipts Sept. 12 were $12,445,895; expenditures $13,651,172; balances, $34,722,-945.

COTTON PRICES CLOSE NEAR LOW FOR DAY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The cotton market was lower today under liquidation together with some Southern and local selling, accompanied by talk of increased hedging next week should clearing weather conditions develop as expected. December contracts sold off to 18.80c and March to 19.08c, and closing prices were the lowest of the day on nearly all positions with the tone barely steady at net declines of 31 to 33 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 10 to 14 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and overnight selling orders which seemed to come partly from the South. There was fresh buying and some further covering which steadied prices during the early trading but the demand was light and the market worked gradually lower.

The report of the Census Bureau showing domestic consumption of 558,113 bales for the month of August against 526,340 last year was somewhat above expectations but had little or no apparent effect on the immediate market. The figures probably brought in a little buying or covering, but it was supplied on very slight bulges, and the lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading.

October sold off to 18.35c or back to the low price of Thursday and January eased off to 18.78c. More trade buying was reported on this late decline but it was not sufficiently aggressive to make much impression on the market.

The prospect for clearing weather over the week-end came in for a good deal of comment, to the effect that it would probably speed up picking and the movement of cotton to market with a consequent increase in hedging next week.

Liverpool cables said there had been continental buying and calling in the market there, but that it had been supplied by realizing. These cables also reported a fair Spinning demand but said that yarns were quieter, with spinners losing ground. Weekend reports from the domestic goods markets were considered encouraging but were not generally discussed as a factor in the immediate market.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 120,000 against 56,000 bales last year.

Spot quiet; mids 18.70c.

New Orleans Spot Cotton.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The cotton seed oil market was dull and barely steady, close unchanged to 5 points lower. The weakness of cotton and grains promoted local pressure and scattered evening-up for over the week-end. The buying power was unusually light and scattered. Sales 3200 brls; prime crude $7.62½, prime summer yellow spot, $9; September closed $9.25; October, $9.38; December, 9.48; January, $9.52; March, $9.60.

WHEAT PRICE DOWN ON ARGENTINE RAIN

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 14.—Argentine rain and slow European demand for North American wheat combined to carry wheat prices lower at the week-end season. There was report of light frost in Iowa, but corn also finished lower.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was in light offering. Prices on No. 2 red were down ½@1½c. No. 3s were fairly steady. Suitable milling qualities were wanted. Hard wheat was off 1c. Mills absorbed the light offering. Basis was a little better, with No. 2 going at 11¼c below the Chicago December figure. Corn was 1c to 1½c lower, with late sales at the smallest decline. Shippers, elevators and industries were good buyers. Oats were ½c to 1c lower. Offerings were moderate and there was a fair demand from local trade and shippers.

December wheat sold off a full cent after a fractionally lower start. Winnipeg ranged down more than cent early. Liverpool wheat closed 1¼ to 1⅜d lower. Corn was fractionally lower early.

December wheat opened at $1.40⅞. May wheat $1.50½. Dec. corn $1.00¾.

Local wheat receipts, which were 162,400 bushels, compared with 98,400 a week ago and 170,800 a year ago, included 66 cars local and 50 through. Corn receipts, which were 144,000 bushels, compared with 86,400 a week ago and 33,600 a year ago, included 83 cars local and 18 to ourb. Oats receipts, which were 57,200 bushels, compared with 61,600 a week ago and 40,000 a year ago, included 18 cars local and 8 through. Hay receipts were 13 cars local.

RAIN IN ARGENTINE SENDS WHEAT PRICE DOWNWARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Jolted by indications that Argentine drought paralleling the widespread damage done this season in Canada was ended, the wheat market here quickly flattened out today. Besides European demand for wheat from North America appeared to be practically at a halt, with shipping and storage facilities reported filled. At Buffalo, Montreal and elsewhere East. Buying credited to the Northwest, with predictions of unwelcome dry weather in domestic spring wheat territory next week, failed to act as an offset.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 1¼c to 1⅞c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¼c to 1¼c down, oats ⅜c to ⅝c off and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 10c.

Free selling that came largely from houses with connections East dominated the wheat market today, especially in the late dealings. It seemed apparent that many holders of wheat had concluded to let go rather than face further developments in Argentina over the week-end. The fact that a break of 3c a bushel in Buenos Aires wheat quotations was reported inspired the selling movement, which went hand in hand with report that in addition to rains yesterday, beneficial rainfall took place today in the center and south of Cordoba and Santa Fe Provinces, Argentina and also in the South Buenos Aires.

Lowest prices of the day in the wheat market here were reached during the final hour. Rallies proved transient in the face of advices that export business today in North American wheat was confined to small scattered lots, that Buffalo and Montreal elevators were filled and that wheat-laden steamships were tied up at various ports awaiting an outlet. Announcement from high railroad officials northwest that as a rule farmers were plowing and bringing practically no fresh supplies of wheat to market were read with interest, but had little or no immediate effect as a stimulus toward new buying.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat, despite report of light frosts in parts of Iowa. Prices for December delivery of corn fell to below $1 a bushel, a new botto mrecord for the week. In one quarter it was asserted that the 1929 crop as a whole virtually was made, and that the yield would not differ much from the latest official forecast. Provisions averaged slightly firmer, owing to upturns in the value of hogs.

MAJOR STOCK ACTIVITIES ARE FOR ADVANCE

Signs of Nervousness in Speculative Quarters Which Carried Stocks Lower During Week Not Entirely Lacking.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Signs of the nervousness in speculative quarters which has carried prices of leading issues substantially lower this week were not entirely lacking from today's two-hour session of the stock market, but in general the market displayed a firmer undertone, and major operations were toward higher levels. Trading was in good volume, more than 2,100,000 shares changing hands, but was notably less active than last Saturday.

Rather extensive profit-taking was inspired by the prospect of firm money late next week, some predicting that high money rates will persist until October. Some $6,000,000 will be turned over the first of the week in connection with the quarterly income tax payments, Treasury refinancing and regular mid-monthly settlements. The Treasury was reported to have made its customary overdraft in connection with its refinancing. The overdraft is understood to amount to some $150,000,000, pending a large credit at the disposal of the banks for a few days, which is expected temporarily to ease money conditions.

Developments in Utilities.

Paramount in the day's news were developments in the utility field, including the purchase from the Mellon interests of the Frontier Corporation, holding highly valuable power rights in the St. Lawrence Valley, by the Morgan sponsored Niagara Hudson Power Co. Also, the United Founders' Group's new holding company, Public Utility Holding Corporation, offered to exchange its shares for those of Southern California Edison, Pacific Gas and Electric, Pacific Lighting and Portland Electric Power. The former announcement brought some reversal of bullish interest in the power stocks, but the latter announcement came late in the session, and it was apparent that there would be some opposition to the exchange terms.

The rails stocks were notably firm, Baltimore & Ohio rising a couple of points and Louisville & Nashville 3 points to new peaks, and New York Central, Norfolk & Western, New Haven and others making moderate gains. Chesapeake & Ohio, however, slipped back about three points in profit-taking. Renewed buying in the oils was also conspicuous, Standard of New Jersey rising 2 points to equal its record price at 80½. Sun Oil got some 5 points more to another new top.

United Corp. Up.

In the utilities, United Corp., a bargain holding company, was in good demand, and American Water Works, Pacific Lighting and Pacific Gas and Electric made moderate gains. Stone & Webster developed renewed buoyance, making an extreme gain of 9 points. International Hydro-Electric and Federal Water Service gained new peaks. Several leaders of the group sagged under profit-taking, however.

Commercial Solvents, which yesterday announced a 10-for-1 split, shot up 31 points to a new peak of 330, and Case Threshing jumped 15 points to close to its high. A few specialties, including Grigsby-Grunow, Cutler Hammer, and Timken Roller Bearing reached new high levels. Underwood Elliott mounted nearly 6 points, in response to President Wagoner's statement that earnings for the last half of the year would exceed that of the first half, and that foreign business is expanding rapidly. Coppers were inclined to sag, although Granby was sent up about 6 points.

Several leading issues were depressed, American Telephone and U. S. Steel sagging a point or two, while Columbia Gas, American and Foreign Power, Air Reduction, International Telephone, Standard Gas and Western Union lost 3 to 5 points.

Worthington Pump, a strong feature yesterday, dropped 4 points, and most of the department store issues, which were pushed forward as a group yesterday, slipped back a point or two.

Cotton Is Lower.

Commodity markets encountered considerable week-end selling. Cotton futures lost more than $1.50 a bale, and wheat and corn sagged a cent or more on bearish weather reports.

While foreign exchanges generally were firm, sterling was subjected to further pressure, the cable rate reaching a new low for the year at $4.84⅝.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET REVIEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Only a moderate recovery has been reported in the copper market. More urgent needs were evidently supplied by the active buying movement which developed toward the end of August. Demand which had previously been of became entirely effective. Despite the August statistics, showing an increase in stocks for the month, notwithstanding the reduced production and a considerable increase in shipments. The talk of higher prices has entirely subsided, and producers are maintaining the current export at the 18-cent level for electrolytic delivered at Connecticut valley points. The trade is marking time.

Tin market feebly shows any change, with trade dull and price fluctuations narrow.

While the price basis for lead was firm there was a rather disappointing trade demand. Recent heavy purchases were estimated to have taken care of most of the consumers needs for the time being. Only a fair business was reported for zinc but, however, any change in the price situation. Ore also was unchanged.

ANALYSIS OF BUSINESS IS MARKET AID

Prospects of some Disturbance to the Money Market Within the Next Few Weeks Tends to Unsettle Some Buyers.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"That the rate of expansion over 1928 in the second half of 1929 would not equal that in the first half was a foregone conclusion back as far as Jan. 1. The rise in industrial activity from a low to a high level last year put the late months of the current year under a disadvantage in the comparisons. Yet it must be confessed that the surprises so far have been generally on the side of improving business. Actually the index of production for July rose over June and August rose slightly over July. If business has not been steaming ahead recently at the same rate as before it has held its gains. This high level of business activity is no statistical illusion created by an abnormal expansion in two or three selected industries. The improvement is shared by a long list of leading groups. Apparently industry is not fearing the pinch of dear money but finds the recent stabilization in rates sustaining force.

Tight Credit Apprehension.

"A consideration of these fundamentals brought support to the market late in the week. A considerable number of investors have been unsettled, nevertheless, on prospects for some disturbance to the money market within the next three weeks until the seasonal peak of the autumn requirements is passed. Their apprehension has increased with the $522,000,000 expansion in brokers' loans in the last four successive weeks. The danger in brokers' loans always lies in the rapidity of their rate of growth rather than in the outstanding volume. But strangely enough so far increasing market values have more than kept pace with the loan rise. Even now, with respect to 1926, loans at 238.5 stand lower relatively than the market at 243.8. The Federal Reserve statement this week showed a $73,000,000 drop in discounts, with further substantial bill purchases in the open market and even a $10,000,000 purchase of Government securities. The New York ratio rose to 75.4 as against 70.7 a week ago and 66.9 a year ago. The system's ratio rose to 73.7 as against 68.0 at this time last year.

Fund Raising Has Helped.

"Rumors of a further increase in the rediscount rate at New York were circulated freely by some traders during the week, but naturally no further action was taken by the bank. It is difficult to see any basis for further action at this time. The reserve's position was strengthened rather than weakened in the last week. In its present nervous state the market might feel the depressing influence of action now more than in August. Time was when movements in the market were based on business trends. It is an open question now whether with a drastic break in the market business itself could maintain its high level against the handicap of that adversity. The ability of an industry to raise funds through the sale of their shares in a bull market has been a great sustaining influence in the last year.

Selective Feature Not Stressed.

"In weighing the movements of the stock market not enough emphasis has been given this year to its selective features. Up to recently the bull market had been characterized by the more or less uniformity of the advance among the different classes of stocks. Price fluctuations this year have been anything but uniform. With the rise in public utilities since the beginning of the year, for example, the automobile stocks have been drifting downward. Various groups of industrials have moved in different directions. The railroad shares have not been especially responsive to their marked earnings gain. Actually since the beginning of the year the country has witnessed a bear as well as a bull market. As the market has broadened its movement has become more selective. Formation of investment trusts has contributed in this direction by the advent of more discriminating investment judgment. Presumably, therefore, just as the advance has become more selective the decline, when it comes, will present a less uniform spectacle than have former bear markets.

EN STOCKS MAKE YEAR HIGH MARKS IN WEEK'S TRADE

Mercantile-Commerce Later Shows Net Loss for the Period — Four New Low Prices.

It was a "record-making" week on the St. Louis Stock Exchange, though trading as a whole did not set any new pace. It was a case of individual movements. No less than 19 stocks reached new high ground for the year, while four others moved in the opposite direction, to 1929 lows. Several of the comparatively more active shares did not reach either extreme.

International Shoe led in activity and scored a new high of 79¼, but did not hold the full advance, though closing higher. The stock was listed on the New York Stock Exchange during the week. American Investment B made a top of 11½. Corno Mills sold up to 63. A proposed 33 1-3 per cent stock dividend was announced.

First National Bank, Mississippi Valley-Merchants-State Trust, St. Louis Union Trust, Franklin-American and Mercantile-Commerce also made new highs, the last named, however, reacting substantially later.

Moloney Electric and National Bearings Metal also set high marks.

Missouri Portland, Scullin Steel preference, Pedigo-Weber and Hydraulic Brick preferred recorded new lows for the year.

Among those issues not setting records were National Candy and Brown Shoe, which closed lower, and Wagner Electric and Pickrel Walnut, which finished higher.

PRICES UNCHANGED IN DULL BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The bond market found only wavering support in today's dull two-hour session and prices at the close were virtually unchanged from the previous finals. Issues which on Friday sold nominally lower, notably a handful of the low coupon rails, tended to recover their losses in a characteristic readjustment, but buying of these obligations was on a small scale.

The outstanding change in the irregular convertible group was a 4½ point slump in International Telephone 4½s, down to 201, which was also the final quotation. American Telephone 4½s had a net loss of 1¾s in one of the smallest turnovers ever recorded in this normally active debenture. Changes in the remainder of the stock feature group were inconsequential.

Cement company bonds were under pressure in sympathy with the recent weakness of the stocks. North American Cement 6½s dropped 4¾ to 60 and Penn Dixie Cement 6s fell 1 to 74, both new lows. International Cement 5s, on the other hand, gained a minor fraction. Indiana Limestone 6s also touched the new minimum of 76 on a one-point recession.

Other industrials and the utilities proved featureless in common with securities of the United States Government and obligations of foreign origin.

Sales for the dull session approximated only slightly more than $4,500,000.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $1,099,530,400, unchanged; total net demand deposits (average), $18,319,000, increase; time deposits (average), $2,487,290, decrease; clearings week ending 10 o'clock, $8,094,472,529; clearings this day, $1,490,705,712.

TRANSACTIONS ON NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Total sales of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $4,617,000; compared with $8,128,000 yesterday, $4,911,000 a week ago and $4,221,000 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $1,982,333,000, compared with $2,158,245,000 a year ago and $1,832,796,000.

Quotations in Liberty Bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar; that is, for instance a sale printed $99.24 means $99 and twenty-four thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24.

MATCH GOES FIVE SETS BUT BIG BILL WINS EASILY

By Ted Vosburgh.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 14.—In a final round match more one sided than the scores indicate, William T. Tilden II today defeated his old Davis Cup comrade, Francis T. Hunter, to capture his seventh national singles crown at the West Side stadium today by scores of 3—6, 6—3, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4. After having fought off the insistent challenge of young America in the previous rounds of play. Only at intervals did Tilden flash the withering fires of his still potent racquet for the enjoyment of the gallery of 7500.

He held the whip hand from start to finish and was never in the slightest danger of losing the match although Hunter held a lead of two sets to one at the intermission. Hunter's hard driving game is built to order for Tilden who thrives on speed

Match Below Par.

Both Tilden and Hunter played somewhat below the usual standard of America's first and second ranking players. The 36-year-old Tilden and Hunter, who is a year his junior, had won their big battles earlier in the week when they beat back the rising tide of youth and today's match came as an anti-climax.

Hunter gave the gallery something of a thrill at the start when he took the opening set at 6—2 breaking through Tilden's cannonball delivery in the eighth game. Tilden turned on the steam in the next set however and easily evened matters. Whenever Tilden chose to open the throttle the points came his way on blistering forehanders down the alley, tricky, trap shots or forced errors by Hunter.

Big Bill was meeting Hunter's battering attack by playing deep several feet behind his baseline, where he had plenty time to get set for his return shots.

Hunter Wins Third Set.

Tilden's game soon softened again, long enough for Hunter to take the third set but after the intermission Big Bill applied more pressure and pulled level.

In the final set he lashed a total of five services aces and dominated most of the rallies. For good measure Big Bill won the deciding game at love. The first point was a sharply angled drop-shot that softly arched the net. The second was an error by Hunter, a running drive that Frank put into the net.

The third was one of those unanswerable cannonball aces and the last was an out by Hunter.

By winning the title for the seventh time Tilden equalled the string compiled by Richard Sears in the period from 1881 to 1887.

The recapitulation of the stroke analysis of today's final follows:

The Imp Wins Regatta and President's Cup

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—President Hoover today witnessed the second and deciding heat in the speed boat race for the President's Cup, which was won by Richard V. Hoyt of the Columbia Yacht Club of New York, in his Imp.

The Imp had little competition from Gerald Holbrook's Jersey Lightning. The Imp's time for the 15 miles was 20 minutes and 53 seconds, an average of 43.080 miles an hour, which is much below the time set in the Presidential Cup race of other years.

Running in the Potomac River grand free-for-all race, which closed the two days of contests, Hoyt showed that he had kept his craft under wraps in the Presidential Cup heats. In the free-for-all he drove the Imp six times around the two and a half mile course at an average speed of 49.628, to take a thrilling contest from the Jayee III, owned by W. S. Corby of Washington, and driven by George Wood of Detroit.

C. Roy Keys' Carenaught of Buffalo won the race for the Secretary of the Navy's Cup, completing the 20 miles in 27 minutes and 9 seconds at an average speed of 44.175 miles an hour. Keys' Wilgold III was second and Pep II was third.

There were several spills during the nine races. C. M. Hall's hydroplane Thunderbolt II, while bowling along at a speed of 45 miles an hour, did a nose dive on a turn, but the driver was rescued.

Infield hits beat the Cardinals yesterday afternoon in the first game of their final 1929 series with the New York Giants. Harold Haid's screw ball had John McGraw's sluggers off stride most of the afternoon. Seldom did they connect solidly with Harold's slants. But they beat out so many slow rollers to infielders, grounders whichs wirled and twisted and slithered, that they collected a total of 13 hits in six innings and won the ball game, 7 to 3.

Despite the victory, the afternoon saw the death of the New York pennant prospects for 1929. This was merely an official death. McGraw's chances of landing a pennant this season have been unofficially dead for many months, but with the Cubs winning from the Dodgers the Giants couldn't win the pennant now even if the Bruins all died and the Chicago team lost all its remaining games and the Giants won all of theirs.

Six Hits in Infield.

Six of the 13 safeties off Haid were handled by infielders and then there were two costly Cardinal errors. And then occasionally the enemy slapped a real hit fenceward, and taken by and large, it was a miserable afternoon for young Mr. Haid.

The defeat broke a winning streak of four straight, gained at the expense of the good old Boston Braves, and was the first reverse under the management of Sergt. Gabby Street.

Terry led off in the second inning with a clean hit to right, but Ott lined to Roettger and Jackson forced Terry. Then our old friend Bob O'Farrell, one of the many ex-managers of the Cardinals, slammed a double to left. There was a chance to get Jackson at the plate, but Gelbert, taking Hafey's relay, threw low to Wilson and Jackson scored.

Haid drew a pass with one out in the third inning and that started a rally that put the Cards ahead. Douthit singled to right and High bounced a single past Farrell, scoring Haid and sending Douthit to third. Frisch singled Douthit home and a wild pitch moved High

ATHLETICS WIN FROM CHICAGO TO ASSURE 7TH A. L. PENNANT

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—The tall tactician of Philadelphia marched into the promised land at exactly 4:24 o'clock this afternoon, ending a journey marked by 14 seasons of disappointment. When George Earnshaw turned back the White Sox by 5 to 0 after the Browns had chastised the Yankees by 12 to 3 in the first half of a double-header at New York, Cornelius McGillicuddy made his seventh American League pennant safe beyond the last mathematical doubt.

The grand old man of Shibe Park now could lose every one of his 15 remaining games and still finish half a contest ahead of the Yankees, even if the fallen champions should sweep 17 engagements. The Yanks took the second half of their bargain bill with the Browns today. If the Macks should lose all and the Yankees win all, the final standing would be:

Philadelphia	96	57	.627

Urban Faber yielded only grudgingly to the new champions today. One run was manufactured in the fourth on Haas' safe bunt, a pass to Simmons and Miller's drive to center for a base, Al Simmons' thirty-first home run added another to the total in the sixth, but still the fight remained close.

About this time news of the Yankees' defeat sent the crowd into a frenzy of delight, and a few moments later the Macks fell upon Faber for the final thrust—in the eighth. A single by Cochrane, a pass to Simmons, a double by Burns, scoring two, and a single by Miller gave the A's three runs and removed the last doubt regarding the outcome.

The ninth soon was over, and the Athletics had hit the trail in quest of world series gold for the first time since the ancient days of Bender and Coombs and Plank and the infield rated at $100,000, pre-war value.

The victory was George Earnshaw's twenty-first. He won it with a substitute infield at his back, but this second line met every emergency. Joe Boley alone remained on the inner wall, with

Hurricanes Upset Form and Defeat Sands Point Team For U. S. Open Polo Title

By Alan J. Gould,

Associated Press Sports Editor.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Led by the dashing Irish internationalist, Captain C. T. I. (Pat) Roark, the Hurricanes galloped a smashing victory over Tommy Hitchcock's Sands-Point team today for the open polo championship of the United States.

Wray's COLUMN

Big Bill Still "There."

WILLIAM T. TILDEN is once again showing the way in American tennis—his victory yesterday being the seventh time he has won the national championship. His feat equals the record of Sears, America's first champion, who held the title for seven consecutive campaigns. William Larned also held the title seven times but not successively.

Tilden started out in 1920 to set a world record. He won six consecutive championships. Then along came the French and broke his luck and his winning streak. Lacoste beat Bill in 1926 and 1927, and Cochet turned the trick in 1928.

The absence of the famous

Turning an otherwise closely fought match on the rain-soaked Meadow Brook field, into a rout in the last chukker, the Hurricanes won by 11 goals to 7 in the biggest upset of the polo season.

The result was a sensational personal triumph for Capt. Roark, who waged and won a personal duel with Hitchcock, America's only ten-goal player. Roark played No. 2 for the winners to Hitchcock's No. 3 for sanispoint, and the Irish star was all over the field, directing the strategy of his team, scoring three goals himself and contributing to most of the others by his hard and accurate hitting.

Hitchcock Tires.

Hitchcock, who led his side in scoring with four goals, also played brilliantly, but appeared to tire in the last two periods from the terrific pace Roark forced him to follow. It was the Irishman's game to lead Hitchcock a merry chase and he apparently succeeded.

The Hurricanes with "Laddie" Sanford, Watson Webb and Bobby Strawbridge teaming beautifully with Roark, jumped into a 2-goal lead in the first period and were never headed. They wre tied only

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Whichone won the Futurity and its great riches of $105,730 for H. P. Whitney, Arc Light jumped to victory and $34,450 in winning the Grand National Steeplechase for J. E. Widener from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Fairfield and Jolly Roger, the odds on favorites, while Diavolo established himself as one of the true stayers of the American turf by beating Double Pay and The Nut and carrying off the rather modest but priceless prestige of the two mile jockey club gold cup for the Wheatley Stable, and $10,900, in a glorious day of racing at Belmont Park today.

Whichone raced to enduring fame and to a place in illustrious company as he galloped down the six and three-quarters of the Widener straightaway to beat Hi-Jack, Gallant Fox, Boojum, his own stable companion, and 13 others in the Futurity, the richest race of all time. He ran the distance in 1:19 3-5, only three-fifths of a second behind the track record, and won easily by three or four lengths. He and Boojum were quoted at one to four.

The victory was hailed by a mighty shout as the son of Chicle-Flying Witch came from behind the flying leaders in the last sixteenth to win in the convincing manner befitting his rank as the best of his age and a truly great colt. He fairly jumped away from one or two cuts of the whip inside the last furlong pole and, drawing up to the leaders, drew out in almost majestic way to win easily.

Jockey's Efforts Futile.

Frantically, Pony McAtee on George D. Widener's Hi-Jack and McAuliffe on William Woodward's Gallant Fox drew their whips to stall off the new menace. They had Boojum beaten at the last sixteenth pole and victory loomed up for each, but their efforts were despairing. Whichone swept on to win by himself, while Hi-Jack, son of John P. Grier, beat Gallant Fox a scant half-length with Boojum lapped on both. None of the others ever reached a contending position.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Jolly Roger, twice winner of the Grand National Steeplechase, and Fairfield were counted so sure that one to three was quoted against their chances as an entry, but neither was up to beating Arc Light which came from behind to win by two lengths. Fairfield ran second and Jolly Roger third. No bigger upset has come this year.

Arc Light, well beaten in his last start by Ruler, Fairfield and Jolly Roger, was a 20 to 1 shot and he turned the tables in a way to surprise even his strongest boosters. J. E. Widener was elated over the race he ran under his impost of 151 pounds. The horse jumped boldly and without a bobble and ran the three miles in 5 46, only three seconds behind the course record

MISS ENDICOTT AND MRS. DUEKER TO MEET FOR DISTRICT TITLE

By Davison Obear

Miss Melicent Endicott will oppose Mrs. Virginia Baer Dueker in the final round of the St. Louis District women's singles tennis championship on the Triple A courts this afternoon. The match will start at 2:30 o'clock and the winner will succeed Ruth Bailey who did not defend her title as district champion.

The women's doubles final which will follow the singles will be between the team of of Melicent Endicott and Lottie Hagemeyer, present champions and Mrs. Virginia Dueker and Mrs. Ann Lindemann, who won the title in 1927. While the champions have the edge on their opponents the two teams usually have a close battle when they meet.

In gaining the final bracket Miss Endicott defeated Mrs. Ann Lindemann yesterday afternoon, 6—0, 6—0. The result of the match was quite surprising as in previous contests Mrs. Lindemann has won from two to five games in each set. In the first set the second, third and fourth games went to deuce while the third, fifth and sixth games in the second set were deuce games. Miss Endicott played one of the best games in her ca-

Carleton, Rochester Hurler, Pitches No-Hit Game

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Sept. 14.

TEX Carleton, ace of the Rochester pitching staff, entered the hall of baseball fame here this afternoon by turning back the Maple Leafs with no hits while pitching the champion Red Wings to a 5-to-1 victory in the first half of a double-header. Errors in the seventh robbed Carleton of a shut-out. It was the first no-hit game of the season in the International League.

As Rochester is owned by the Cardinals, Carleton will probably be among the recruits at the Cardinal spring training camp next year.

WASHINGTON WILL BE STRONGER; NOTRE DAME COACH PICKS THREE TO BATTLE FOR BIG 10 HONORS

By Knute K. Rockne
Member All American Football Board.

(Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 14.—A perusal of the publicity sent out from most of the Middle Western universities would seem to indicate that practically every school is looking forward to the football season with unusually bright prospects. That is, every school with one or two exceptions. In these days of strenuous schedules, uncertainties regarding injuries to star men, and nip and tuck competition, it is well nigh impossible to state that any team, regardless of how promising its outlook, will come trough with an undefeated season. It just isn't being done any more. Even the so-called schedule makers who are ducking the strong opposition hardly know where to duck. They may run up against some unexpected strength where they least expect it and then when beaten bore the public with excuses and alibis.

In the Big Ten, it looks like a three-cornered fight for the championship between Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota, with Northwestern and Michigan the dark horses. Indiana, Purdue and Iowa will have good teams and will give a good account of themselves 60 minutes every Saturday afternoon, but just now their prospects do not seem to indicate championship possibilities. Ohio State may show unexpected strength later on, but now her prospects are very ordinary. Chicago just has not the material and that's all there is to it.

Rockne.

Illinois Has Vet Squad

I pick Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin to be the leaders because they have the material. The coaching, of course, is way above par Illinois has a fine veteran squad back and of last year's men will miss only Capt. Nowak at tackle and a couple of ends. If Zuppke can replace his ends, and he already has one good one in Jolley, he may again grab the Big Ten championship, especially as he is not playing either Minnesota or Wisconsin. Crane and Weltz at guards and Gordon at tackle are as fine a trio of linemen as you will find on any eleven in America. Zuppke still has the same fine collection of backs he had last year with the addition of Lanum. This chap is an exceptional punter and passer. The only thing that can stop Illinois is overconfidence. Wisconsin and Minnesota have fine groups of rugged material, with weight, speed and versatility. Whichever of these two comes through their annual game unscathed will challenge Illinois for the honors.

Michigan had the finest freshmen team in the Middle West last year and indications are that this fall they will be represented by one of the heaviest lines in the conference. Roach, a new freshman tackle, is said to be phenom who can well take Pommeraning's place. The only man lost from the backfield was Rich. Either Morrison or Heston is slated to take his place.

Harry Kipke will be the new head coach, but the same system that has been in vogue there for some years will no doubt still be carried out. If Michigan can get by the Purdue game, which comes early in the season, the Wolverines may prove more dangerous than can generally be expected of sophomore material.

Hanley Has Real Task

Northwestern has some fine heavy freshmen line material with Moore, a good fullback prospect, to replace Hanley. If Dick Hanley can replace Holmer, Northwestern will be a real dark horse, but I suspect that replacing Holmer will be a considerable job. However, Hanley has some other good backs. In fact, in Bruder he will have one of the star backs of the year. The Purdue backfield will match any in the Big Ten. However, the big problem at Lafayette is line material Jimmy Phelan lost most of his 1928 line with no outstanding line candidates among the freshmen. In fact, at present he is planning on making an end out of Ed Garraway. However, any backfield that has two such men as Welch and Harmeson, with a freshman coming along by the name of Yunevitch, is going to be dangerous. But the lack of line material will hurt in the long campaign.

Missouri Tigers' Director Favors New Fumble Rule

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 14.

FROM the spectator's standpoint the new fumble rule which will be injected into football this fall is decidedly awry; but for the football coach it is a boon, C. L. Brewer, University of Missouri athletic director, said here today.

"Football officials are already too conspicuous," Brewer sad. "They should be kept in the background. The play is the thing. However, if I were a coach, I would favor it as a safeguard for my team."

John Waldorf, Tiger captain, favors the change in the fumble ruling.

Detroit, Undefeated in 1928, Again Rated as Strong Eleven

Indiana's prospects are the same as last year, possibly better in all around strength, but the loss of Bennett will be severely felt. Page's line from end to end looks unusually good with the backfield more or less of a gamble. Page will win some games this fall and particularly when it is least expected.

Iowa, under Bert Ingwerson, would have had fine prospects but for the loss of McLain at fullback and Schlensner, the giant tackle. The latter was lost by ineligibility recently. Ingwerson's big job will be to develop two new tackles and a fullback. If Bert can do this he will have a pretty fair team, but hardly of championship caliber in a group where the competition is as intense as the Western Conference.

Buckeyes Dealt Hard Blow

Ohio State was dealt several hard blows his summer. First of all, some freshmen guard and tackles failed in the examinations, and Holman, star quarterback, was declared ineligible. Ohio State will be strong at center, ends and the backfield. But no football team can go very far without guards or tackles. The Ohio State folks will have to wait another year before Willaman will have any real chance to see what he can do. This fall they will just have to hope that it won't be too bad.

Stagg at Chicago starts out with very discouraging prospects, which is too bad. I would like to see the Old Man trot out this fall with some real material so that he could put on the closing touches to his coaching career with a finish that would do him justice. As far as I know, everyone I have ever talked to would like to see the same, but I guess it isn't in the cards. Athletics at Chicago will be strong off and on but never again will she be up among the great as she used to be.

In the Six Six, Nebraska appears to have an edge. The Huskers have a new coach in D. X. Bible from Texas A. & M. and even though they lost five star linemen and two great backs in Russell and Howell appear to have an edge on the other five. Nebraska has a rather lopsided schedule starting out with S. M. U. of Dallas, then Pittsburg, Syracuse and the fourth contest their key game in the Big Six is with Missouri. If Nebraska can come through these first three games without too many injuries they will take Missouri. But right now Missouri seems to be sitting on the throne. Kansas will be a more powerful team this year than they have been for some time and should be up there fighting for second place with Oklahoma. Kansas Aggies and Ames have good teams but their prospects just now, while better than last year, do not warrant their being any too optimistic regarding any championship. Bo McMillan has one new back whom he thinks will do the trick. However, building up a team on one or two backs is rather an uncertain sport, particularly if these one or two backs should receive injuries. However, "Bo" is a good coach and will no doubt give his opponents a lot more trouble than he did last year.

Drake Best in Valley

In the Missouri Valley Drake seems to have the best prospects. In fact, Drake, headed by a star back named Nesbit, seems headed for a great season. Washington, Creighton and Grinnell will all be better than last year but it will do them little good as far as Drake is concerned as Drake looks like the class.

Detroit University, which was represented by an undefeated eleven last year, will be just about as good again this year. Any club that can boast a backfield man like Brazil, behind a strong line, is a good football team. Detroit, playing games with Oregon State, West Virginia, Georgetown, Tulsa and Dayton, will have a more diversified schedule than last year. If they can come through clean this year they will have to be rated with the best in the country. At St. Louis University prospects are considered better than a year ago and Mrs. Dueker's Victory.

Mrs. Dueker reached the final round of the singles as a result of her victory over Lottie Hagemeyer, 6—2, 6—4. Miss Hagemeyer took the first two games of the opening set but Mrs. Dueker won six straight by better placements. In the second set Mrs. Dueker was extended to the limt. Play reached 2-all and after Mrs. Dueker had a 4 to 2 lead Miss Hagemeyer became steadier and brought the score to 4-all. Mrs. Dueker then won two straight games to take the set 6 to 4 and the match.

The semi-final round contests in the women's doubles also resulted in straight set victories. Misses Endicott and Hagemeyer defeated Delphine and Louise Rauch, 6—4, 6—2 in one match which Mrs. Dueker and Mrs. Lindemann won from Mrs. Violet Furlong and Wilma Benson, 6—1, 8—6 in the other.

Heartley Anderson, who has been quietly sawing wood down there, may surprise many of the brothers this fall. Marquette, after a rather indifferent year, expects to come back with a bang. Coach Murray has several new sophomore backs whom they say are a real threat. Among the other schools Ohio Wesleyan, Bradley, South Dakota State, North Dakota, Butler Coe and Carleton all have bright prospects and are expecting good seasons. Ohio Wesleyan last year stepped into the lime light by beating Syracuse and Michigan. This year it may be one of the other schools in this list who have one or two big schools on their schedules, and burning with ambition, may topple these so-called larger schools off "their pinnacle some Saturday afternoon.

Prospects at Notre Dame are better than they were a year ago though the schedule is probably top-heavy. Nine games away from home, owing to the construction of a stadium, means quite a burden but barring unexpected injuries the team should do better.

By Robert W. Herr.

A preliminary survey of four of the five football squads representing the schools comprising the Preparatory League indicates that, from present appearances, the conference teams this season will be of almost identical weights, with two of the elevens, C. B. C. and McBride, being somewhat under the average in age and experience, and the other two outfits, Country Day and St. Louis U. High, having a slight edge in veteran material. Opening practice sessions were held at St. Louis and C. B. C. ten days ago, while McBride and Country Day began their daily workout during the past week. Western, the only school to remain inactive thus far, will issue the first call for candidates tomorrow, the opening day of class.

The largest squad of the season reported to Coach Toddy Kamp of McBride last week, and Kamp is now trying to weed out the most promising aspirants prior to cutting the outfit to working proportions. Of last year's eleven, but five regulars have returned, four linemen and a back. Capt. Axtell and Carter, guards; McDonough, center, and Conlon, tackle, will hold down the same positions they filled in 1928, while Pfleger is the lone letterman around whom the backfield will have to be built. From the 54 candidates remaining Kamp should be able to find suitable material to fill the gaps, although he will be handicapped somewhat by the youth of the squad, 45 of the 60 members being of the junior, sophomore and freshman classes. Of the new men, Drone, a freshman back, has shown the best thus far, but whether he will merit a regular position is still uncertain.

In the matter of weight the squad compares favorably with the other Prep League outfits, the line averaging 155 pounds, and the backs tipping the beams from 140 to 150. Charlie Summers, a star Washington U. center of some years ago, is assisting Kamp in whipping the Colonnaders into shape.

At St. Louis U. High.

Coach Ed McCarty of St. Louis U. High has been drilling his 48 candidates daily since Sept. 4, and the men are slowly rounding into form. While 10 lettermen have returned to this season's eleven, seven of these are backs and but three are linemen. This has necessitated the shifting of several of the veteran backs into the line, in order to build an experienced forward wall. Joe Connors, Bob Stoltman and Roberts, ball toters of last year, are filling in at center and the guards at present, and it seems likely that they will retain their new positions. The fact that 40 of the 48 members of the squad are juniors and seniors will tend to provide more seasoned gridders, and as the team is about average in weight, prospects seem bright at the Junior Billiken school.

With Capt. Montgomery, Saffa and McDermott filling their old posts in the line, along with the three veteran backs who have been made into linesmen, and the experienced backfield of Lawler, Strong, Hartrich and Krygiel, St. Louis should make a strong bid for honors this season.

The only other eleven in the league to have an experienced backfield is Country Day, which is at present working out at its annual football training camp on the Boy Scout Reservation at Irondale. Of the 25 men on the squad, Coach Hughes has eight lettermen and seven squad men of 1928, around which to build this season's team. Of the scintillating 1928 backfield, which carried Codasco into a tie with Western for the league championship, only Boettler will be lost. Capt. Tupper, Lehman and Husch will again carry the ball, and Boettler's position will be taken by A. Shields, a letterman. For every other post on the team except center, Hughes has either lettermen or squadmen working out, and the four candidates for the pivot post have been doing well in practice.

The Red and White squad will also be a seasoned group, 23 of the 25 being juniors and seniors. The team is average in weight, and with the advantage of veteran material, seems to have at least an even chance of retaining the title.

Although his squad has been working out only ten days, Coach Jack O'Reilly of C. B. C., has cut the list of hopefuls from 54 to 37, and is now trying to get the men into shape for the opening battle with Cleveland on Sept. 26. But three letter men of 1928 have returned, McDonald and Fuch, backs, and Wansong, a lineman. The latter has been shifted into the back field, however, and O'Reilly will have to construct a forward wall of inexperienced material. There are a large number of promising line candidates on hand, most of them above the average weight, but all are young and, for the most part, green. The heavier men are being used at present, and seem to have grounded themselves in the fundamentals of line play. The backs are somewhat light, but upon whether or not O'Reilly can whip his raw material into a formidable line will depend the Brothers' chances of success during the coming season.

As Western has yet to hold its first practice of the year, the Cadets' prospects for the season are unknown. Only one veteran, Capt. Hesley, 175-pound fullback, will be in uniform, and Maj. Garetson, Western coach, apparently will have to build his entire eleven around this lone letter man.

EAST ST. LOUIS MUNY SERIES OPENS TODAY

East St. Louis will hold its three-game post-season series for the 1929 Municipal League championship after all. It will begin on field No. 1 at Jones Park this afternoon.

Late yesterday Richard Sinck, backer of the Sinck Furnitures, announced his team would meet the Circle Packers in the series and would not forfeit the title as he had first decided.

This inaugural game is to be started at 2:20 o'clock with Harry Currier pitching for the Slacks and Adolph Miller for the Circles.

ENGINEERS AND IDEALS MEET AGAIN TODAY

The Engineers of the Missouri-Pacific League and the Ideals of the South Side League will resume action in the championship series at Fairgrounds Park this afternoon at 3 p. m., when they play the second round of the series. The Freshmen, of the North St. Louis Intermediate League, meet the St. Stephens teaf of the Evangelical Intermediate League, in a preliminary contest for the intermediate championship starting at 12:30 p. m. This game is also the second of the series.

The Ideal team won the series opener last Sunday by a 7 to 6 score after the Engineers had overcome an early lead with a three-run rally in the final inning. Another victory for the Ideals this afternoon will end the series and give them the Municipal baseball championship.

The Engineers are hoping to prolong the series and are confident that they will even the series and be put back into the running for the title. Throughout the elimination series the Engineers have demonstrated that they are strongest when the odds are against them.

The Freshmen enter this afternoon's play with one leg of the championship to their credit and can win the intermediate title with the second victory. They tightened their defense last Sunday to halt a rally by their opponents which came within a run of tying the score, with a fast double play.

The usual 25-cent charge will be asked at the gates, which will be thrown open promptly at noon.

A one-armed, left handed tennis player, Clarence M. Charest of Washington D. C.; won the National Veterans' singles championship, defeating J. B. Adque Jr.; of Dallas, Tex., in the final by scores of 4—6, 6—2, 6—1.

Williams II, Philadelphia, defeated Frank Shields, the brilliant New York youngster, and Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovakian professional 7—9, 7—3, 7—5.

Tilden's victory marked the first time since 1926 that America's greatest individual tennis honor had been won by an American, in the absence of Henri Cochet and Rene Lacoste, who had monopolized the title for the last three years. Tilden demonstrated his supremacy over a field of 90 players, including several foreign stars.

BILLIKENS WILL START FOOTBALL GRIND WITH TWO WORKOUTS TODAY

By James M. Gould

Starting practice with two sessions today, the St. Louis University Billikens this year intend to go in for bigger and better football. They face a hard, rather unbalanced schedule which will require a powerful eleven and one supplied with plenty of reserve strength. That the Billikens will play "bigger" football is assured with the present pick of material for the varsity, averaging 182 pounds, as against the 167-pound average of a year ago. That they will play "better" football is the hope and expectation of the university, graduates and undergraduates, the three coaches and the players themselves. Today's sessions and those following until Sportsman's Park is available will be held in an enclosed field at Spring avenue and Forest Park boulevard.

The various squads, in charge of Head Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson, Assistants "Chili" Walsh and Christy Flanagan, with Jewel Browning in command of the freshmen, will number some 70 men, with 45 being candidates for varsity positions. This is about the same number that turned out for the 1928 teams.

Reserved Optimism.

So far as the prospects for the season are concerned, Coach Anderson is optimistic without being over-enthusiastic. "We have a mean schedule to play, but a better and bigger squad with which to play it. I could wish that our two first games were separated by more than a week, but, as we have to tackle Davis-Elkins here on Oct. 5 and Georgetown in Washington on Oct. 12, we at least will make our debut against two teams and "should learn about football from them." After those games we can, perhaps, ease up a bit. Not much, at that, with games booked with Oglethorpe, Coe, South Dakota, Loyola and, of course, the big game Thanksgiving day with Washington.

"Our team will be much heavier than that game bunch we had last year. The way we figure, now, we can put on the field an eleven averaging 182 pounds—15 pounds more per man than in 1928.

"And there were many times last season when we could have used that extra poundage."

"Any especial type of play you intend using this year?" he was asked.

"Yes; we are going in for the openest of open play and have some lateral pass plans which may turn out to be effective. Anyway, we hope they will, as they will be main points in our attack."

"With your schedule, it would seem you will need plenty of reserve strength; have you got it?"

"We have," Anderson answered; "more and better than ever before. We have alternates—not just one, but two or three—for every position, and they'll all get a chance to play. We are counting on McKinney as our quarterback, but, on account of his recent recovery from an appendicitis operation, he may not be at top form for the early games. He'll be in there for a time, though."

Leading Candidates.

Anderson's reserve optimism seems well founded, as a glance at the following varsity roster will attest:

Backfield: Capt. Lintzenich, McKinney, Nadorf, Eaton, Kimmel, Zelonski, Abrahams, Gazzola, De Cristofero, Murphy and Stringfellow.

Centers: Davidson, Mullinery and Corcoran.

Guards: Schwartz, Brown, Newton, Antone, Pezol and Tannenbaum.

Tackles: Joseph, Cornell, Fox, Kalmer and Schultze.

Ends: Drury, F. Brown, McFarland, Daubner, McIntosh, Kennedy and Ellis.

MANION AND REDMOND DEFEAT McANINCH AND BEN RICHTER, 1 UP

John Manion, Sunset Hill professional, and Jack Redmond, trick shot artist, defeated Ben Richter, Triple A professional, and Harold McAninch of Crystal Lake, 1 up in the first event of a golf program held at Crystal Lake Country Club yesterday. Redmond, Manion and Richter each had a 73, while McAninch had a 77. About 300 persons attended.

Redmond scored an eagle three on the par 5 18th hole, while the other three scored birdies at the same time.

McAninch pulled a new wrinkle in St. Louis golf, flying to Crystal Lake in a airplane for the match. He circled over No. 1 green and dropped four balls, each bearing the name of one of the players in the match.

Roark came back to put the Hurricanes in the lead on a long run, scoring what proved to be the deciding goal. To remove any further argument, the winners tallied three times in the final period, the veteran Webb tallying twice.

It was the second time Roark has led the Hurricanes to victory in the open tournament. Sanford and Strawbridge helped Roark out in 1926, as they did today, but Webb replaced Eric Pedley in the new Hurricane championship line-up. NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Browns closing games of their season's scending way with the first battle in which score of 12 to 3. The Yankees turned pitcher's battle between George Pipgras verdict of 4 to 2, when Wallie Schang dr an eighth-inning rally.

The Yanks opened up fiercely on Ogden in the first inning of the second. Combs stung a single to center and took third on a long fly to right, close to the wire screen by Lary.

McNeely made a bid for a one-hand catch or Combs might have scored. Lary received credit for a double and Combs scored when Ruth hit a long fly to left. This drive carried Manush out to the corner of the bullpen and Lary had no trouble advancing to third. He scored while Melillo was throwing out Dickey.

O'Rourke Hits and Scores.

Pipgras had two men out in the second, when O'Rourke kept up his hard hitting with a single to center. He stole second and on the next pitch, Melillo cracked a single to center and O'Rourke scored.

The Yankees did harder hitting in the third, but could not score. Ruth opened by blasting a long line single to right. But Dickey hit straight to the box and into a fast double play and Lazzeri hit a three bagger which was wasted effort as Gehrig popped to the infield.

Lou Blue's speed enabled the Browns to tie the score in that fifth. After Ogden fanned, he drew a base on balls and stole second. As Dickey's throw was low and wide, he picked himself up and made a daring advance to third. He scored on McNeely's long fly to Durst.

Pipgras had a very close call in the seventh, when Schang was passed to open the inning. Ogden sacrificed, and when Koenig let the throw from Pipgras get away Schang went to third. Blue popped to Lary, and on McNeely's grounder to Koenig, Schang was caught at the plate on a close play.

Manush hit to Gehrig, who made a good stop, and Pipgras made a better play in covering first for the throw.

Schang's Error Costly.

Ogden made a fine job of the pitching after the first and went six scoreless innings. But in the eighth came the break. With Lazzeri out, Gehrig made his second hit, a clean liner to right. Durst singled close to the foul line in right and Gehrig took third. Koenig hit through the box. Ogden checking the ball, Melillo recovered it and made a fine throw to the plate. Gehrig was waved out but in the mixup, Schang dropped the ball and the decision was reversed. After Pipgras filed to center, Combs singled over second and Durst crossed the plate.

This was hard luck for Ogden, for without Schang's error, the fly of Pipgras would have ended the inning with no scoring.

There was nothing thrown by two of the Yankee pitchers in the first game which the Brownies could not hit. Rhodes and Heimach were the pair who suffered most. In his four and one-third innings, Rhodes couldn't get either McNeely or Manush out. They made three hits apiece. It was one of these hits by Manush in the first inning which started Rhodes on his way to ruin. He slipped and fell in going after a roller and the mishap filled the bases and two runs followed on a sacrifice fly and the fourth blow of the inning, one by O'Rourke.

Rough on Rhodes.

Three hard drives gave Rhodes trouble in the third and the Browns took two runs. They'd have had more, but Larry was in front of O'Rourke's hard liner and doubled Kress off first. That inning saw the Yankees creep to within one run of the visitors, when Gehrig rapped his thirty-

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Browns and Yankees broke even in the closing games of their season's scendule today, the Browns galloping way with the first battle in which they made 21 big hits, by a score of 12 to 3. The Yankees turned the tables n the second in a pitcher's battle between George Pipgras and Johnny Ogden, gaining a verdict of 4 to 2, when Wallie Schang dropped a throw at the plate in an eighth-inning rally.

The Yanks opened up fiercely on Ogden in the first inning of the second. Combs stung a single to center and took third on a long fly to right, close to the wire screen by Lary.

McNeely made a bid for a one-hand catch or Combs might have scored. Lary received credit for a double and Combs scored when Ruth hit a long fly to left. This drive carried Manush out to the corner of the bullpen and Lary had no trouble advancing to third. He scored while Melillo was throwing out Dickey.

Durst singled close to the foul line in right and Gehrig took third. Koenig hit through the box. Ogden checking the ball. Melillo recovered it and made a fine throw to the plate. He slipped and fell in going after a roller and the mishap filled the bases and two runs followed on a sacrifice fly and the fourth blow of the inning, one by O'Rourke.

Rough on Rhodes.

Three hard drives gave Rhodes trouble in the third and the Browns took two runs. They'd have had more, but Larry was in front of O'Rourke's hard liner and doubled Kress off first. That inning saw the Yankees creep to within one run of the visitors, when Gehrig rapped his thirty-second homer, a pretty line drive into right with Lazzeri on base.

But Rhodes was clubbed out in the next and Pennock had no luck as a rescuer. O'Rourke's hit clung to the base line and allowed McGowan to score, and on the next play Koenig made one of his characteristic fumbles and cost another run. Five big hits in the seventh off Heimach, one a three-bagger by O'Rourke, settled the second left-hander of the Yankees. One of the wallops was Manush's fourth hit.

Nekola Shows Improvement.

Huggins brought in Frank Nekola for the eighth. He allowed a hit by Blue, but no runs then. In the ninth he might have escaped but Jorgens, who took Dickey's place behind the bat, threw away O'Rourke's bunt after Kress had made his fourth hit and Kress scored and O'Rourke went all the way to third to score the last run of the game on an out. Nekola is learning fast and looked better than on any of his appearances.

Blaeholder, outside of the second, when Durst's hit and two sacrifices scored a run, and in the third, when Gehrig's homer followed Lazzeri's single, never was in danger. Ruth didn't get the ball out of the diamond in three tries after starting in the first with a pass. No Yankee passed first base in the last six innings.

Brownie Notes.

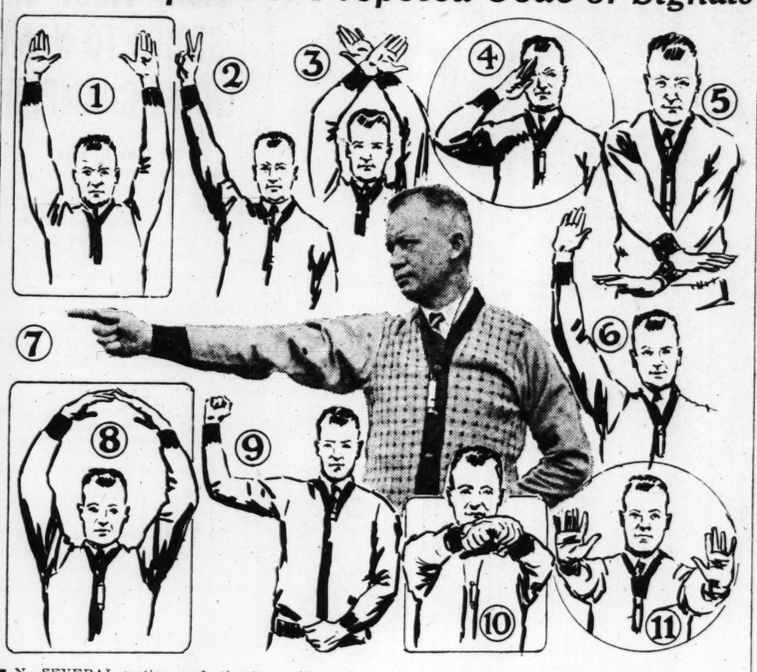
The Browns leave town this evening for a few days of light exercise with the Athletics. The A's having clinched the pennant, the Brownies are justified in hoping the men of Mr. Mack will not exert themselves any too much to thwart them on their desire to finish in third place in the American League race.

For while the Browns are opposing the Mackmen, the new champions of E. S. Barnard's circuit, the Yankees and the Cleveland Indians will be battling here and Mr. Howley and his men have seen enough of Yankee pitching in the last three days to be considerably worried as to whether the Indians will be put to any great labor to solve it. If the Indians club the Huggins hurlers as the Brownies have been doing, then its good night for third place.

One Yankee Hurler Tough.

Only one Yankee pitcher showed the Browns anything here. That was George Pipgras in the second game this afternoon. All of Master Huggins' other starters were easy, his left-handers in particular and except Waite Hoyt, there is no right-hander fit for the Cleveland series.

St. Louis Football Officials to Consider Adoption of Proposed Code of Signals



IN SEVERAL sections of the country an attempt will be made this year to keep the football public informed of all happenings on the gridiron, a system of signals by officials having been proposed. Whether or not this signal system will be used in the St. Louis district will be determined tomorrow night at a meeting of the St. Louis Football Officials' Association, to be held at Sherman Park.

For many years the spectators have had to guess why certain penalties were imposed. So many fouls of different type call for the same penalty ,that the public has been confused. Details have not yet been worked out as to the best plan for transmitting these signals, but a code of 11 signs has been completed and are shown above.

No. 1 shows the official with both hands raised above his head. This indicates a touchdown has been scored. No. 2 is employed when a safety has been scored, the two fingers indicating the number of points for a safety. These two have been used for some seasons and are familiar to most football followers. Signal No. 3, arms raised and hands crossed, indicates a touchback, no points being scored. No. 4, the familiar salute, would tell the crowd that the ball is "dead" and that no play can ensue. In the illustration of tee No. 5 signal, both hands are held down with hands crossed to indicate that a forward pass is incomplete. This signal, also, is a familiar one. No. 6, the right arm raised overhead, is meant to tell the public that a penalty has been imposed, but declined by the team that would benefit. No. 7, one arm outstretched, indicates "offside," probably the most frequent foul in football. No. 8, hands upraised and finger tips touching, shows that both teams have committed fouls, and No. 9, right arm akimbo and left hand at belt, indicates that a penalty has been imposed for roughness, clipping or some other form. No. 10, hands grasping opposite wrists, shows there has been holding, and No. 11, both hands outward, denotes interference.

THREE PLAYERS ARE PURCHASED BY THE BROWNS

Announcement has been made by Vice President L. C. McEvoy of the Browns that three more players have been purchased from minor league clubs to serve during the season of 1930. The added trio are Fred Bennett, outfielder, from Wichita Falls; Earl Caldwell, a right-handed pitcher, from Waco, and Roland Styles, also a right-handed pitcher, from Tulsa. Bennett, who has had a trial with the Browns, has been hitting handsomely in the Texas League and leads in "runs driven in." Caldwell, at Waco, has won 22 and lost 13 games, and Styles, at Tulsa, has a record of 22 won and 11 lost.

Fred Stiely, the southpaw pitcher, whose purchase already had been announced, will report to Manager Howley at Philadelphia Monday.

French players from the 1929 tournament gave the aging Tilden his chance to get into the van again. Notwithstanding a young army of youthful rivals and several international stars, Tilden once more proved that it still takes the world's greatest players to down him, even if he is 36 years old.

May Establish Record.

IT SEEMS probable that Big Bill has another year or two of good tennis in him. Norman Brookes was a Davis Cup star and helped wrest the trophy from America when he was 37 years of age. Bill seems just as tough and as likely to hang on as Brook . In that case it may be that tall William will break all previous records by winning again next season for the EIGHTH time!

The upcoming crop of youngsters will have to show some improvement to prevent it.

Just Like Sonnenberg.

IF Art Shires keeps at it he will soon have recorded as many victories over Lena Blackburne as Gus Sonnenberg has over Stanley Stasiak.

Art and Gus both seem to know when the picking is soft.

How Do They Do It?

CASUAL followers of racing are amazed when jockey clubs hold events that yield enormous sums as in the case of the Belmont Futurity, which netted the winner more than $100,000. This year's Futurity reached an aggregate that probably was the highest ever attained in a racing event.

The money, however, is not all out of the racing association's pocket. In fact, the added money of $25,000, less than one-fifth the gross value of the race, was all that the association put up.

The remainder of the money is made up of fees which begin with the nomination of a broodmare three years before the race is run! At that time a $25 fee is paid by each nominator. Later the foal is born and each owner kicks in with $50 and again, a year later, the owner must put up another $100 if he still thinks his colt has a chance. Finally, to start in the race, it costs each owner $1000 additional.

The enormous totals rolled up may be grasped from the fact that 2109 nominations for the Futurity run yesterday, were made three years ago and hundreds paid fees of varying amounts according to the time of withdrawal.

Seventeen paid starting fees.

Government by Commission

STATE boxing commissions may be a great help to boxing but there is still a lot to be learned about their authority. Perhaps, with the growing intelligence of the boxer and his manager, ways to circumvent the commission rulings and even to make the members of commissions financially responsible for the verdicts they render may develop.

For example: A California commission deprived a noted boxer of a $13,000 purse. The boxer appealed to court and the court ordered the commission to give the money to the boxer, saying that the State laws did not give the commission power to withhold payment. It did not say that the boxer had given his best efforts or that he did not deserve to be punished. It simply said that the commission had exceeded the authority vested in it by the State.

Again: The New York State Commission recently barred Max Schmeling and included Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's American manager, and all his stable-fighters, in the disbarment.

Right there the commission bit off one it could not swallow. Jacobs may have 10 or 12 fighters in his control. The State Commission, by including them in the disbarment of Jacobs, deprived them of the right to earn a livelihood and if these fighters don't sue the commission, it will be because they are not enough slick lawyers in New York to see it.

On the Job

THERE is one who did not overlook the point and he is acting for Boxer Tony Caragliano. The case will be a test of the commission's authority and it requires no lawyer to say in advance that the commission is riding a loser. Mr. Jacob's fighters are in no way responsible for his troubles with the commission and they certainly have the right to work at their profession regardless of what Jacobs may have done.

The situation is serious because it robs the various commissions of authority and will make them timid about imposing penalties even where they know they are deserved. The possibility of a personal damage suit will deter otherwise courageous men.

The pocketbook is the most sensitive part of the commissioner—or anybody else.

WASHINGTON U. GRIDDERS TAKE LIGHT WORKOUT

By Henry L. Freund.

Under the guidance of Gale Bullman and Johnny Davis, the Washington University Bears participated in their first workout of the year yesterday afternoon on Liggett Field. The morning was spent in issuing equipment to the grid candidates, but at 3:30 a drill was held that lasted for several hours. The boys were given setting-up exercises and then passed and kicked the ball.

The only letter men to report for the inaugural drill were Capt. Jablonsky, Scott Hornsby, George Coover and Dick Rawdon. It is expected that a large number of players will report during the coming week. A squad of 20 took part in yesterday's light workout, including a number of sophomores who are expected to make strong bids for varsity berths.

Dr. Al Sharpe, head coach, will take charge of the squad on Monday, when he returns from Kansas City, where he is attending a rules interpretation meeting. Three former Washington stars on the gridiron will assist in coaching this fall. Ralph Kurz, former Bear basketball captain and stellar end, will take over much of the work formerly done by Charles Benson, who is now at an Eastern school. Kurz will confine his work to the wingmen. Lee Schelp, formerly varsity center, will aid Mike Walker with the frosh eleven, devoting particular attention to the line. He will also work with the varsity center and line. Ted Whittler, who has been the Washington fullback for three seasons, is also working with the varsity, but he is expected to help Walker and Schelp with the freshmen.

Beginning Monday, two practice sessions a day will be held until school starts. The sessions are scheduled to begin at 10:30 and 3:30 p. m.

Canton Defeats Quincy, 9 to 1 and Evens Series

QUINCY, Ill., Sept. 14.—The Quincy Indians were defeated this afternoon by the Canton Terriers, 9 to 1, in the fourth game of the series between the Three-Eye and Central League winners for the Class B championship.

Quincy took the first two games played in Canton and lost there Thursday. The teams resume the series tomorrow on even terms. Shi Womack, Quincy catcher, suffered a fracture of the left leg when Stover crashed into him at the plate in the third inning.

Canton pounded Ruel Love and Walter Wolf for 11 hits, including two homers by Hoffman, one by Sigman and a triple by Stove.

Reb Russell's homer in the seventh was all that saved the Indians from a shut-out before a crowd of 1854 fans.

YOUNG CARDINAL PITCHERS TO FACE THE GIANTS TODAY to third and Frisch to second, Andy scoring while Bottomley was grounding to Terry.

Infield Hits Start Trouble.

Infield hits began to do their dirty work in the fourth frame. Terry led off with a grounder to Frisch, which was a single, and Ott walked. Jackson forced Ott, High to Frisch, but Frank, trying for a double play, threw wild to first and Terry scored and Jackson reached second. O'Farrell beat out a grounder to Gelbert and after Farrell tapped to Haid, Hubbell singled to left, scoring Jackson with the tieing run.

In the fifth inning there were three more infield hits and the Giants took the lead. Leach beat out a grounder to Frisch, and after Lindstrom lined to Hafey, Terry walked. Ott was called out on strikes, but Jackson beat out a grounder to High, filling the bases. O'Farrell then beat out a grounder that bounced off Haid's glove and Leach scored.

By this time Haid probably was weary of infield hits and was to be excused if he pitched his fast ball in preference to the screw ball which usually is hit on the ground by batters. With two out, Leach doubled against the right-field wall, Lindstrom beat out a grounder to Frisch and Terry then tripled to left center, scoring Leach and Lindstrom. Ott's single to right scored Terry with the Giants' seventh run.

After that inning Sherdel went to the hill and prevented further scoring, but the Giants didn't need any more and the Cardinals didn't do any damage to Hubbell after the big third frame.

Bill Terry had a perfect day at bat, with three singles, a triple and a base on balls.

Hubbell allowed eight hits and doled them out one to an inning except in the third.

Red Bird Notes.

Jim Lindsey, the right-hander recently purchased from Houston, will make his Cardinal debut this afternoon in the first game of the double-header with the Giants. Al Grabowski, the young southpaw from Danville, who defeated the Braves, Wednesday, will be the starting pitcher in the other game. Larry Benton and Bill Walker are due for the Giants.

The first game will be started at 1:15 o'clock, 15 minutes earlier than usual.

McGraw's team will make its final appearance of the season here tomorrow, which will be another ladies' day. Tuesday's game was advanced to make possible a twin bill this afternoon.

John McGraw is not with his club. He stayed in the East to look over several recruits recently purchased.

The paid attendance was announced as 2909. Several hundred girls attended as guests of the management.

The score was 6—1, 4—6, 4—6, 6—2, 6—1. While Brown and Eggmann were favored Josties and Hodge surprised by forcing the play to five sets. The winners will oppose Karl Kammann and Charles Barnes for the doubles title next week.

Misstep, restrained for half a mile, moved up fast thereafter, but came a trifle wide at stretch turn, when he took command, but had to be roused some in the last furlong and held the fast-coming Lady Broadcast. Lady Broadcast was badly outrun in early part and raced unnecessarily wide at last two turns, but finished boldly and was gaining on leader near end. Karl Eitel raced with My Dandy in early stages, but was well spent before going seven furlongs. My Dandy gave way readily when he reached the stretch turn.

$2 mutuels paid: Misstep, win $3.96, place $2.72, show out; Lady Broadcast, place $4.44, show out; Karl Eitel, show out.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 14.—When the scratching finished, but four starters remained to contest the rich Steger Handicap, the feature attraction at Lincoln Fields this afternoon, and Misstep, the Le Mar Stock Farm's handicap champion of the west, carrying top weight of 129 pounds, outclassed his opposition to win. It was Misstep's first start since he won the Crete Handicap. Lady Broadcat, from R. Caldwell's stable was second, with Alderman J. J. Coughlin's Karl Eitel third. My Dandy was the only other starter.

The race carried a net value of $5080 to the winner, $1000 to second, $500 to third and $120 to the fourth stables.

Jockey C. McCrossen had the leg up on Misstep and he gave the son of Upset a good ride.

Misstep away well and reserved for the first mile was taken into the lead rounding into the home stretch, and after going into a two lengths lead finished gamely under mild urging to win by three-quarters of a length. Lady Broadcast away last and racing in last position to the stretch, came fast and closed well to take the place money by five lengths, Karl Eitel, after forcing the pace to the stretch tired to take the show money by two lengths from My Dandy. The latter taken into the lead at the start held on well for six furlongs, then quit.

The winner paid $3.96 for a $2 mutuel ticket. The weather was clear and the track fast until the running of the feature number when it was called only good.

Argentine and Briton Who Battle Next Wednesday

Vittorio Campolo (in fighting pose) Argentine Giant, and British heavyweight title hope Phil Scott.

By Melvin D. Fulcher

The Futurity and Jockey Club Gold Cup both were Whitney triumphs, as both winners, Whichone and Diavolo, came from this great thoroughbred-producing establishment. Whichone is by Chicle and Diavolo is by the noted Whiskbroom II, which is credited with running a mile and a quarter in 2:00 flat, an American record, after his return to this country from England in 1913.

The Futurity has been increasing in value and point of interest with years and it is hard to estimate the future heights that will be reached by this great 2-year-old fixture. Yesterday's renewal was the richest of them all, with 17 starters, and it is the expressed hope of Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, to see 30 or 40 horses start in this race over the course which bears his name. While this would be a turf prize that might stand for years in point of value, it might cause considerable annoyance to official callers who compile form charts.

Murphy at Belmont.

Joseph A. Murphy, general manager of the Hawthorne Course at Chicago, was a visitor at Belmont Park yesterday and viewed the running of the big program at that course. His principal mission East was to solicit nominations for the Hawthorne Gold Cup, which is a weight for age stake to be run at the coming meeting at that track.

The news of Jockey Albert Johnson's intention to retire from the saddle for all time, recalls the important part that this great rider played while astride many leading American thoroughbreds, and particularly old Exterminator. But never did Johnson ride a more perfect race and battle more determinedly through the stretch than he did while winning a race on a "good thing." Napthalius, at the Bowie spring meeting in 1921. The horse was only a plater, but the race contained many of the elements that go to make racing the sport it is and with which the archives of the turf are filled.

The race was over a distance of ground and Napthalius, owned by Tom Edwards, a St. Louis turfman, had been carefully preserved and otherwise fitted for this special spot. Quite a snug little commission had been placed on him and some of it had gotten into the hands of St. Louis layers. Napthalius, a handy post 'orse, broke on top, but was instantly joined by Hello Pardner, who opened up a two length lead going around the first turn. Under mild urging by Johnson Napthalius gradually closed the gap until in the stretch he was only a half length behind the Pardner horse. From there on, however, it was a desperate battle with Hello Pardner running gamely and holding on like a bulldog, and it was only in the last jump that Johnson, by exercising all of his skill, was able to get "Naps" nose in front as they flew by the finish line. Incidentally this was the last race Napthalius was ever able to win for Edwards, while Hello Pardner went on to continue triumphs among the platers.

Players Pay Again.

It is reported that Coley Madden, a well known clubhouse layer in New York, trapped quite a few of the big players there a week ago in the running of the Champagne Stakes. The Whitney entry, Boojum and Whichone, were quoted at 1 to 6 as an entry, but Madden quoted them separately, with Boojum at 3 to 5 and Whichone at 2 to 1. As Trainer Rowe had declared to win with Boojum many players literally "ate" this up instead of taking the much shorter quotation against them as an entry. But Whichone was the winner and the players had to settle.

The yearlings at the Thistledown Farm of George Collins, near Lexington, by Old Slip, the famous racer of a few years back, are reported to be a specially fine looking lot.

CAMPOLO-SCOTT FIGHT FIRST OF SERIES TO NAME WORLD CHAMPION

By John E. Wray
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

This burlesque heavyweight fight campaign will reach one of its high points this week. The occasion will be the mingling, in the Brooklyn arena, of the Argentine giant Vittorio Campolo and Phil Scott of England, object to horizontalize one another.

This battle is now being called the "semifinal" for the world's championship, the idea being that the winner will oppose the survivor of the Loughran-Sharkey setto later in the month, in the "final." The last mentioned engagement would crown the victor with the championship.

Some survivor, and some champion.

Run over the records of the four candidates:

No Title Class Here.

SHARKEY—A powderpuff hitter who nearly three years ago was knocked out by Dempsey, who was then a defeated champion.

LOUGHRAN—A fighter who as light-heavyweight champion had a hard time beating some of his challengers, none of them great fighters; a boxer, who can not hit hard and who is a safety first scrapper.

CAMPOLO—A giant fighter of only indifferent experience and unproved ability, whose very altitude is a handicap to him.

SCOTT—A fighter who has been knocked out in a punch by Knute Hansen and who, although no spring chicken, has never achieved an outstanding victory over a capable foe.

From one of these we are to have a champion!

It's Up to Campolo.

There is just one chance of an interesting development and that lies in the Argentine. He is new and his prowess is only partly revealed in his U. S. fights. He has had two battles in North America. In the first he beat Arthur de Kuh, who is tough and little else, winning on a foul in the third round. In the other fight he met Tom Heeney, the one-time "Hard Rock," who had been badly beaten up in previous encounters. Campolo stopped Heeney, the referee intervening to save Tom from punishment.

This victory gave Campolo some sort of standing, as he accomplished what Tunney did in a shorter time.

This feat should not be credited too highly as Heeney showed in all his bouts this year that he was suffering from the beating Tunney had inflicted on him last year.

However, Vittorio may come on and amount to something. The others have all matured to their fullest and nothing more can be expected of them. It will be a drab reign if any of the three, Scott, Loughran or Sharkey wins the title.

Max to the Rescue!

There is one little "out." The winner of the championship "final" sooner or later will have to fight Max Schmeling, and Max may prove to be the factor that will revive interest in the heavyweights.

There is talk going the rounds that Jack Dempsey will fight Schmeling at Agua Caliente or perhaps in Chicago, but that is very improbable. It would be a mistake by all concerned—except financially. Dempsey could gain nothing but money and would be almost certain to lose prestige and suffer terrific punishment. If Jack won, it would merely indicate that Schmeling was an over-rated fighter, not that Dempsey was himself again. If Max won the carpers would hold that he had beaten a wornout wreck.

Schmeling is at present in Europe and the chances are slim that he will fight anyone in this country for several months. Until his tangle with the New York Commission is straightened he can do nothing in the East. The probabilities are that he will play an early spring engagement in Miami against the winner of the final.

This schedule would involve a winter battle between the winners of the two fights this month, namely, the Campolo-Scott and Loughran-Sharkey contests.

That would be the logical move and it would book for the opening of the New Miami Arena, a feature that could be called a "world championship fight."

Glennon Kunz, 13 years old, 1389 Blackstone avenue, won the Babe Ruth All-America team contest which closed here Aug. 31, the winners of which are announced today, by naming the same players as Ruth selected, and placing five men in the correct places in the batting order. Of the thousands of contestants entered, Kunz's line nearest to Ruth's team batting order. The first-place winner will receive $100.

Winners of other awards were: Thomas Corrigan, 6130 McPherson avenue, second place, who will receive $75; Elenore Rogers, 2117 Arsenal street, third, $50, and Nelson Winslade, 1119 West Ninth street, Alton, Ill., fourth, $25.

Contestants who entered the five next best line-ups, each of whom will receive $10, are: Ray Hooper, 1925 West Seventy-third street, Cleveland; Stephen Biederman, East Carondelet, Ill.; Holmes Morrison, 1308 Edgar avenue, Mattoon, Ill; Charles Becker, 110 West Rose Hill, Kirkwood, Mo., and James Foster, 6825 Southwest avenue, St. Louis.

Home Run Bats as Prizes.

Twelve autographed Babe Ruth baseballs and 12 autographed Babe Ruth bats will be given to the entants with the 24 next nearest correct lineups, the winners of which are listed elsewhere on this page.

A really interesting development of the contest was the fact that the winners of the four principal places were all juniors, the oldest, a girl, being only 15 years of age. She was 14 and two were 13 years old. Of the next group of money prizes winners one was 14, another 13 and one 12.

Of the others who figured in the trophy winning the ages ranged from 14 to 46, a majority of this group being above the age of majority.

KUNZ'S TEAM.	RUTH'S TEAM.
Wilson, cf.	Traynor, 3b.
Traynor, 3b.	Simmons, lf.
Foxx, 1b.	Foxx, 1b.
Herman, rf.	Herman, rf.
Hornsby, 2b.	Hornsby, 2b.
Simmons, lf.	Wilson, cf.
Cochrane, c.	Cochrane, c.
Jackson, ss.	Jackson, ss.
Bush, p.	Grove, p.
Grove, p.	Bush, p.

Kunz placed the correct men in third, fourth, fifth, seventh and eighth places in the batting order. He missed in the lead-off position, naming Wilson while Ruth named Traynor. Kunz named Traynor for the second place in his batting order. Ruth named Simmons.

The next place they differed was at No. 6. There Kunz placed Simmons, while Ruth put Hack Wilson there. As to the pitchers, it will be recalled that Ruth ruled it would make no difference which pitcher was named first.

Essays Were Important.

In addition to having the batting order that was nearest to Ruth's, Kunz had a well thought out essay in which he listed sound reasons for selecting his players. A considerable number of the thousands of teams entered were discarded because they omitted essays.

The winner of second place, Thomas Corrigan, listed four players in their correct positions in the batting order, as did Elenore Rogers, who was awarded third place. Although Miss Rogers had a good accompanying essay, the judges ruled that Corrigan's was better and he was therefore placed second. Nelson Winslade placed three men in their correct positions to receive the fourth award.

This year Babe Ruth made his All-America team contest harder than ever before, in ruling that contestants must make an effort to list their teams in the same batting order that his team was listed. Action along this line was taken to make the contest one that would attract adults.

The move had the desired result. Adult baseball followers, eager to test their baseball knowledge, entered the contest by the thousands, yet it so happened that the winners of the first four prizes are only 13, 14, 15 and 13 years old, respectively. In this case youth was served over age with a vengeance.

Batting Order Feature Made It More Difficult to Pick Ruth Team This Year

Glennon Kunz, of 1298 Blackstone, who won first prize of $100, is only 13 years old. He will not be 14 until Dec. 28. A boy of 14, Thomas Corrigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Corrigan, 6130 McPherson, won the second award. Elenore Rogers, 2117 Arsenal street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Rogers, who took third award, is 15, and Nelson Winslade, 1119 West Ninth street, Alton, Ill., is only 12.

The judges of the contest, J. G. Taylor Spink, Jack Fournier and A. E. "Artie" Eilers, had no knowledge of the identity of any of the contestants involved when they made the awards.

About the Winner.

Glennon Kunz, winner of the first award, is an orphan, and is one of nine children. He is the baby and is the only boy. His father died four years ago and his mother last year. The only other boy in the family, Thomas, was killed in action in France in 1918, while serving with the 138th Infantry.

The $100 award, as may be imagined, will be very acceptable to the Kunz household, according to Glennon's oldest sister, Annette, to whom has fallen the job of being both father and mother to four sisters as yet unmarried, ranging from 21 years down to 16, and Glennon.

They are Estella, 21, employed by the United Drug Co.; Margaret, 17, and Pauline, 19, employed by Rice Stix Co., and Rose, 16, who attends Hempstead school.

Glennon, a member of the sixth grade at Hempstead, demonstrated that he knew his baseball, when questioned about his Babe Ruth team.

"Why did you put Hack Wilson in center field when Douthit, a St. Louis player, was such a strong candidate?" he was asked.

"Wilson's home run hitting makes up for any difference between the two players in the field," quickly replied Glennon. "And I don't like Combs, the only other player I considered at center. He can't throw, and is not in the same class with Hack.

"I picked the pitchers on their won and lost records. After all, that was the only way to choose them. I hesitated between Grimes and Bush but finally decided on the figures."

Glennon is the type of boy fan who keeps all available records on baseball and its players. Baseball is his meat and drink. That he knew the records well is proved by the fact that he mailed in his selections two days after the contest opened. There was no hesitation. He knew his players and sent in his team, with no help from an outsider.

In addition to being a major league fan, Glennon likes to play the game himself, although at 90 pounds he still is a bit small for his school nine. As may be guessed, he would rather pitch than play any other position. He is a member of the Cardinals' Knothole gang, but was able to see only about five games this year, due to the fact that he attended summer school.

Thomas Corrigan who won the second award, is a freshman at St. Louis University High School. He sent in his team the day the contest closed. He said he made up a team soon after the contest opened and then put it away until the last available averages had been published.

"I took the night off before the contest closed," explained Thomas, and went through the averages and made a few changes in my team. Sure, I was stuck for a while at center field, but then I figured that Wilson had driven in more runs than Douthit. Hack also covers center field O. K."

Like Glennon Kunz, young Corrigan is a member of the Knothole gang. His favorite of all favorites is Rogers Hornsby, and his favorite team is the Cardinals.

"Sister Knew Best."

The Rogers family was glad to learn that Elenore was one of the winners, with the exception of one. The exception is her young brother, Prescott Jr., age 18, who is the original baseball fan in the Rogers family. He decided to enter a team and persuaded his sister to do the same. The brother, like many others, stumbled over the center-field position. He selected Douthit, while his sister inserted Wilson in her lineup. Otherwise their lineups were the same.

Nelson Winslade of Alton, winner of the fourth award of $25, is a 13-year-old newsboy. He is a freshman at Marquette High School in Alton, and is shortstop on the Alton Playground team. Nelson, who has been selling papers since he was 8 years old, has saved $700, which will be increased by the award. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Winslade. His father is employed by the Shell Petroleum Co. at Wood River, Ill.

41 Contestants Pick Same Players as Ruth

Exactly 41 of the thousands of entrants in the Babe Ruth All-America team named the same players selected by Babe Ruth. A few of these entrants were eliminated by the judges because no essays accompanied the team, and in one case a correspondent sent in the correct team without giving his name and address. Last year 73 contestants picked teams identical with the one selected by the Bambino.

When the judges got down to making the awards for the 4 bats and baseballs, it was found that 25 selections remained which had the same players as Ruth. In going through these the judges discovered two line-ups from the same address and apparently from the same family. Under the circumstances the judges ruled that only one award should go to one family.

The judges who made their selections from thousands of letters performed their difficult duty in painstaking manner. They were J. G. Taylor Spink, publisher of the Sporting News, Jack Fournier, former major league baseball star, now in the insurance business here, and A. E. "Artie" Eilers, business manager of athletics at Washington University.

Fifth Post-Dispatch Contest

This year's contest, which started Aug. 11 and closed Aug. 31, was Babe Ruth's eighth all-America contest and the fifth sponsored by the Post-Dispatch. It developed the same keen interest as shown in previous contests by baseball fans. Selections were received from all parts of the United States.

Ruth crossed up the great majority of entrants, the selections show, by placing Hack Wilson at center field instead of Taylor Douthit. About 90 per cent of the contestants named Douthit instead of Wilson. More than 600 persons missed Ruth's all-America picks by a single player, and that, in many cases, was the center fielder.

Right Field Fooled Many.

Another position which caused considerable trouble was right field, where Babe Herman was named over such other strong candidates as Lefty O'Dpul of the Phils, who had played a few games there, and Melvin Ott, of the Giants. For the most part, the remaining players were "standouts" in their respective positions, the pitchers excepted, where such men as Grimes of the Pirates, Lucas of the Reds, and Earnshaw of the Athletics, were named on many teams instead of Guy Bush.

Of St. Louis players quite a number came in for mention in a sufficient number of selections to warrant attention. Red Kress and Heine Manush were the most frequently named Brownies while, in addition to the overwhelming majority in favor of Taylor Douthit, many votes were received for Jimmy Wilson. Frankie Frisch and Jim Bottomley.

Ruth's Only Error Was Naming Foxx Instead Of Bill Terry—McGraw

By John J. McGraw,
Manager New York Giants.

The main point of difference I have had with Babe Ruth's selection of an all-star team for 1929 is in his selection of Foxx of the Athletics for first base over Bill Terry of the Giants. I think most of the fans agree with me that Terry is a more experienced and a better first baseman. Besides that his hitting average is better than that of Foxx. It was much better at the time of the selections, and still is.

JOHN McGRAW

I really don't see how anybody could have avoided putting Terry on the team and I notice that most of the other experts have done so. Foxx, having played both third and first, was not definitely established as first baseman of experience. It is easy to understand Ruth's selection of an outfield because he did not include himself. His whole team is exactly the same as mine except that he put Foxx on first base, and named Hack Wilson for the outfield instead of himself.

In a way it is rather remarkable that Ruth and I should have picked a team so similar. This is particularly true as to pitchers, catchers and so on. We both picked Cochrane for the catcher. For pitchers we named Bush of the Cubs and Grove of the Athletics.

Same Men at 7 Positions.

Our teams were identical in this respect: Cochrane, catcher; Bush and Grove, pitchers; Hornsby, second base; Jackson, shortstop; Traynor, third base; Simmons and Herman in the outfield. I put Terry on first instead of Foxx and put Ruth in the outfield in place of Simmons. Oddly, I had no idea who Ruth would select and he certainly had no opportunity to know my selections.

In Pittsburg we heard considerable criticism because writers who believe that Lloyd Waner should have the preference over Wilson in the outfield. This was due to the number of hits made by Waner, his ability as an outfielder and also the number of runs he had driven in. There are grounds for argument there in the matter of Ruth's team, but not in mine. I put Ruth himself into a position which he was clearly entitled. I don't think there should be any question about the other selections and it is one of the few years in which the fans themselves were almost unanimous. I like the selection of Babe Herman because he is an outstanding figure in baseball this season. He is one of the best natural hitters who has come into the game. There is certainly no getting around the selection of Hornsby, Jackson and Traynor. Al Simmons is clearly entitled to a place on that team.

McGraw Thinks Travis Jackson Is Standout Shortstop in Big Leagues

An interesting feature of this annual discussion is that everybody named Jackson. Although his hitting has been a little off as compared with previous years he is still the standout shortstop on both leagues. Traynor has his off year last season but has come back strong. He is truly a great ball player.

In considering Bush and Grove the fans must remember that these two men did a tremendous lot toward fixing their clubs in the pennant races. They were solid, substantial and dependable all year. The confidence that players inspire in their teammates is often of as much value as mathematical records.

Cubs Won't Have Let-Down.

In my own selections I have made a point of considering team spirit and competitive instinct. Even so, the players selected star out in that respect as well as actual records.

I don't think that National League fans need worry any longer about the Cubs having a serious let-down after they have cinched the pennant. Often, you know, teams have been so influenced by these inevitable let-downs that the world's games are not nearly as full of pep and fighting spirit as those during the season. Nineteen years ago when the schedules of the two leagues did not end at the same time the Athletics instead of lying idle, were put on edge by playing a picked team of all stars. That would not be feasible now because both teams end their regular season just two days before the big show. The Cubs have an idle spell of four or five days, but they will be snapped back by a lively series with the Pirates and Cardinals the last few days.

The Athletics suffered a let-down a week or so ago, but they have got their second wind and are going strong again. Its going to be a hot series.

Valley Coaches Discuss Rules And "Stand By"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 14.—About 100 athletic directors, coaches and officials of the Missouri Valley district met today at the Kansas City Athletic Club and discussed the football rules of 1929, adopting a few minor interpretations but for the most part adopting the same interpretations as in 1928, except where new rules were effected.

There was nothing of vital importance except the fact that after discussing various sections of the rules at some length it was decided to stick to the code as it is written, which is usually the case after a meeting of that kind.

Directors of the Six Six held a meeting and agreed on basketball officials for next winter but did not announce the names, waiting to see if the officials chosen could accept. They also discussed track conditions but did not attempt to draw up a schedule.

Dr. Al Sharpe and Arthur Eilers, represented Washington University at the meeting. M. F. Ahearn, director of athletics at the Kansas State Agricultural College, presided at the directors and coaches meeting and D. X. Bible, new fotball coach at the University of Nebraska, presided at the officials meeting. Both are members of the Rules Committee.

TWO-MAN LEAGUE FOR MEDIUM AVERAGE BOWLERS AT ROGERS

With the bowling season now starting to hit its full stride the Rogers alleys are planning several features which will be confined mainly to the medium average bowlers. One of the features is a two-man league to bowl on Sunday nights at 7 o'clock and which will be exclusively for bowlers with averages of 155 and under. Each member on the winning team will receive a gold medal awarded by the Rogers company and any two-man team in the city within the average limit may make application.

The individual contests for bowlers with 185 averages and under which proved popular during the past seasons will again be featured with the first one starting on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 5 and 6.

23 States Figured In Post-Dispatch's Babe Ruth Contest

THAT the Post-Dispatch's Babe Ruth contest attracted widespread interest was shown by the fact that correspondents from 23 states participated.

Of the prize winners, 19 were non-residents of the city, although nine resided within comparatively short distances. Three states, Ohio, Missouri and Illinois, supplied all of the 33 prize winners.

Of the 10 winners of cash prizes the first four had an average age of under 14 years. The average age of the first seven prize winners was 15. The other two were 47 and 39, respectively.

The largest number of selections received in one day during the contest was approximately 1700.

COACH HENRY OF MISSOURI MUST DEVELOP TWO POWERFUL TACKLE

1929 SUCCESS DEPENDS UPON FINDING PAIR FOR LINE JOBS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo.—Tackles, Football Coach Gwinn Henry, University of Missouri, expounds, are the most important part of a football machine. It so happens, however, that out of 15 Missouri letter men expected to return for the 1929 campaign only one was a tackle—Eugene Hawkins of Colby, Wash. And now Hawkins has written Henry that it is very unlikely he iwll put in his appearance this fall. All of which has not thrown a cheery hue over the opening of Tiger practices here Monday.

Not a little of the effectiveness of the 1928 Missouri eleven emanated from the steady and oftentimes brilliant play of "Big Bill" Smith, 200-pound tackle, and Hawkins, who played both guard and tackle. Usually Henry has been blessed at the start of the season with a pair of giant tackles. This year, it appears, he will have to develop them.

Two 200-Pound Apprentices.

Jim Baker of Sikeston, "Luke" Kilgroe of Hot Springs, Ark., and Bill Warden of Kansas City, all scaling around the 200 mark, served their apprenticeship on Henry's squad last fall and seem likely to be in line for the vacancies. Stanley Stroff, St. Louis boy who will come up from the ranks of the freshmen this fall, with a little more seasoning, is regarded as possibility for a tackle berth. Others who will figure in the fight for the openings are Oliver Lindenmeyer of Lake Forest, Ill., brother of Missouri's all-American tackle, and Gilbert Kellersman, veteran reserve of Webster Groves.

If Henry can solve the tackle situation, he is virtually certain of placing the Tigers well up in the Big Six pennant race this fall. If he can't, the Tigers will be, at best, a second rate eleven. There is nothing lacking in the way of material for other positions in either the line or backfield. It may be that Henry will find the solution of his problem in shifting some of his veteran guards of wingmen into the vexatious tackle openings.

Ends, Henry has in profusion. J. M. "Mack" Gladden of Houston, Mo., and Keith Hursely of Kansas City appear to have the regular wing positions. Gladden, before he was forced out early in the season by injuries last year, was rated by Henry as his best end, despite the presence then of T. Miller Brown, all-Big Six end and Tiger captain. Hursely held the other end position last fall. Only an accident could prevent him from keeping it. Both Gladden and Hursely tower above six feet and weigh over 180 pounds. Hursely, 1929 Tiger track captain, held the Missouri 440-yard record last year.

Hupert Campbell of Odessa filled in at end enough last fall to win his letter and will furnish a third seasoned end. Dick Morgan of Newton, Kan., a fourth wingman, was awarded a provisional letter last fall.

The center of the Missouri line will be well filled with veterans, three lettermen at both center and guard returning this fall. Capt. John Waldorf of Kansas City, regular fullback, who also is a veteran center, will be available to supplement the work of Raymond Smith of Sapulpa, Ok., who holds the assignment regularly, and Leonard McCaulley of Granite City, Ill., who played center and guard last fall.

In the backfield, too, Henry is blessed with both quantity and quality. Besides Waldorf, Missouri will have Stanley Cox of St. Joseph, Russell Dills of Albany, Harold Garner of Quapaw, Ok., Scott Kennedy of Kansas City, Bill Oldham of Kansas City, Bernard Schaff of St. Joseph, Wesley Nash of St. Louis and Kern Reece of Mount Grove. All of these are lettermen or provisional lettermen, players who did not quite complete the required playing time for a varsity letter.

Carl Johanningmeier of St. Louis and J. Van Dyne of Sedalia, sophomore back, performed as members of the freshman team last year in a manner that marked them as potential varsity material.

The tentative Missouri roster including sophomores:

Backs—Capt. Waldorf of Kansas City; Stanley Cox, St. Joseph; Russell Dills, Albany; Harold Garner, Quapaw, Ok.; Scott Kennedy, Kansas City; Bill Oldham, Kansas City; Bernard Schaff, St. Joseph; Reece, Mt. Shires Penitent After Fist Fight

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—Art Shires, Chicago White Sox first baseman, who was embroiled in a fist fight with his manager, Russell (Lena) Blackburne, and Lou Barbour, club secretary, in a hotel here last night, turned out today to be just a penitent young man.

"I regret this whole affair," Shires said. "I am not a fighting ball player and I don't look for trouble. I am considerably embarrassed and worried about the way this will affect my friends and relatives."

"The whole thing started when some ginger ale was brought to my room," Shires said. "Blackburne and Barbour both came in at once and pounced in on me to know what I was doing drinking ginger ale.

"I announced I would drink all the ginger ale I might desire, and the trouble began.

"The club offered me transportation back to Chicago, which I refused, because there was no allowance for meals on the way. I will pay my own way back there."

Shires entered Shibe Park today, but left after being told police had been instructed to order him from the grounds.

"The White Sox club has cost me close to $3000 this season in fines and suspensions without pay," said Shires. "I am now indefinitely suspended again, and I suppose that means for the rest of the season. Well, I'm going into training for professional football now."

Blackburne had a blackened left eye today as a result of the hotel room dispute. Barbour was nursing bruises received in a severe pummeling.

The Red and Black will have a heavier team than last year, according to the daily weight chart. The team will average about 155 pounds compared with 145 of last year.

The schedule for the season follows:

October 4, Soldan, there.
October 12, Collinsville, there.

October 26, Wood River, there.

Abbott Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Abbott, 815 Claytonia terrace, took place last night at the First Presbyterian Church. The soft glow of cathedral candles formed the only illumination as the bridal party entered the church edifice. The attendants passed down a candlelit aisle to the chancel where tall standards of lighted tapers nestled in a bower of greenery interspersed with baskets of gayly colored dahlias and roses. They wore gowns of lustrous satin in the pastel shades—Mrs. Culbertson in orchid, Miss Parrett in green, Miss Worthington, yellow, Miss Smith in peach and Miss Gilger in blue. They were fashioned with simple bodices terminating in the new higher waist line effect, and irregular skirts shirred at the left side and falling into long sweeping draperies at the right. Large bows of matching satin at the right hip formed the trimming. They wore accessories to match and carried dahlias to correspond, tied with ribbon the shade of their gowns. Their jewelry consisted of strands of pearls, the gifts of the bride.

The bride was gowned in deep ivory pearl-

Little Season Opens At National Capital

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.

THE hundreds of society folk who witnessed the races of the President's Cup regatta are evidence that there is already a sufficient number of important persons in town to make a season.

It was a brilliant crowd that turned out for this opening of the little season and saw the races from the President's revenue cutter Apache—not such a very modest boat in size and equipment—and the official boat, the Mendota, and dozens of other craft belonging to the government and private owners.

Vice President Curtis had as his guests at the Mayflower for several days this week his daughter, Mrs. Charles P. George, and her children. They did not remain for the regatta but left for Fort Sill, Ok., where Maj. George is stationed. Mrs. George spent the summer at Siasconset, Mass., where the Vice President and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Gann, visited her in the late summer.

Mrs. Gann is spending busy days just now in her pretty home at Cleveland Park, preparing to rent it for the winter season. She made curtains and hangings herself, and there is much of her handiwork along other lines in the prettily furnished rooms.

Now that the Prime Minister of England, Ramsay MacDonald, has definitely said he will come for a visit to the United States, many persons from Washington who are now abroad are changing plans and preparing to hasten back to Washington to be present at the entertainments for him. Four countries will entertain, England, with Sir Esme Howard, its Ambassador, as host; the Irish Free State, with Michael MacWhite as host; Canada, with Vincent Massey as host, and the United States with President Hoover. Mr. and Mrs. Massey are still in Canada, where they spent the summer, but will return by the time MacDonald sails from England late this month. The largest and most brilliant entertainment of all will be given by the British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard.

Senator Hugo Black has been joined in his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel by Mrs. Black and their small sons, Hugo Jr., and Sterling. Mrs. Black is the youngest of the Senatorial wives from the South. She is modest in her Washington social connections but very popular.

Another southern family now in residence here is that of Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who is the close neighbor of Senator Robert M. LaFollette Jr., of Wisconsin. These Senators live in comfortable fashion on Cathedral avenue, a wide street, with broad front porches overlooking Rock Creek Park with its forest of big trees. Just opposite them is a hedge of sweet wild honeysuckle and pink roses that divides the street from the park enclosure, and both have flowers growing in their small yards. They are so close to the Government zoo that they can hear the calls of the wild animals and birds there.

Mrs. LaFollette, widowed mother of the Senator, lives with him and keeps his home. She is a member of the Women's National Republican Club but is not active in politics.

20 French Teachers Visit Berlin.

Fort Zumwalt Tablet Unveiling Tuesday

THE unveiling of Fort Zumwalt tablet, 32 miles west of St. Louis on Highway 40 at O'Fallon, Mo., will be celebrated by patriotic societies on Constitution day, Tuesday. The tablet was erected under the auspices of the St. Louis Pioneer and Rebecca Wells Heald Chapters of the United States Daughters of 1812.

Fort Zumwalt was built in 1798 on a Spanish grant. In 1817 it was purchased by Maj. Nathan Heald, who commanded Fort Dearborn in the War of 1812. Maj. Heald and his wife, Rebecca Wells Heald, heroine of Randall Parrish's book, "When Wilderness Was King," lived in this old fort until their death, and are buried in a nearby cemetery.

Their only son, Darius Heald, up to his death in 1904, kept the old fort in good repair. The granddaughters of Maj. Heald, who will take part in the celebration, are: Mrs. J. Richmond and Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, honorary state president Daughters of 1812, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Wright Johnson and Mrs. Edmonia Heald McCluer of St. Charles county. Two great-great-granddaughters of Maj. Heald, Margaret Wells McCluer and Lillian Alice Barron, will unveil the tablet.

Mrs. William Harvey England, regent of the St. Louis Chapter, and Mrs. R. E. Hinrichs, regent of Pioneer Chapter, will make addresses. Miss Marcia Williams of O'Fallon will present the tablet to the state president, Mrs. William R. Painter, of Carrollton.

The tablet committee is composed of Mrs. C. N. Jewett, Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, Mrs. T. D. Morse and Miss Marcia Williams.

W. T. Treadway, prominent St. Louis horseman, will send nine of his mounts into competition at next month's show. His favorite horses, "Rainbow Rose" and "Bugger Boo Rose," are regarded as among the leaders in their respective classes, while "Rex Lee Bourbon," "My Mary Lou," "Clay Willis," "Alicias King," "Golden Triumph," "My Delight," and "Sir Mack," are the other Treadway entries. Dr. W. C. Gadsby, a prominent figure at horse shows, will ride most of the Treadway mounts.

Dr. John R. Caulk, another leading horseman, was the second St. Louisan to send in an entry. Dr. Caulk will enter and ride "Al Gries" at the national show.

The out-of-town entries received to date have passed the 150 mark, according to August A. Busch Jr., who states that San Francisco, Los Angeles, Pueblo, Denver, New Orleans, Detroit, Cleveland, Toledo, New York and Philadelphia are represented among the early entries.

GECKS EXPLAINS RESIGNATION

Says He Left Philharmonic Society to Take Rest.

Frank Gecks yesterday called attention to an item in Friday's Post-Dispatch announcing his resignation as conductor of the orchestra of the Philharmonic Society as being due to illness.

"My reason for resigning," Gecks said, "was that after so many years of unselfish and energetic service I felt that I was entitled to a respite. My health is excellent and my energies unimpaired. I am still very busy and working in the same spirit with my classes at the Odeon." Gecks conducted the orchestra for 30 years. His successor is Frederick Fischer, assistant conductor of the Symphony Orchestra.

CORNERSTONE LAYING SUNDAY FOR JENNINGS UNION CHURCH

A congregation of 13 demoninations, that of the Jennings Union Church, Cozzens and Hord avenues, will lay the cornerstone of its new $45,000 brick edifice next Sunday at 4 p. m. Organized ten years ago by the union of small Presbyterian, Episcopal and Methodist missions, the multi-denominational group has grown until it is one of the leading churches of its kind in the Middle West.

In addition to the three "charter" denominations, the congregation now includes Quakers, Congregationalists, Lutherans, Evangelicals, Southern Methodists, Northern and Southern Baptists, Christians and Southern and United Presbyterians. E. W. Broemmelseik, president of the congregation, who will place the cornerstone, is an Episcopalian. The minister of the church is the Rev. John A. McGaughey, a Presbyterian.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur H. Armstrong, executive secretary of the St. Louis Church Federation, will make the address at the cornerstone laying. The Rev. W. B. Lampe, president of the federation, and the Rev. George A. Campbell, its executive committee chairman, Presbyterian and Christian, respectively, will take part in the ceremony.

The new building, 86 feet by 54 feet, will be of Gothic Clere-story design. The ground floor will be equipped for social and religious educational purposes. With the balcony the main auditorium will seat 350.

Now Comes Scientifically Simplified Skin Care for Busy Women

A Scientific Discovery That Condenses a COMPLETE PROFESSIONAL FACIAL Into a Single Application, Taking Less Than 3 Minutes and Combining the 4 Fundamentals in Skin Care Urged by Foremost Experts

The four fundamentals of scientific skin care are condensed into a single, quick home application

In 3 minutes or less one gets the exact same effect of a complete professional facial costing $3.00 or more

NOW comes a remarkable new development in beauty science. A discovery that many experts say will soon change all previous methods in skin care!

A way that condenses the four fundamentals of scientific skin care into a single three-minute home application! And that provides the exact, same effect of a Complete Professional Facial costing $3 or more.

What It Does

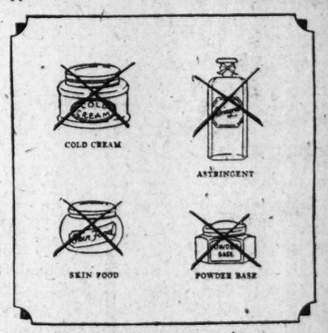
It scientifically combats blackheads and enlarged pores. Combats them often with almost unbelievable results. It banishes premature age lines, and the lines of strain and worry. For each application works directly on each of these conditions.

It completely eliminates the use of costly special creams and lotions. Of old-time cleansing creams, of skin foods and astringents. For the functions of all four are embodied in this one unique creation.

Do you wonder, then, that largely on expert advice, tens of thousands of women are adopting it?

What It Is

It is called Lady Esther Four Purpose Cream. And it marks the application of totally new principles in skin care as defined by the most recent scientific findings of ablest specialists in the field of beauty culture.



Cleansing creams, skin foods, astringents and powder bases are completely eliminated—for the functions of all four are embodied in one unique creation.

Each application has four distinct actions on the skin.

Cleansing action that cleanses the pores. And thus ends the use of an ordinary cleansing cream.

Tissue stimulating action that invigorates the deep tissues of the skin. And thus that ends the use of a special "Skin Food."

Astringent action that eradicates worry, strain and premature age lines, refines pores. And thus that makes the use of youth creams and astringents a folly.

Softening action that forms a perfect base for powder. And thus banishes the need of a powder base.

The four fundamentals of scientific skin care are condensed into a single, quick home application. In 3 minutes or less one gets the exact same effect of a complete professional facial costing $3 or more. Cleansing creams, skin foods, astringents and powder bases are completely eliminated—for the functions of all four are embodied in one unique creation.

Has the laxative in your home a family doctor's approval?

MOST of us value our health too much to neglect ourselves when we have been warned of constipation by bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, headaches, lack of appetite, or that weak, helpless feeling. The continuation of our trouble is more often due to the things we do rather than to the things which we leave undone.

Some things, people do to help the bowels really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what things will cleanse the system without harm. That's why the laxative that's used in your home should have a family doctor's approval.

The wonderful product known to millions as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in his many years of practice at Monticello, Illinois. He proved it safe and reliable for women and children; thoroughly effective for the most robust men. He showed that it actually does correct constipation. And it is made from nothing but herbs and other pure ingredients, so it is pleasant-tasting and cannot form any habit.

Since Dr. Caldwell first permitted his prescription to be put up in bottles and sold through drug stores, it has increased steadily in popularity until today it is the largest selling laxative in the world!

OZARK CITY IN FIGHT TO ESCAPE UTILITY'S CLUTCH

Light Company Sues to Block Salem, Mo., From Paying for Municipal Plant on Deferred Plan.

NOW IS PLANNING A CUT IN RATES

But Mayor Slawson Who in Five Years Has Put in Water and Sewer Systems Expects to Win.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SALEM, Mo., Sept. 14.—Hidden in the Ozark hills, the pretty and progressive city of Salem is, engaged in a finish fight to free itself from the clutch of a foreign-owned public utility. And it is in a fair way to succeed. At least so far it has kept one jump ahead of the utility lawyers.

Salem chose municipal ownership as the escape from high rates for electricity (the small consumer was paying 20 cents per kilowatt hour) and from the practices of operation which have grown up through consolidation of small companies under holding company control. Within a few weeks Salem will have a modern, municipally owned light plant ready to supply current.

The private owned utility is making what appears to be its last stand in a suit it caused to be filed in an effort to prevent the city from paying for its light plant machinery on the deferred payment plan, figuring evidently that as the city has no money to pay in full, the machinery will be removed if payments are not met, and that it will again have the field to itself.

Five Years of Progress.

The municipal plant is the capstone of the progressive structure of Salem, built in five years. In 1924 the city was served by an antequated light plant. It had no water system, no sewer system, no paved streets. That year progressive citizens got together and brought about the election of Dr. George H. Slawson, a dentist, as Mayor, on a platform calling for the establishment of a water plant and a sewer system.

Through Slawson's influence the Board of Aldermen submitted to the voters a $90,000 bond issue, $70,000 for a water system and $20,000 for sewers, the proposal carrying by a vote of 544 to 158. To meet the requirements of these bonds it was necessary to increase the municipal tax rate 60 cents on the $100 valuation, jumping it from 75 cents to $1.35.

The Mayor decided the principal business streets should be better lighted, and proposed a White Way. The city had been levying a 25-cent tax for street lightning, the tax providing more than enough money for the inadequate lights. A surplus of $2000 had accumulated in the lighting fund in the city treasury and this was used to buy 15 standards for the White Way.

When Slawson was re-elected in 1926 he announced he was going to pave some streets, and encountered some opposition, there being a very general objection to boosting the tax rate again. But the Mayor showed them how it could be done without more revenue. There was a general city tax levy of 50 cents. The Mayor said it would be possible to cut down some on city expenditures, and that 10 cents of the 50-cent rate could be set aside to meet the requirements of a bond issue of $10,000 for street improvements. The bonds were voted and 15 blocks in the main part of the town were paved.

Poor Lights at High Prices.

With this completed Slawson had tackled about all the municipal problems except the rates and service of the electric light company.

"The service was just about as bad as it could be, the rates were just about as high," the Mayor said. "You know what going to church means to the people in a city the size of Salem. Well, it got so people had just about quit going to church at night. It was pretty certain the lights would go out before the service was over.

"The women were kicking, too. No two of them in the same block could use their electric irons at the same time. And everybody was kicking about the rates."

The electric plant, operated by the Salem Light and Power Co., was inadequate. It had been erected by local citizens in 1909. This company was capitalized at $10,000. In 1925 it was sold to George E. Silver and d'Arline Holcomb, who installed new machinery, supplanting the old steam boiler with a fuel-oil generating plant. It was about this time that the little Salem plant became the subject of modern public utility exploitation. In March, 1926, it passed into the hands of the Union Edison Co. and later the same year into the hands of the American Utilities Co., which a few months later, March, 1927, "sold" it to one of its subsidiaries, the Missouri General Utilities Co.

How $33,000 Grew to $125,000.

At each stage of transfer the company attained a higher valuation. Although exact statistics are not available, information from responsible sources is that the original owners obtained about $30,000 from its sale to Silver and Holcomb, who are reputed to have obtained more than $50,000 from the Union Edison Co., which, in turn, is said to have received nearly $75,000 from the American Utilities Co. The records show that it was transferred by the American to its subsidiary at a valuation of $125,000.

The agitation for reduced electric rates started in 1925. Rates had been increased in the war period and there was little public objection. Local citizens were operating the plant and in 15 years time had received only one dividend. War prices sent their costs up. But in 1925 when the service had deteriorated, complaints as to service and rates.

Aroused by threats of an appeal to the Public Service Commission for a reduction in rates, the new [illegible] filed a new rate schedule with the commission, and officially it became effective. It was heralded as a reduction, but Mayor Slawson and the Board of Aldermen could not see it that way, and refused to accept it as satisfactory. As a matter of fa[illegible] it never was put into effect.

After the rejection of the new schedule there developed gradually talk of a municipal plant. In

It used to be a tragedy when a woman turned gray before 30. Today women add a touch of color to gray hair as easily and confidently as a touch of color to their lips; both are harmless.

Farr's Gray Hair Color Restorer, harmless to hair and scalp, restores the NATURAL, attractive color to your hair without a trace of gray. The faded look gives place to soft, glossy, lustrous hair, sparkling with girlhood color, so entirely like the original shade no one in your family can detect its use. Don't experiment with preparations that are noticeable. Farr's is easy to use; a few moments in the privacy of your room is enough; neither sticky nor greasy. OZARK CITY IN FIGHT TO ESCAPE UTILITY'S CLUTCH gatherings around Vandervort's drug store and Lee Dent's bank sentiment was crystalized. In the meantime the Mayor was in correspondence with the Public Service Commission.

He objected to the Commission's granting authority to the American Utilities to transfer the property to the Missouri General Utilities at a valuation of $125,000, which he contended was considerably in excess of its worth. The Mayor wrote the Commission that he was looking to the time when the company would seek to have rates fixed on the basis of that valuation. The transfer, however, was authorized.

Professional Valuation.

In this rate squabble Salem had its first experience with the numerous items which go into public utility accounting in fixing the valuation of a property. They learned for the first time of the additions for "omissions and contingencies," legal costs during construction," "organization and promotion" and many other items. They knew some local folks had built a light plant 20 years ago, but they never heard that any real money was expended for a lot of the things the company now charged up in its valuation.

An inventory and valuation were filed by Gannett, Seelye and Fleming of Harrisburg, Pa., manager of the Missouri General Utilities Co.

From this the Mayor and the board learned that the engineers figured the present cost of reproduction of the physical property of the plant at $71,559.06, and that by the time they got through making their additions for intangibles it had run up to $93,807.21. They found $2465.36 added for omissions and contingencies, $500 added for increased land values, $3663.61 for engineering, $1584 for organization and promotion, $946 for legal expense during construction, $997.25 for administration during construction, $804.63 for interest during construction, $259.58 for taxes during construction, $2000 for working capital, and $8527.93 for "going value."

This reproduction cost new was depreciated by the engineers to the figure of $73,182.72.

Valuations Vs. Values.

The inventory and valuation provided entertainment for the Mayor and the board for a number of evenings. They found the plant was supposed to earn on items such as "contractors' overheads," which included entertaining, traveling expenses and the cost of moving the contractors' plant to its next job, and on the contractors' profit, which included his expense of bidding on jobs he didn't get and interest on his investment during slack periods.

They checked up on some of the engineers' valuations of materials used in the construction of the galvanized iron building housing the light company's machinery. For instance, they found that corrugated iron siding was listed at $9.25 per square, while local dealers offered to supply any demand, large or small, for this siding at $5.50 a square. Rafters which were listed in the inventory at $53.85 per thousand feet were quoted on the local market at $35. Bricks listed at $60 a thousand could be bought in Salem for $30, and so on through a long list.

The Mayor said he could not help being convinced that the engineers in valuing their own property had been mighty liberal in cost prices.

While the old 20-cent rate remained in effect public sentiment for a municipal plant was growing. Salem had had a satisfactory experience with a municipally-owned water plant, and the Mayor disseminated information he gathered about low electric rates in other Missouri towns owning their own light plants.

Company Plays Trump Too Late.

The new 16-cent schedule was on file but never had been put into effect, but when it appeared that an election would be called for a bond issue for a municipal plant, the company filed a new schedule which was the same charged by it in Rolla, Mo., 15 cents per KWH for the first 50 KWH and 10 cents for all over 50 KWH. But the public ownership movement had gone too far in Salem to be stopped and in the early spring of 1928 a group of business men waited on the Board of Aldermen and demanded the building of a municipal plant.

In the preparation for the campaign the Mayor had to look around for new legal advice. For years William P. Elmer, member of the Legislature, had served as City Attorney, but Elmer had become attorney for the utility company. But he finally got the papers into shape by using the old water bond ordinance as a guide. The election was called for April 2, this year.

Elmer, who was serving as a legislator in Jefferson City at the time, hurried home before the election date and entered actively into the campaign to defeat the bonds but they were approved by a vote of 588 to 221.

The Mayor received many grapevine reports that Elmer as attorney for the light company was prepared to take legal steps to interfere with the issuance and sale of the bonds, and was preparing to contest every move of the city toward the erection of the plant, and as a result the Mayor adopted a policy of secrecy.

While the Board of Aldermen held regular meetings, no business relating to the light plant was transacted. It later developed that there had been sundry adjourned or specially called meetings of the board, at which action was taken which did not become public until some time later.

It was entirely possible that a suit might be filed to enjoin the sale of the bonds, so they were printed without advance notice, quietly taken to Jefferson City and registered, and sold through a Salem bank, and the $25,000 proceeds of the bond sale was on deposit to the city's credit before anybody except those on the inside knew anything about it.

The opposition, the Mayor expected, would seek by injunction to prevent the paying out of any of the money for construction work. Bids for the distribution system were sought and the board accepted one from Melville B. Hall, Inc., of St. Louis, which agreed to put in the system for $13,308.94, less 2 per cent for cash. The city had the cash and immediately paid it over to the bidder, taking a surety bond to guarantee the work. The city having already paid out the money it could not be enjoined from paying it.

There was necessity for a building to house the machinery and for a time the Mayor was unable to see how he could avoid letting a contract for it, which surely would be interfered with by injunction. But one night he talked it over with his father-in-law, J. H. Butler, and it was decided to and it was decided the city should pay Butler $5000 to erect the building, Butler giving a surety bond and guaranteeing to return any part of the $5000 which was unused. The building cost approximately $2400 and Butler returned $2600 to the city. This money having been paid out, it could not be reached by injunction.

Power Plant Bought on Time.

By these means the power house and the distribution system had been provided, but no provision had been made for a generating plant, and there was far less than enough money to buy it. The resourceful Mayor, however, entered into a deal with Fairbanks, Morse & Co. by which it agreed to sell the machinery for $60,944.40 and to take its payment at the rate of $846.45 a month from the earnings of the light plant. That machinery is now being installed.

It was on this contract that the light company was able to get its first legal action. Every other move of the Mayor had been too

THE EDITOR of a powerful Chicago Newspaper before his death, challenged this statement of Dr. Keeley that "Drunkenness is a disease and I can cure it." The DUETTE
Dry Cleaning and Washing Machine
$14.85

Both Dry Cleans and Washes... Right in Your Own Home.... at One-Tenth the "Sending-Out" Cost

"LOOK at my budget record for April—$15.50 for dry cleaning. Now see May and June—just 95c each month! So you see my little DUETTE saves me almost $15.00 a month. And really I cleaned more things, too—all Harry's neckties, little Juniors' coat, my dresses, besides the living-room drapes. It cleans quickly, easily—and safely, too, for it uses the special non-explosive DUETTE Cleaning Fluid. And I ought to tell you how handy it is for washing out those dainties I'd rather not send out."

Be free from those heavy month-after-month cleaning bills. Do dry cleaning in your own home—for only a few cents per dress—with the practical, inexpensive DUETTE. No more taking chances with inflammable, explosive cleaning liquids either, for the DUETTE Cleaning Fluid is harmless and non-explosive.

A Washing Machine, Too

The handy DUETTE is also an efficient small washing machine. It's just what you've always wanted for that almost daily washing out of infants' and children's things—of silks and laces, Celanese and rayon. You can trust your choicest of dainty things to a DUETTE without fear.

So Easy to Use!

The DUETTE is simplicity in itself to operate. For dry cleaning, simply pour in two quarts of DUETTE Dry Cleaning Fluid—put in the articles to be cleaned—turn the handle slowly forward twice, then backward twice, for only two minutes. That's all! (Pressing is, as a rule, unnecessary.) For washing, put your clothes in the container, fill one-third full of water, and add a spoonful of your favorite soap flakes. Turn slowly three minutes for silks, five minutes for other materials—and your washing is finished.

It can be taken apart or assembled in thirty seconds, and can be kept in a one foot square space in a closet or on a shelf.

New Scientific Principle

The new principle upon which the DUETTE is constructed is simple to understand. As the machine revolves, a series of tiny wavelets is set in motion which clean and purify as they surge back and forth through the meshes of the fabric. The special riffles of the container create a further cleansing action as the clothing swishes from side to side.

There is nothing to get out of order, even under constant use. The DUETTE is always ready to serve you at a moment's notice.

You may obtain your DUETTE in Jade Green or Delft Blue with the container itself finished in white enamel.

Listed below are some of the stores in your city where the DUETTE machine and the special DUETTE non-explosive Dry Cleaning Fluid are on display. Drop in and see how the DUETTE can save you money and time in dry cleaning and washing.

SAFE!
Quicker, Better Cleaning With DUETTE
Non-Explosive Dry Cleaning Fluid

DUETTE Dry Cleaning Fluid does a quicker, better job—yet is perfectly harmless, non-explosive. Pour some on a spoon, touch a match to it—it will not explode.

Use it over and over again. Can be used for occasional cleaning in basin or bowl like any Cleaning Fluid. At your druggist.

clever and swift for it. But after this contract was entered into Elmer and the company's general attorney in Jefferson City, Noah W. Simpson, filed a suit in the name of a citizen of Salem, J. W. Hagler, a Baptist preacher without a church, to contest the right of the city to pledge its funds in that manner. The suit was taken on change of venue to Howell County, where it is awaiting trial.

Not Worried by Suit.

"We are not bothered about this suit," the Mayor said. "We have a light plant and we have had competent legal advice on every step of the procedure. Public sentiment is almost unanimously with us. We can't understand why the Rev. Mr. Hagler would be willing to let them use his name unless it is he just doesn't believe in electricity. That may be it, because he never had any in his house, or water, either."

The Mayor, discussing the situation with the Post-Dispatch, made it plain that the people of Salem do not expect an immediate lowering of rates for electricity.

"They know the plant has to be paid for," he said, "and they expect to pay for it through the electric plant. When the cost of the machinery is out of the way there will be a sharp reduction, but at the outset the city will charge the same rates the private company is charging, except that the minimum will be $1.

"Even at that there will be a saving to the people. There is now a tax of 25 cents on the $100 valuation to maintain our street lights. That will not be collected in the future, and a rate of only 20 cents will be needed to meet the requirements of the bonds. We have it all figured out that the plant will supply our street lighting and water pumping needs, and earn enough to pay the monthly bill for the machinery."

The light company which is continuing in business without a franchise, its 20-year grant having expired last January, recently sought a new 20-year franchise. Elmer took it down to the Board of Aldermen with a request that it be granted. The board voted unanimously to reject it.

The Mayor was asked what if any steps he expected to take to oust the private company from the streets of Salem.

"Our plant is not in operation yet," he replied, "and we will meet that situation when the proper time arrives. We have been educated as to our rights, largely through the Post-Dispatch articles on public utilities. We know the private company can remain in Salem only so long as Salem is willing to let it occupy its streets.

"I can only say at this time that with our investment in a municipal plant, we have no intention of permitting any condition which might interfere with its success."

The Company's Next Move.

This question will be put squarely up to the city in a very short time. It has been learned authoritatively that the light company which has contested any material reduction in its rates on the ground that lower rates would not provide adequate returns, is preparing a new and lower rate schedule to be filed with the Public Service Commission within a few days.

It is the old monopoly trick of burning out a competitor with ruinously low rates for a time only to hike them to the sky when the competitor quits. But Salem says "quit" is not in the local lingo.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

PART FOUR. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 15, 1929. PAGES 1—4A

What's Wrong With the Road

Al Woods, New York Producer, Points Out That Good Plays and Fewer Theaters Would Overcome The Dramatic Invasion of the Talking Movies—So Far the Only Attractions in Sight for St. Louis This Season Are the Offerings of the Theater Guild and Peter Greig's Local Theater Society.

PETER GREIG has begun work putting the old Gayety Theater —now to be known as the Plaza—in shape for The Theater Society of St. Louis' season which, keeping a stiff upper lip, he announces will get going next month. At the same time The New York Theater Guild makes the positive statement that it will start its local season at the American on Oct. 14. That is all, so far, available in the shape of news for the coming year at the two "legit" houses. Neither the American nor the Shubert has set forth any program of possible programs and there are rumors that the show places will not go ahead with any schedule until various differences with the theatrical labor unions are ironed out.

According to word from the Theater Guild the first play which that organization will present at the American, on Oct. 14, will be "Caprice" with Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Douglass Montgomery, Lily Cahill and others in the cast. This play will be followed by "Pygmalion," commencing Oct. 21, "Major Barbara," Oct. 28, "Wings Over Europe," Nov. 4 and "Marco Millions" Feb. 17.

Sylvia Field has been signed by the Guild to play the leading feminine roles in the company which will be seen here in "Marco Millions." This same company will play in the subscription cities and then go on the Pacific Coast for further bookings. In addition to Miss Field, Earle Larimore, Henry Travers, Ernest Cossart, Sydney Greenstreet, Helen Tilden, Teresa Guerini, Albert Van Dekker and some 50 others have been signed for the road tour.

Miss Field's most recent engagements in New York were in "The Royal Family" and "Broadway." For the past season she has been engaged in acting for the articulate screen drama made in Hollywood.

SO much for the little which is known of the coming local season. That the New York producers are quaking in their boots as a result of the success of the talking movies is certain and there is a distinct inclination to believe that the road is dead. Without doubt the way of the touring company in poor plays is going to be a hard one. Every large city in the country is, like St. Louis, tremendously overseated. There are at least 10,000 too many picture theater seats here and one of the legitimate houses could be dispensed with to tremendous advantage to the producing managers and the cash customers alike. By closing up either the Shubert or the American—or, better still, by padlocking them both and building a single new theater with all of the modern comforts of the cinema cathedrals—it would be possible to send here, profitably, 30 or 20 good plays and musical entertainments. To try and provide double that number, with thousands of former patrons comfortably seated at the picture shows means nothing but ruin.

One of the most astute of the New York producers is Al Woods who made a fortune in blood and thunder mellers in the old days until the movies came along and forced him into higher class productions. Woods has his own ideas of what is wrong today and recently he expressed himself clearly to the Theatrical Press Agents of New York who asked him what all the shooting was about. Previously Arthur Hammerstein had laid part of the blame for poor business on the run down condition of the legitimate theater buildings.

"WHEN Hammerstein had 'Rose Marie,'" says Woods, "the theaters were just as dirty as he says they are today, but he sold out with that attraction. I suppose Arthur didn't realize they were dirty until he built his beautiful theater in New York, but it's easier to clean a theater than to get a good play. All you need is paint and pearline.

"But if they don't want the plays, the theater can be studded with sapphires, emeralds and diamonds and they won't go. Give them the plays they like and the public will go.

"Brady won't have any trouble selling out with 'Street Scene'; Miller will do the same with 'Journey's End'; Ziegfeld will do the same with 'Whoopee,' and so will the Theater Guild, or any other manager that has a successful play. They never kick—only the producers who have fair successes that run four, five and six months in New York. Then when they go on the road and because they don't do business, something is wrong with the theater.

"If there were only one theater in cities like Baltimore, Washington, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, etc., it would be a different story. These plays would do business.

"THEY all blame the picture theaters, but—Sweetheart Managers! If you only had the nerve to say to Mr. Erlanger and Mr. Shubert: 'You've got to close from one to two theaters in every city in the United States outside of New York—you would see better business.

"I used to book my attractions after six months in New York, go to Washington, open at the Belasco Theater and find at the National Theater they had Ziegfeld 'Follies' and at Poli's Theater, my Jewish pal, Al Jolson in a big Winter Garden show, as attractions against me. What chance did I have?

"Take less terms—accept a smaller percentage of the receipts—and make them close two theaters there, and when a comedy or drama plays that week they will go to see that one company. Without the competition, the play, as well as the theater, will do business.

"I'm not kidding you. The syndicate can send me contracts with a cut of 5 per cent in terms if they'll close up some of their too-many houses in those over-seated towns—and I'll make money by having them do it. That's the real trouble with the theater. All the cities are overseated.

"Don't worry about picture theaters; they have their own troubles. If ever there was a business overseated its that same picture business, and when the novelty of the 'talkies' dies, and the picture companies have to have at least 400 'talkies' to keep the different circuits open, where are they going to get the material from?

"I go to Europe three or four times a year, and I am lucky to get three plays that will be successes.....What chance have the picture concerns to get 400 plays? Ask a Fortune Teller. I can't answer.

"WE have 85 first-class theaters in New York—just 40 too many—and don't be surprised to see at least 20 closed, on and off, during the season. There is always some excuse when business is bad.

"I remember 21 years ago, I had 23 melodramas on the road one year. Some were fair, some good, some terrible, but I made

MUSICAL COMEDY AND THE NEW YORK STAGE

By Robert Littell

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.

MOST people would rather go to a musical show than to any drama, no matter how wonderful. There still exist citizens of New York who have failed to visit either "Street Scene" or "Journey's End" but have turned up as regularly as a red traffic light in the $11 seats of the 30-odd song and dance shows that come to Broadway in the course of a year. I am sorry for them. I cannot agree with their idea of a good time. The average musical is, above all, boring. The music sounds pretty much alike, to this weary ear, just as the dances, those rearrangements of the daily dozen by bare-kneed damsels, are all exactly the same. Not to mention the creaking plot, which marches onto the stage, slow and stale, between the moments when hero and heroine are singing songs about "You and Me" and "Me and You" in a purple spotlight. Yes, the deadliest evenings recorded in my notebook of memory were spent at the class C and the class D musical shows.

Once in a long while the sky is illuminated, however, by a burst of musical comedy effort so gay and humorous and enchanting that one forgets all the misfires, and cheers loudly for the art of putting songs, dances, girls and wise-cracks together within the space of one evening. Such a brilliant exception is the glorious collection of humor and melody just given us by several members of the Hammerstein family, "Sweet Adeline." American musical comedy does not come any better than this.

I HAVE seen it twice, and shall see it several times more before spring, and it is, thanks to the enthusiasm of the demand for tickets, about as hard to get into as a courtroom during a big murder trial. It will run, I suppose, for a space of time measured in years rather than months, and whoever willingly misses it is extremely foolish.

Any show with Jerome Kern music would be worth going to, no matter what the rest of it was like, and for either Helen Morgan, or Charles Butterworth, or Irene Franklin, or the fresh and diminutive Violet Carlson, for any one of them alone without the others, one would travel a long way. But here they are all together, and their respective talents for sad singing, idiotic humor, burlesque songs and cute rough-house are only parts, in a beautifully managed and handsomely mounted evening's entertainment. An entertainment glamorous and nostalgic with the forgotten charm of those days when ladies wore ruffled dresses down to their ankles and spent honeymoons on tandem bicycles, when the young men thought nothing could be more glorious than following Teddy Roosevelt up San Juan Hill.

THE story of the average musical comedy is a perfunctory scaffolding of standard props no one believes in, or is expected to believe. The story of "Sweet Adeline" is part and parcel of the show itself, not a great story, but a pleasantly eventful and romantic yarn about the daughter of a German beer garden proprietor, who sings her way to fame and fashion and rises from sentimental ditties at lager-time to being the toast of a New York that haunted the roof of Madison Square Garden and drove out in sleighs to McGovern's Pass Tavern.

Helen Morgan takes the part of Addie Schmidt, later Adeline Belmont, and the songs she sings, with her beautiful tortured, rueful mouth and real tears in her eyes, do strange things to your own heart and tear ducts. There is one very simple song, in German, which sounds like something yellow-haired Gretchens sang on the Rhine a hundred years ago but is really a 1929 model, with folk-like music by Jerome Kern and words, both German and American, by Oscar Hammerstein II.

Producers of less taste and courage than Arthur Hammerstein would call it a day after hiring Helen Morgan, and the rest of their show would be largely an attempt to save expenses with all sorts of fillers and cheap talent. But Miss Morgan is only one star in a generous constellation. Hardly less remarkable, in an entirely different way, is Irene Franklin, cast as a fading Queen of Bowery Burlesque.

Miss Franklin is an absolutely first-class actress, singer and humorist. Her delivery of some old songs that were popular in the '90's is deliciously funny. She has a way of dropping her voice, suddenly, to a hoarse vulgar note like that of a cussing stevedore on the waterfront. Her magnificent and subtle coarseness, when she sings "Naughty Boy," and the ballad about the baby in the second act, will make you jump out of your seat for joy. And Lulu Ward's triumph (Lulu is the name of the Bowery Queen played by Miss Franklin) when she resumes her place as "America" in the burlesque parade of nations and is handed the stuffed chicken hawk while Robert Emmett Keane (also a very good and diverting perfomer) yells to the electricians in the gallery to throw every spotlight in the house on her, is one swell piece of acting.

FUNNIEST of all, and unique in musical comedy, is Charles Butterworth. There is going to be a lot more written about Mr. Butterworth. People will theorize over him, and talk about the Comic Mask, and elevate him to the position of a darling of the intellectuals. Put there is nothing that can possibly be said about Mr. Butterworth one-tenth as interesting as any one of his brief inimitable gestures. His comic language is his own, and there's no use trying to translate it into ours. His lines, of course, are extraordinary funny and appropriate to his way of saying them, but he is equally remarkable when he is saying nothing at all. Just his face, which wears the look of a puzzled, dyspeptic Disraeli, is enough. One is tempted to watch him all the time he is on the stage, to the exclusion of the rest of the show. He is, all by himself, worth as many trips to Broadway and Fifty-third street as you can afford.

A second look at this triumph for the Hammerstein family will show you, in addition to the stars who wear so well, a number of less obvious reasons which help to make it good. The singing of the chorus, for instance, both male and female. Here are really good voices, round, full, well-matched, musical voices, instead of the tenor rasp of little men with blue eyelids and the shrill soprano of pretty little girls who seem to have no idea that lyrics are supposed to mean something, who hiss every S as if they were half snake, half chorus cutie.

And the dancing. With extreme gratitude let it be noted that the calisthenics which most dance directors think are absolutely necessary are here almost entirely missing. The Hammersteins evidently do not believe that the daily dozen is good dancing, and we are spared all sorts of West Point acrobatics.

Helen Musick to Give Song Recital

At the invitation of a group of friends and a number of civic leaders including Mayor Victor Miller, Senator Harry B. Hawes and Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Helen Musick, St. Louis soprano, will give a recital at the Odeon, the evening of Oct. 5.

Miss Musick came into prominence in 1926 when she won first place in a contest conducted by the Missouri Federation of Music Clubs. In 1927 she won high rank in the First National Radio audition sponsored by the Atwater Kent Foundation.

Since then Miss Musick has been studying in New York under William Brady.

Amos and Andy Here On St. Louis Stage

Amos and Andy, the famous creators of the "Fresh Air Taxi Co.," over the radio, are the headliners at the St. Louis Theater this week, appearing in person and doing their well-known patter. In addition they will be on the air every night over the National Broadcasting Chain, their voices being sent out from a local station.

Amos and Andy—hardly anyone knows them by their real names of Correll and Godson—will appear four times today on the stage at the St. Louis and three times daily during the remainder of the week.

Fox Again Changes Policy

Will Add a Local Chorus to the Fanchon and Marco Revues and Go in for Bigger Stage Shows. Also Will Commence Programs on Fridays—How Al Jolson Manages to Sway His Audiences—Fannie Hurst "Tells All" After Seeing the Wheels Go 'Round Out In Darkest Hollywood and the Movie Studios.

BY NIE.

COMMENCING next Friday the Fox Theater, which, ever since its opening last January has been trying to get set on a definite policy with its stage shows, will make another move. As the Ambassador has been doing downtown for some time the Fox will put its new bills in on Fridays instead of Saturdays and wind up the week on Thursday nights. In addition the Fanchon and Marco traveling stage shows are to be augmented by 16 local girls, a master of ceremonies and all of the other fancy fittings of the same type recently passed up by the Missouri Theater across the street. The orchestra pit at the Fox, which was covered over some months ago to bring the vaudeville performers into the laps of a part of the audience at least, is to be reopened and Bill Parsons and his band will be back in their old seats. There will also be a stage band so that bigger—and maybe better—shows will be the order of the day.

An executive of the Fanchon and Marco aggregation has been here for some weeks selecting the local additions to the chorus and these girls are being put through their paces by Miss Gwen Evans of the Fox West Coast Studios.

The current picture and the present stage show will be on view for only six days as a result of the coming change.

CASUAL observation of audience reaction to many of the stage stars introduced to the fans via the talkies during the past year, reveals Al Jolson in possession of some rare ability to put himself over that few of the new-comers are able to boast of. For the most part the talkies have leaned to the heavy dramatic type of plays, which, of course, invariably call for some deep-throated vocal gymnastics from the leading character. The desired effect of such scenes is either to leave the audience in a cold perpiration or to produce some violent reaction. The fans in short skirts, however, refuse to be taken in with such Shakspearean capers and begin to titter the moment some potential Barrymore goes into base tones to portray emotional wrath. Indeed, many a bewildered theater manager has seen the forceful climax of some opus or other greeted out front with the merry ha, ha.

In "The Jazz Singer," Jolson went through his tear-shedding make-believe without provoking a single laugh. But some time later, Jeanne Eagels, who was selected to make "The Letter" because she was an accomplished dialoguer, didn't impress the cosmetic users so well. When the eighth reel of "The Letter" was more than half gone, Jeanne broke loose with a torrent of emotion that would set any man to thinking, and the finale curtain closed with her in a mad frenzy. An excellent bit of work, but couples out front simply looked at each other in the "what-do-you-know-about-that" manner and proceeded to laugh it off right there.

OTHER talkies of the same type were shown with the same result. Then Jolson sailed forth in his second picture, "The Singing Fool." For 13 weeks the customers emerged from the Midtown Theater red-eyed. While the song "Sonny Boy" was being burlesqued on the stage as a laugh getter Jolson, in the shadow, was extorting tears four times a day with it. There were no adverse reactions by audiences to either of his pictures.

Recently Eddie Dowling appeared in "The Rainbow Man." A private showing of this picture was quite impressive, even though the situations were often exaggerated. When it reached the final proving grounds, the public instead of producing the expected handkerchief took to laughing. The film ended in a matter of fact way as a result.

Almost invariably audiences find some excuse or other to break the suspense of a murder scene or avoid tears at a moment of pathos.

Out at the Grand Central, though, Jolson is turning the trick for the third time—enacting pathetic scenes as exaggerated as some that have failed in their purpose in other films. No one laughs or thinks them the least bit funny. On the contrary, they laugh or weep at the will of Mr. Jolson. This knack, too, seems to be almost purely reserved to Jolson, which probably accounts for the exceptional box-office response to his pictures.

FANNIE HURST, former St. Louisan, has come back from Hollywood and "tells all" in the Red Book Magazine for October. The boys in the Sound Department have overthrown the power of the directors, but so far, she says, "there is no outstanding example of a stage director producing an outstanding talking picture." "The hope seems to rest," she says, "on men who were prominent in the making of silent pictures and who have also had experience in the theater."

Movies can't get any worse, Miss Hurst declares, so let's hope the talkies will make them better. But the talkies are here to stay and they are already making the spoken stage drama "a precious art"—and have given the final blow to put the road-show out of its misery.

As a matter of fact, Hollywood, whose anatomy from the teeth out has heretofore mattered most, is now lifting its diaphragm, placing its voice, salaaming before the microphone; and by that gesture practically every individual connected with the making of motion pictures, from the set-dresser who finds that glazed chintz is not acoustically desirable, to the property man who must supply, for the dinner-table scene soda crackers with a noiseless crunch to them, is caught in the revolution.

To the sound of the golden jangle, Broadway turns its eagy face more intently; across the country there pushes a strange army of succor. Wisecrackers with narrow, sophisticated, algonquinese eyes. The young playwrights who affect to despise it all, but whose eyes have seen the gilded glory of the coming of the motion-picture dollar hastening Hollywoodward, there to sneer and yet there to remain while the gold-rain lasts. Stage directors who have long felt the ground of the theater slipping from under them, climbing aboard the Hollywood lugger. The oldish actress with diction and that lifted look to her cheeks; the oldish actor with resonance to his voice and that turned look to his collar, facing westward-ho.

Behind the kick-up dust of revolution, there stands a lynx-eyed army of young men who from their laboratories, their glassed-in sound-proof balconies, and "play-back" rooms, survey the situation, as a general surveys his maps. They are the "Sound Department." They are the new, the terrible, the powerful dynasty that has dawned upon, and believe it or not, super-arrogated the power that only yesterday was the director's.

"TAKE that scene over," barks the Sound Department to the director. "Miss G. swallows her vowels, and you cannot have your love-scene played at that acute angle to the microphone." The director, who has been czar, emperor, pontiff and maharajah

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.

MAJOR SPENCE SPANGLER spent 15 years as a house player in a pool hall in New York's Tenderloin before becoming a night clerk in a small hotel in a little midwest city. The Major has mingled with all sorts and seen life in the raw. Yet he has a Chesterfieldian manner that is beguiling. It is no secret he was once a "professional Southerner" attached to a gang of confidence workers frequenting the old Knickerbocker Hotel.

He sports a small goatee, a big cameo tie pin, plasters a strip of side lock over a bald spot in a lion tamer's roach, clings to white vest edging, carries a hunting case watch that closes with a snap, and exudes a faint odor of a barber's scent. His voice is "a soothing drawl."

As the larger portion of humanity loves a rogue, so am I touched by an unexplainable fondness for the Major. I dropped in on him recently between trains for a slice of his quaint philosophy and to see how he was getting on so far from Times Square.

"I see," greeted the Major, "you are still dishing up the same old blah for the great American reading public. Well, a racket is good so long as it lasts."

With what might pass for a slight but nevertheless becoming blush, I tried tactfully to change the subject: "I suppose you get homesick at times," I ventured "for the Big Town."

"A fellow," he replied, "who has knocked about New York as long as I is bound to miss it. Even a fellow recovering from the seven-year itch feels lonely.

"OUT here in the thickets you get tired of yokels, between squirts of tobacco juice, telling you that smoking cigarettes is a filthy habit, but I got just as tired in New York of hearing Poli time 'hams' tell of tearing up the contract and throwing it in Belasco's face.

"Stick around New York long enough and you find yourself like one of those pasty faced birds who follow a hypnotist's two fingers around, babbling like a nut and sleeping in a drug store window. You become hyp-poed!

"I never knew a guy who lived in New York for 20 years who did not get a lump of sympathy in his throat when he saw someone from Denver. About half of Broadway took George Cohan seriously when he warbled: 'When you are away from old Broadway, you are only camping out!'

"But do they notice George spends all his time on a remote country place at Great Neck and the only way you can get him to town is with a court order?

"When I took the clip on the chin and was casting about for a pair of black goggles, a few pencils and a tin cup you should have seen that highly touted good fellowship effervesce.

"Twenty minutes after you begin frisking yourself in the hope of finding a thin dime, everybody knows you are broke. The same fellows who used to snap into a huddle with men and cry when we sang 'Dear Old Pal' at dawn, had their office boys primed to regard me as a leper.

"In the old haunts where everybody used to mitt me I was as popular as earache and when I walked along Forty-second street you'd be surprised how many old pals became absolutely fascinated by window displays.

"Understand, a guy on his uppers is not being dragged into guest rooms or featured as a guest of honor at $10 a plate banquets in the sticks any more than he is in New York, but when you are flat I prefer to land among the hillbillys.

"I MAGINE sitting around the lobby of the leading hotel in New York, broke, and have the proprietor single you out for a job. Well, that happened here. The old walrus who runs it looks as though his blood has turned to vinegar and that he has just breakfasted on raw persimmons, but he's a good egg.

"His only restriction is not to accept theatrical troupers. He says they 'bug up the beddin', which would certainly burn up the boys around the Lambs."

The Major was interrupted in his musings to twirl the register for a new group of typical traveling men who had just debouched from the depot hack. He had a winning and expansive smile for each, as well as a warm hand clasp. It was easy to see the Major filled his hospitable role.

"When editors get on to you, as they eventually will," continued the Major, "take a run out powder for the tall timber. If you have seen as much of life as I have you will find it is the only place in the world where the has-been gets a break. I've been broke in London, Paris, Constantinople, Shanghai and New York, and never had a hard luck story win anything but a yawn.

"Yet I wound up at this wide place in the road and didn't tell a soul I was up against it, but they sensed it and gave me a job. All I knew about these yap towns until I landed here was a squint at them from train windows. And they gave me the creeps.

"And now I am wondering what the gang I used to trail with 'n the Roaring Forties knows of life? New York's biggest gold brick is its illusion of sophistication. You begin to imagine you are completely out of the picture if you are not wise to the fact that Ann Pennington is known as 'Penny,' that Al Jolson lunches at Lindy's, that Walker arrives at the theatre in the middle of the last act and you can give the buzzer three quick pushes in a basement on East 53d street, ask for Joe and get real contreau right off the boat. How's that going to help you when you are hungry?

"Just like New York, the cross roads become interested to know if the preacher's wife will get a new Fall bonnet, where the doctor is going if he drives lickity split through town, or if the local banker isn't casting sheep's eyes at the new milliner from the city? Yet because the yaps display this interest in people they know, just as New Yorkers do in people they do not know, they are yokels. Add it up."

It was nearing train time and I prepared to say farewell. "I take it," I said, "you are definitely through with New York."

The Major gave a quick, furtive look around. "Don't be like that," he mumbled in undertone. "Somebody has to trim these Rubes now and then or they get too cocky. I'm ribbing them up now for a fast one that will empty all the hidden socks. Tell Eddie to keep a quart well iced. I'll be dropping in soon."

The Major is still the Major.

Esther Ralston Who Wants to Make A Real Big Picture

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By Helen Hurd

The Smaller the Star the Larger the Make-Up Trunk

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 14.

IT was a week or so ago that I wrote something about Esther Ralston's design to make one great picture and then retire from the screen. Just who she is and what she has done is worth more space than that for Esther Ralston's appearance and her story a contradictory. According to fiction, fact and fancy these yellow-headed girls have a way of working the rabbit's foot that pretty well smooths out the crinks in life—and they usually get somewhere pretty suddenly, if for no other reason than being a gorgeous blonde. Epics have been written about them, and somehow or other when the little wife finds a blonde hair on hubby's coat the morning after he had the big conference with the directors, it causes more grief than a simple brunette one. Why that is has yet to be put in so many words. It may be that the light top is symbolical of the feminine weakness and dependence so dear to the hearts of the conquering heroes.

ESTHER RALSTON.

Whatever brought this on, don't know. Not to my knowledge have I been two-timed by a blonde—at least not in the last week or so. Oh, yes, Esther Ralston started this lugubrious train of thought.

"Will I like Esther? I asked the guy who promotes lunches and things for lusty scriveners.

"She's swell"—always grammatical, these press agents—"a bee-utiful blonde."

AND so, when I got to Esther's house on one of Hollywood's hills, I was all prepared for a blonde—well, you know the kind I mean—dizzy headed and pick and shovel type. In Esther Ralston, I got the shock of my life—which is saying something for this high-voltage around Hollywood. Simple, easy, graceful, with her hair—which was the cause of my consternation—cut in a short straight bob, with no rouge or makeup of any sort, a sport sweater of lavender and a tan skirt, she invited me into her home. This home is the outward evidence of the culmination of her dreams—a beautiful place yet obviously not a show place, but a place to live in and enjoy. We went into the sun room which opens out onto a swimming pool, and I settled myself to the business of finding out what made Esther Ralston different from the last person I met, or the next one I would meet.

In the first place, her life has been hard. She didn't want to use her looks to cajole jobs out of people. If she couldn't have the job because she deserved it, she wasn't interested. Hence there has been no pulling of strings or polishing the apple in her life. From the time she was two years old, she was on the stage. "The Ralstons" was an acrobatic troupe destined to never get to the "big time." Instead they maintained a precarious existence at whatever opened up for them—constantly changing the act in the effort to make it fit into the prevailing idea of what a vaudeville skit should be to get some sort of a name. The father was at one time a physical education director in New York, but he had stage ambitions, so he organized his family by months of training into an acrobatic team and started out to find fame and fortune on the tight rope.

ESTHER never knew home and permanence. Constantly changing scenes and faces, conditions and circumstances made her as a child harbor the ambition to have a home.

"And now," she says, "I have much more—far more—than I in the wildest flights of my imagination ever dreamed of. But you know all this that you see here it is not mine. I believe that it is given to me here on earth to do what I can with it for good.

"People work like dogs all their life and sometimes they finally attain success. Everyone does if they believe they will. You truly have to think right, and keep your head up. So many people who aren't successful blame their fate, or say it wasn't in the cards, but I do not believe in that. Everyone can get what he wants if he wants it badly enough."

"Do you mean materially," unconsciously I looking at the luxury about me.

"That's what I meant a moment ago. I have these things, a home far better than I ever thought I would, but I knew I would have one of some kind some day. When I say it isn't mine, I mean that this home and the material things I have are given to me, not as my little possessions, but as material which is loaned me in this life to bring about the happiness which I have so long wanted. I have known what it is to be hungry, and that's no publicity story, but I knew that some day I would have the things I wanted. I didn't know how, but I felt that they would come."

HOW these things came is a long story. Esther grew apace with the changing demands of the theatrical profession. When the vogue for short drama came in her father trained his troupe of Ralstons to meet it by learning Shakspeare, and putting a scene in the act. When Esther was 14, she was a tall rather ungainly girl. She struggled in the dark to find her place which would bring her happiness. A flare in prosperity would be followed by a depression of family finances and mind. She went to school when times were poor in the profession. She learned to dance hoping to find her way to success as another Pavlowa. All these attempts were stopped when the family moved Westward at the suggestion of a West coast theater manager who said he could get engagements for the troupe. By the time they had worked their way to the coast, playing in school auditoriums, dance halls and in the open air, the manager who had promised to help them had left. So it was all to begin over again. Here they discovered moving pictures. Esther played her first part as an angel in a picture Lois Weber was directing. Then followed extra parts and bits in wild westerns. All the time Esther did not know where this was going to lead her. When she could not get parts, she threatened to go back to the stage and to take up dancing again.

HELENE CHADWICK.

"I always have wanted to dance. Right now I am beginning all over again taking tap dancing. It really is a lot of fun—but I can afford to call it fun now, since I don't have to do it for a living," she said, with a mixture of seriousness and humor in her voice.

"DANCING, at least, won't be a drawback, but I am too tall for that sort of thing. The kind of parts I like to play—or would like to do, since I have never done one of the type—would deal with ordinary American people who have a situation in life that they themselves have to work out. I am tired of being the demure miss rescued by a hero who is not as tall as I am. In real life people have to get themselves out of messes. Very seldom does some one come along and save them."

Esther Ralston wants to act. She has about had her fill of being a model for goodlooking clothes. She says she will not quit until she has had one chance at real drama. Her classic approach to drama is mentioned by everyone who has watched her work. This was "The Case of Lena Smith." Whether or not she is destined to rise to dramatic heights for which her portrayal in this picture indicated the possibilities, is in the hands of a legion gone mad—a whirling chaos of talking out of which will emerge a few tempered individuals to carry on the banner of pictures after the excitement is over. If brushing up against life and the experience which it involves makes an actor as they say it does, Esther Ralston has all the requirements for finding her heart's desire.

BUT if she doesn't she should worry. Her attitude toward her career isn't one of feverish anxiety. There is this desire to do one really good picture before she quits, but if she doesn't there won't be any meals missed. Her home life is one of supreme happiness to her. George Webb, who was once her manager, is her husband and she has taken his two little daughters by a former marriage completely into her heart.

This little family does not follow the whirl of Hollywood. On the contrary, they are great home people and enjoy a quiet game of bridge, or a swim much more than "going out." Whenever it is demanded of Esther Ralston that she appear publicly, she is all the things that the public expects—beautifully gowned, almost regal in her bearing; she is driven in her Rolls town car and takes her bows like a princess. But at home, swimming, sport clothes, a night at a neighborhood movie house, driving with her husband in a Ford coupe, making dainty dresses for the girls, managing her home and enjoying life in a genuine and unaffected way.

She is an excellent swimmer, and while this gentle correspondent had to content himself with a demonstration of dog-paddling, Esther swam the length of the pool as many times as she had breath to carry her. Her pet trick is picking up pebbles on the bottom of the pool, three or four of them thrown in every corner. George Webb saw to it that it wasn't easy to do—for he was very proud of her swimming, as he taught her—and wants to spur her on to greater achievement, even though it be a comparatively small feat. And perhaps that very thing has been an important contributing factor to Esther Ralston's success.

SOMEONE has said, the smaller the stars the larger the make-up boxes they carry, and certainly if the trunks that some of the extras lug around with them is any indication the old saw ought to be about right. Doris Hill is a star in her own name and you ought to see her cosmetic carrier. The top of a shoe box, with one powder puff, a pencil one inch long, and a box of lip rouge. There was also a quarter in the box, which she said some one gave to her to disprove the old rumor that Hollywood is not big-hearted. Thus armed she took her stand on sound stage No. 11, where the "secret" picture in which Hal Skelly is playing is in the process of being unsheafed for the cutters. Why they have all this mystery about pictures is more than a layman can see, but this one so far, has not been announced, because, probably, no one can think of a title. Everyone was working but the great Skelly; Morgan Farley, Helene Chadwick, William Davidson and Doris Hill. As a matter of fact, Doris wasn't working either for she was having a big time handing out the story of her past life for the edification of her public, who, she says, is one strong, he-man hailing from somewhere in the East, who writes her every day. You will see her in this picture as the wife of Hal Skelly and also in "Darkened Rooms," in Evelyn Brent's starring picture. "The Studio Murder Mystery" and John Gilbert's "Olympia," which has not been released yet. "Olympia" has been changed to "His Glorious Night," which sounds like a masculine slant on Elinor Glyn's stuff.

DORIS HILL.

To get back to Doris, who leads a pretty sheltered life, which is a good idea in the picture business. Of course, you may not get anywhere, but all she says she wants to do is make enough to buy clothes and be able to park in a nice big automobile, which after all is something. She manages to clothe her five feet two and one-half inches—with titian hair and blue eyes—pretty well, because she has been consistently at the picture business for some time. From childhood she has been a dancer, appearing many times before the townsfolk of San Antonio, then in Los Angeles, where she attended school. Her break came one day when she was dancing at the Metropolitan Theater in Los Angeles, and a Warner official saw her. She had a test made, and was cast to play opposite Syd Chaplin in "The Better 'Ole." But when the picture was cut, all her good scenes were cut out. That didn't keep her from getting more parts, and after a siege of being leading woman in two-reelers, and some very nice ingenue parts, she showed sufficient ability to interest Paramount, where she was signed to a long-term contract. Doris Hill feels that she is in a predicament at Paramount because there are so many of her type on the lot. She even says that the others are better actresses than she is and when one will admit that, it is not only a rarity out here, but like a breath of fresh air off of Laguna Beach. Doris is a most cosmopolitan soul, and knows everyone on the lot, and everyone likes her.

CLIFF EDWARDS, better known as "Ukelele Ike" has been around for a long time but hasn't been getting the picture breaks. He's in great social demand, but after all, one can't live on tea and things like that. The way they left his "Singing in the Rain" at the back of the stage in the "Hollywood Revue" was a shame, but he tells me that he has a great part in Marion Davies new musical comedy "Marianne" which opens with great pomp and circumstance at a downtown theater, which has been especially wired for the event. He has a new part in a MGM picture called "Lord Byron of Broadway" which also ought to put the boy where he belongs. The cast of this picture is rather interesting, having in it beside Cliff, Charles Kaley, a master of ceremonies and comedian from Chicago, who will be Lord Byron, beloved of six women. One of these will be Ardis to be played by Ethelind Terry, who will be remembered as the prima donna of "Kid Boots" and "Rio Rita." She came to Los Angeles with only a vacation in mind, and landed head first into a big featured movie. Ardis was a hard role to cast, because it demanded a vivid, dark beauty who could sing. Many beauties were found without voice; and voices were discovered minus the accompanying beauty. Those who remember Miss Terry in "Rio Rita" will agree that she meets both qualifications. Big, blonde and funny Gwen Lee, who always gets a laugh if she is cast right, is also to be in the picture.

DIRECTOR LOTHAR MENDES took his company on location to the Bel-Air Country Club and in a very short time the place looked more like a nursery than a country club. The picture was from Edith Wharton's novel, "The Children," and has to do with a revolt, or something, staged by a family of seven children against their pleasure loving mother and father. The ring leader in this insurrection is the oldest girl, Mary Brian, and the family lawyer, Frederick March, eggs her on to getting all the rest of the children crying and in an uproar. Lilyan Tashman and Huntley Gordon play the not too devoted parents. The kids are really cute, though they should have gotten one ugly one in the bunch to make it more real. The seven youngsters begin with Mary Brian and Philippe de Lacy, the little French war orphan who has become one of Hollywood's ranking juvenile actors. He has the role of "Terry," the most tragic of the seven neglected children. Philippe was pleased at being able to play with Miss Brian again. Being a very sophisticated actor, he would do nothing so childish as to say that he was going to marry her when he grew up, but he did go as far as to say that he liked to work with her because her soul was in her work. He played with her in "Peter Pan," and this is his first picture on the Paramount lot since his work in "Four Feathers." Next comes Anita Louise, the slight 12-year-old girl with the fair hair and deep violet eyes, who began her career posing for James Montgomery Flagg and other artists. She was chosen twice at the age of 5 and at 10 as being the most beautiful child of her age by a national photographers' organization. She has appeared in many pictures, and in a most blase way recalls the time she played Gloria Swanson, as a child, in "The Untamed Lady," and when she appeared with Walter Hampden in "Peter Ibbtsen." The youngest of the seven children in Donald Smith, 9 months old. While this role is the most important in his career, it is not his first. At the age of 7 months, he played the part of Jacqueline Logan as a baby in "The Song of the Congo." Director Mandes says Donald is very versatile, and it does not require the Biltmore Trio to get him to cry. Then there are two little persons, a boy and a girl, 7 years old, who were selected as looking exactly alike, and they do, despite the fact they never saw each other before the picture. And a funny thing, Joan Standing, who is the nurse for this outfit in the picture, is one of seven children in real life, all of whom were on the stage with their father, Herbert Standing, until a casting director saw her and told her she was just the type.

After I thought I had just about gotten all the children accounted for, up pops little Mitzi, the 8-year-old vaudeville headliner, who first came to fame in an act with her father and mother imitating the langorous lingo of the Two Black Crows, and giving interpretations fo Mary Pickford, Fannie Brice, Eddie Cantor and Helen Kane.

THE failure of the Actors' Equity to establish itself in Hollywood—a failure which brought many an aching heart to the screen colony—is still being talked about wherever the picture people gather and there are few kind words for Frank Gilmore, the head of the actors' association, who fought the losing battle out here. Welford Beaton, editor of The Film Spectator, a sort of Bible with the film folk, many of whom consider the magazine their best champion, has come out openly with an editorial blaming Gilmore alone for the failure of the strike, saying that he went off half-cocked and never had a chance of winning.

Fox Again Changes Stage Show

over all he surveys for many a movie year, and who has probably been the most yes-ed individual in the history of that noun and verb in all its languages, gulps down his sense of outrage and retakes.

Paradoxically, while the director has in some ways been shorn of his omniscience, he is, as never before, the eagle who holds the situation beneath the spread of his wings. Indeed, now he is the two-headed eagle. A man who must know not only the technique of the silent drama, but to whom stage and voice-technique must either belong by intuition, or former stage experience.

The stage director without motion picture background, when let loose upon the sound stage, is at even greater odds than the silent picture director let loose upon the talking stage. Many directors from the New York stage who have arrived upon the golden Hollywood scene with the look of Messiah in their eyes, have succeeded in performing little more than the mediocre act of jerking the roomy unities of the scene down to the narrow dimensions of the drama—an experiment which has proved so disastrous that one of the fundamental rules which has sprung out of the series of catastrophes visited upon talking pictures by visiting stage directors, is to make a movie first and then make it talk.

There is, up to the moment, no outstanding example of a stage director producing an outstanding talking picture. The hope of the situation, in these formative stages, seems to rest upon the shoulders of men who were pre-eminent in the making of silent pictures and who have also had experience in the theater men of parts and accomplishment like William de Mille, Herbert Brenon, and the like.

TO BEHOLD a huddle of actors and actresses standing in the small bare room near the sound stage immediately after the taking of a scene and listening to the playback, is at once as painful and stressful a scene as is conceivable. Careers are made or smashed by the play-back. Will my voice photograph well? Old actors with the hope of come-back in their eyes cast anxious glances director-ward as the merciless record of their intonations come through. Yesterday's queens of the silent screen sit prayerfully, as the play-back records the quality or lack of quality, of their voices.

Generally speaking, and for reasons too technical to attempt to record here, the male voice impresses itself more successfully into the sound track than the lighter soprano tones. But, as yet, in these early stages of the development of the various inventions, the success with which a voice records itself is largely a matter of chance. There are of course certain fundamental requirements, good voice-placement, articulation, timbre of voice, even when of excellent quality, sometimes records to no purpose at all.

Even so authentic an artiste as Baclanova cannot hope forever to go on being introduced in each picture as "my Russian wife" in order to help account for that accent. Nor can Vilma Banky continue playing immigrant Hungarian girls to the end of time for that same reason. Behold the tragedy of the American actress losing a man like Jannings, who has returned to his own land, to feed the German microphone his native tongue.

IF you would know how hard and exacting a taskmaster is that small black microphone which dangles into the center of the sound stage sets these days, compare the accomplishment and success of legitimate actresses who have gone Hollywood—Ruth Chatterton, Jeanne Eagels, Ina Claire with some of the erstwhile favorite ladies of the silent screen who have been forced to find their voices. Their diction makes the difference between the Silents and the Talkies.

In the opinion of this writer the permanence of the talking picture is not even contemplated. There is little doubt that for the moment, at least, the spoken drama is in the process of learning more and more precious of entertainment for the few, but the talking picture has supplied one dimension needed to close the competitive pressure that has long been bringing to bear on the theater.

What is there that will prevent your small-town theater-going expenditure of $8.40 to see a first road company in "The Letter," let us say, when for sixty cents or less he can see and hear the talking cinema version of the original company, with Jeanne Eagels as the others? There would seem to be precious little choice between "Broadway Melody" at less than a dollar, or a second company of the two-year-old Broadway success at $3.30.

What is this triumphant talking picture going to contribute toward lifting the motion picture out of its slough of mediocrity. Will it mean better pictures? More intelligent pictures? One hopes passionately. But after all, what has the situation to lose?

The general average of our entertainment in this country, in keeping certain spendid high-water marks in mind, is of such a low order, its standards of such poor and tawdry stuff, that it is almost impossible for them to become any worse. In the main, there is room for change in one direction. Improvement!

Symphony Rehearsals To Start Next Month When Arbos Arrives

REHEARSALS of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will begin the last week in October when E. Fernandez Arbos, who will conduct the orchestra for seven weeks, arrives in St. Louis.

William E. Walter, manager of the Symphony who is back in St. Louis after several weeks vacation said that among the novelties to be presented during the season was George Gershwin's "American in Paris," which would be performed under the direction of George Szell, the German conductor.

The Gershwin score was sent to Mr. Szell when he expressed the desire to have one representative, contemporary American work on his programs. This composition was performed during the summer by a small orchestra at the Garden Theater. The score normally calls for an orchestra of about 100 pieces, augmented by a piano, three saxophones, woodblocks and other percussion instruments.

money with every play I produced. Why? Because there was only one popular-priced circuit in the business in those days.

"Here is another instance I remember. The Columbia Buslesque had a circuit of 40 theaters, and every producer made money. All the producers that wanted to produce couldn't get in, so a rival organization was formed, called the Mutual Circuit. But what happened? There was no room for two circuits—no more than there is room for two first-class legitimate circuits today—so the Columbia circuit made a deal combining with the Mutual Circuit, which at least gave the producers a break.

"Erlanger and Shubert should do the same—to protect the managers. But the managers don't seem to want protection—although the actor, the author, the musician and the stage hands do. Ain't that funny?

"The picture business is now with tickets the price of a Mutt and Jeff, and with the theaters all built, the Stair & Havlin Circuit was wiped out. But in those days you could go to a picture for 5 cents, and get your money's worth. Today you have to pay almost as much to see a picture at the legitimate theaters as you have to pay for a dramatic play. I saw 3 pictures last week and had to pay $3 for each.

"So don't worry about the pictures. Never be jealous of anyone's success. Just go on in your own way, and if you've got the goods, the public wants it."

Home Factory for Making Model Airplanes

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Sick Boy's Hobby Grows to $200 a Month Business

Vaughan Heath, 18, of Webster Groves, Runs Factory at Home, Turning Out Model Airplanes.

A hobby adopted by Vaughan Heath, Webster Groves High School junior, to while away the long hours of confinement following infantile paralysis, led to the formation of a concern which has grown in three months to a monthly output of 50 model airplanes and an income of $200.

Vaughan, president of the Mercury Model Aircraft Co., is 18 years old. His partners are Milton Held of Edgar road, 16, vice president; T. J. Shands of 250 Old Orchard avenue, 15, treasurer, and Walter Zenwich of Edgar road, 14, secretary.

The factory is a summer house, 10 by 12 feet in area at the Heath home, 231 Old Orchard avenue. The atmosphere is all business; the business is all aviation. But the business of aviation does not reach full blast here until late afternoon, when the three junior officers return from high school, and the factory is closed every morning while the president takes treatment from an orthopedic surgeon.

Looked for a Hobby.

Vaughan was stricken with infantile paralysis in August, 1928. For five months he lay in bed unable to move. In two months more, although he will not be allowed to return to school for a year, he was looking for a hobby. His inclination was towards aviation.

"It was no use to lie in bed and envy boys who could get out and fly," he remarked yesterday, laying aside a "St. Louis Robin" which was beginning to take shape under his deft hands. "I could make airworthy models, at least. And when I saw them doing their stuff—why, it was almost like flying, myself."

The models looked good to Vaughan's friends. One day a boy offered to buy one, and so the business began. Soon the orders had grown beyond Vaughan's ability to handle them alone, and so, last June, he called in his three partners and organized his factory.

"Last summer, when all the boys were home from school, this was the busiest place you ever saw," commented Vaughan's mother, Mrs. T. H. Heath. "The big rush came during the endurance flight of Jackson and O'Brine. Vaughan made a model of the Robin with an 18-inch wingspread, and sold two dozen like it in a few days.

"Now that high school has begun the other boys spend their spare time here with Vaughan. When he leaves for Arizona next month they will keep the factory going."

The Boys' Factory.

The summerhouse, an airy place to work in the hot months, is to be walled in for the winter. Rows of shiny tools hang among blueprints and photographs over the workbenches.

"We sell the model planes either knocked down or complete," Vaughan said. "Our best numbers are in three groups: the stick models, such as the Baby Pusher, Endurance Tractor and the R. O. G. (rise off ground); pursuit models, including the Curtiss Army Hawk and Sea Hawk, the Nieuport biplane and the Keystone Pirate, a duo-motored bomber; and the cabin monoplanes, including the Mercury, Fairchilds 31 and 71, St. Louis Robin, Aristocrat, Travelair and several Junkers and Fokker models.

"On Aug. 30 we held a model contest which drew 25 entrants. There were prizes for distance and endurance flights of fuselage models, tractors and R. O. G's. We hope in the future to take part successfully in model contests in St. Louis.

Saving to Buy a Glider.

"Last month the company made $200, but we didn't spend it. It went right into the bank, where it's going to wait until there is enough to buy us a big glider. And after that, if all goes well—a plane!"

He left no doubt about it, the officers of the Mercury Model Air Craft Co. mean to have a manize airplane, no matter how long it takes.

"Hard work?" he scoffed. "No, it's fun. And as for handicaps—well, I guess you can do anything if you don't know when to quit."

Apollo Club Try-Out.

More voices being needed this season for the Apollo Club, a try-out will be heard tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Third Baptist Church, Kingshighway and Washington avenue. Charles Galloway will direct the club again this year.

To Address Adwomen.

Alois Havrilla, announcer of the National Broadcasting Co., will be the speaker at the Women's Advertising Club's luncheon tomorrow at Hotel Statler.

ONE FRENCH ENTRANT OUT OF BENNETT RACE

Nine to Be in Balloon Contest Sept. 28; Three From United States.

One of the French entrants in the Gordon Bennett international balloon race, to start from 8900 South Broadway Sept. 28, has withdrawn, reducing the starting field to nine. This leaves the United States with three balloons in the race, Germany two, and France, Belgium, Denmark and Argentine one each.

Announcement of the withdrawal was made by the French Aero Club in a cablegram to the National Aeronautical Association at Washington yesterday. No reason was assigned, but race officials assume the pilot was unable to get his equipment in shape in time for the race.

The remaining French balloon will be piloted by Georges Blanchet, an outstanding balloonist and participant in many races on the continent. Announcement of his selection, simultaneous with receipt of the withdrawal of the other French entry, completes the list of contestants.

Capt. William E. Kepner of Scott Field, winner of last year's race, will represent the United States army; Lieut. T. G. W Steel of Lakehurst, N. J., will pilot the navy's entry, and Wade T. Van Orman, civilian pilot and winner of two previous races, will complete the list of Americans.

Erich Leimkugel, pilot of the Stadt Essen, and Hugo Kaulen Jr., flying the Barmen, will race for Germany. Ernest Demuyter, the only man to win four Gordon Bennett races, will pilot the Belgian balloon, Belgica; George Schenstrom, the Danish entry, Denmark, and D. Eduardo Bradley, pilot of the Argentine, will be South America's only contestant.

Preliminary reports furnished by the United States Weather Bureau show that chances are 1 to 2 that the weather will be clear on the day of the race, 1 to 3 that it will be partly cloudy, and 1 to 6 that it will be cloudy. The chances are 1 to 4 that .01 of an inch of rain will fall and 1 to 10 that there will be a thunderstorm.

Definite, last-minute reports on weather, direction and velocity of the wind at points 600 miles from St. Louis, will be given to the pilots shortly before the race starts.

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce Air Board have not abandoned their efforts to have the Navy dirigible, Los Angeles, sent to St. Louis for the race. The latest word from the Navy Department was that the Los Angeles had gone into training, but the Air Board members still believe they will be able to arrange to have the dirigible at the Scott Field mooring mast by Sept. 27. In the event they fail, they will ask the navy to send out the new all-metal experimental dirigible recently constructed at Detroit.

MUSICIANS' UNION SUED FOR $50,000 BY ORGANIST

Mrs. Alta Mae Cramer Charges Organization Caused Her Discharge From Theater.

Complaining that the Musicians' Union dismissed her from membership without cause, brought about her discharge from a theater where she was employed and later prevented her from obtaining employment elsewhere, Mrs. Alta Mae Cramer, former St. Louis motion picture theater organist, filed suit in Circuit Court yesterday for $50,000 damages.

Named as defendants are the American Federation of Musicians, the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association of St. Louis, Local No. 2, and 10 officers of the local organization, including Guy M. Daily, president, and Fred A. Riddell, vice-president.

Mrs. Cramer, who is now a resident of New Jersey, formerly was employed as organist at the Ritz Theater, 3147 South Grand boulevard. At that time, she says, she was a member of the union in good standing and was earning $4000 a year. When her contract expired on Aug. 15, 1927, according to her petition, she entered into a temporary agreement with the theater owners extending her contract two weeks. Four days later, she alleges, the local union dropped her from its rolls and caused her to be discharged from the theater. Because of its activities since that time, she says, she has been unable to obtain employment in any theater. She asks for $25,000 compensatory and $ 5,000 punitive damages.

FLOWER SHOW OCT. 3-5

Loving Cup for Best Dahlias Sent by Air Mail.

A silver loving cup as a prize for airplane entries of dahlias for the Fall Show of the St. Louis Horticultural Society, has been offered by Morton May. It will go to the best exhibit sent from a radius of 100 miles outside of St. Louis via mail planes. The show will be held Oct. 3, 4 and 5 in the exhibition hall of Famous-Barr and awards will be made for amateur entries of dahlias, roses, gladioli, zinnias and chrysanthemums.

Two medals of the American Dahlia Society, one bronze and the other silver, will be awarded the best dahlia exhibits. A new feature of the show will be the shadow boxes, and "flower pictures" for these will receive ribbons. The boxes, which will be 30 inches righ, 24 wide and 18 deep, will be supplied by Famous-Barr. Premium books may be obtained at the office of the Horticultural Society, 821 Central National Bank Building, Tuesday.

TO DEDICATE ARENA SEPT. 23 WITH BANQUET

Hyde, Caulfield, Mayor and National Dairy President to Speak.

The Arena, just completed at 5700 Oakland avenue, will be dedicated Monday night, Sept. 23, with a banquet, plans for which were announced yesterday by M. E. Holderness, vice president of the First National Bank and chairman of the arrangements committee.

Speakers will include Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Gov. Caulfield, Mayor Miller and Charles L. Hill of Rosendale, Wis., president of the National Dairy Association. Music will be provided by a 50-piece band, and a spectacular pageant, symbolic of the uses to which The Arena will be put, is being arranged by John Hanley, stage manager of the Municipal Opera Co. The speeches and music will be broadcast by radio. Admission to the banquet will be by card only.

Food for the occasion will be prepared by a catering company and delivered in trucks to The Arena, where it will be kept warm on electrically operated steam tables. Tables will be set in rows over the entire length of The Arena, which is more than a block long. A stage for the pageant will be erected opposite the head table and floodlights will be installed.

Following the dedicatory ceremonies, the banquet guests will be taken on a tour of The Arena and its exhibition buildings.

Ben G. Brinkman, president of the National Exhibition Co., extended an invitation yesterday to the general public to visit The Arena, which is described as the largest show place ever constructed. A guide is on hand every day to show visitors through the buildings. Last Sunday, 3800 persons made the inspection tour.

Formal opening of the buildings will occur on Oct. 12, with an exposition comprising the National Dairy Show, National Poultry Show, Better Foods Show as applied to the dairy industry, St. Louis National Horse Show and the St. Louis Fair. These will continue through Oct. 20.

On Nov. 11 and 12 The Arena will be used for the presentation of a historical extravaganza for the benefit of needy school children. The extravaganza, which will employ a cast of 4000 persons, is being written by Mrs. Frank Leach of Sedalia and will be presented under the auspices of the Child Conservation Conference.

Would Erect Station

An application for authority to erect a new radio station at Cartersville, Mo., has been filed with the Federal Radio Commission by the Medcalf Jewelry and Music Co.

A permit is sought to use 500 watts six hours daily on the 900-kilocycle channel.

WILL LEAD AIR CONCERTS

Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, which is to broadcast a series of three concerts in special Philco Hours, beginning next month.

Spanish Entry In Radio Show Beauty Contest

Countess Olga Albani, Soprano, to Represent National Broadcasting Co.

Countess Olga Medolago Albani, soprano, is the official entry of the National Broadcasting Co. in the "Most Beautiful Woman Radio Artist in America" contest of the New York's radio show.

The Countess has been broadcasting for more than a year, and is now heard regularly in her own program every Sunday night through WEAF. She is a native of Barcelona, Spain, but has spent much of her life in the United States.

She has been heard extensively on programs through KSD and associated stations and in recent months has been dentified with the National Light Opera Co. and the Evening Stars broadcasts. Several important broadcasts are planned for her next winter.

Countess Albani came to radio from the stage, having made a success in the Chicago production of "New Moon." In addition to her vocal accomplishments, she is a dramatic actress of ability. Negotiations are now under way for her to make a series of short all-Spanish talking motion pictures.

Entries for the beauty contest have been received from almost 600 radio stations in as many sections of the United States, according to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the Radio World's Fair. The winner is expected to be announced within a week, the selections to be made from photographs alone. She will be guest at the fair during the centire period from Sept. 23 to Sept. 28.

Until a few months ago Countess Albani had never ventured into popular music. Radio listeners knew her only as a singer of classical songs, ballads and melodies of her own Spain. It was through chance that she began to sing jazz.

She had gone to a recording studio to make some classical records and discovered officials worrying over where to turn for some person to make jazz records in Spanish.

"I will make them for you," she volunteered. Since then she has made dozens of these records and has been singing jazz over the air. Not that she has deserted her classics. "Never," she declares. But for her jazz is a fascinating new toy.

"It is so amusing turning such songs as 'Can't Help Loving Dat Man' into Spanish," she says. "My father has always said I had a gypsy strain that must have been

IN PARAMOUNT PUBLIX PROGRAM

"Buddy" Rogers and Nancy Carroll, who will take part in the first Paramount Publix broadcast over the Columbia chain next Sunday night.

Radio Stars In Person At Coliseum

Henry Burbig, Mary and Bob, Redferne Hollinshead and Alois Havrilla Coming—Amos 'n' Andy Promised.

Some of the most popular entertainers on the national networks will broadcast from the Crystal Studio in the Coliseum this week. Songs, stories and comic recitations will make up the program at afternoon and evening sessions of the radio exposition.

Alois Havrilla, NBC announcer and baritone, who was one of the favorites at last year's St. Louis radio show; Redferne Hollinshead, tenor star of the Majestic Theater of the Air; Mary and Bob of True Story Hour fame; Henry Burbig famous Ceco Couriers comedian, whose fan mail is said to exceed that of any other radio entertainer, are the chain stars whose personal appearance at the show is assured.

In addition, Amos 'n' Andy, who recently began broadcasting over an NBC chain, including KWK, are to be at the show, according to an announcement from New York.

Amos 'n' Andy, heard nightly on Pepsodent programs, are Correll and Gosden, who became radio's highest paid actors when they recently went under the exclusive management of the National Broadcasting Co. According to NBC officials, they have achieved a popularity never approached by any other comedy team on the air. Their followers number into the millions and in personal appearances they have broken attendance records for theaters.

Although Amos 'n' Andy are distinct radio personalities, Correll and Gosden, their creators and actors, are veteran showmen. They met while directing show companies in North Carolina many years ago and worked together in the show business until they deserted the boards for the microphone.

Correll and Gosden's humor is not of the wise-cracking type, but the kind of fun that grows out of a healthy, happy outlook on life. They like people and their following the country over is as democratic as it is inclusive.

Since March 19, 1928, when Amos Jones and Andrew Brown first walked into the radio limelight, the adventures of this pair from Dixie, their love entanglements, and their business and club affairs, have entertain a nation.

It is upon this homely, human drama that the fame of Correll and Gosden rests. Amos is trusting, simple, unsophisticated. High and hesitating in voice, his "Ain't dat sumpin'" when he is happy and "Awa, awa, awa" in moments when he's frightened or embarrassed, rank with Andy's "I'se regusted!" as famous radio remarks. Andy is the domineering, lazy, brow-beating member of the firm of the "Fresh-Air Taxicab Co. of America, Incorpulated," who is inclined to take credit for all of Amos' ideas.

Irene Beasley, blues singer of the Columbia System and recording star, will sing every day through the courtesy of KMOX. Other entertainers known to those who listen to the programs of KMOX, KWK and WIL will be heard daily.

KSD will be in charge of broadcasting from 1:45 to 4 p. m., Monday. Tuesday and Wednesday; KMOX from 8 to 10:30 p. m., Monday and Tuesday; WIL from 7 to 8 and from 9 to 10 p. m., Wednesday evening, and Saturday from 4 p. m. on; KWK from 2 to 5 p. m., Thursday and Friday, and from 7:30 to 8 and from 9:15 to 10 p. m., Thursday, and from 9:15 to 10:30 p. m. Friday.

When KMOX takes the air from the Coliseum Monday and Tuesday nights at 8 o'clock 40 entertainers will take part, among them Alois Havrilla, announcer and baritone soloist, Howard Melaney, lyric tenor, "The Singing Fireman;" Corrine Frederick, who has played with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra; Edna Wagner, soprano; William A. Le Master, baritone, and Sammy Mayes, child cellist.

The Variety Entertainers, an eight-piece girls' band in costume, will open and close all WIL programs with the Missouri Waltz and the St. Louis Blues. The members of this band will be on the stage to supply orchestral accompaniments for the performing artists during all of these programs. Alma Rotter, recording artist; Scuyler Alward, who plays the xylophone and vibraphone; the Pulleys, a banjo singing team; the Imperial Singers and the Aloha Serenaders, a group of native Hawaiians, will appear on the Wednesday night and Saturday schedules.

Mary and Bob, known to listeners to the True Story Hour, will appear Wednesday.

Redferne Hollinshead, who will sing as guest artist over KWK on Thursday, has been soloist at Grace Episcopal Church in New York for

Seventeen Stars In First Hour Of New Broadcast

Paramount Public Program to Go on the Air Next Saturday Night.

Seventeen artists and entertainers are scheduled for the first Paramount-Publix Radio Hour to be broadcast over KMOX and other Columbia stations at 8 o'clock next Saturday night. Two orchestras under nationally known leaders will assist. David Mendoza is to be director.

The artists programmed include Jeanne Eagels, Olive Brooks, Victor Schertzinger, Charles Ruggles, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford, Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Nancy Carroll, Jack Oakie, Helen Kane, Frederic March, Paul Ash, Joe Penner and the Four Merrymakers.

The program will take listeners from New York to Hollywood and back again, giving a picture of happenings in the two Paramount motion picture studios, east and west, and of acts in Publix theater stage units playing Indianapolis and Omaha.

Following the opening on Broadway as picked up from the marquee of the Paramount Theater at Forty-third street and Broadway, New York, an opening overture will be played by the combined Paramount Symphony and jazz orchestra.

Miss Eagels and Brook will then enact the closing scene from Alfred Sutro's play, "The Laughing Lady," under direction of Victor Schertzinger, who is making the talking picture version of the play at the Paramount studio in Long Island. Charles Ruggles, comedian of the musical comedy stage, will be heard in characteristic song and patter.

At this point Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford, featured organists of the Paramount Theater in New York, will play selections on the twin consoles. Then the audience will be taken to Indianapolis to hear Joe Penner, featured in the "Honeymoon Cruise" stage show, then back to New York studios of the Columbia Broadcasting System, where the Paramount Orchestra again will play.

The next unit of the program will be furnished by the Four Merrymakers from the stage show "Parisian Life" playing at the Paramount Theater in Omaha.

Then the broadcast will be

Three States Open School Of Air on WLW Tomorrow

Indiana and Kentucky Will Work With Ohio in Broadcasting Courses for Pupils.

Following is the tentative program of the Central States School of the Air, which will broadcast over WLW every school day at 1 p. m. St. Louis time, beginning tomorrow:

Monday—Current Events, Grades 7-12; Out to Old Aunt Mary's, Grades 5-8; Story Plays and Rhythmics, Grades 1-4.

Tuesday—Chemistry and French (alternate weeks), Grades 9-12; History Dramalogs, Grades 5-8; Constitution of the U. S., Grades 1-12.

Wednesday—Literature by Living Writers, Grades 7-12; Physics and Health Talks (alternate weeks), Grades 5-6.

Thursday—Stories, Grades 1-4; Geography, Grades 4-5-6; Geography, Grades 7-8.

Friday—Little Red Schoolhouse, —Course in Music, Grades 1-4; Drama, Grades 9-12.

Programs for the School of the Air have been furnished to teachers in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, and to all those who last year informed the Ohio Department of Education that they were listening to the Ohio School of the Air.

Gwendolyn Jenkins, director of radio drama for Ohio State University and for the School of the Air, will present University dramatic students in history dramalogues on Mondays that will give a chronological picture of important historical events. Again Alma Ruhmschussel, director of physical education in Dayton, Ohio, will conduct story games and rhythmics on Mondays.

Tuesday programs will bring three new features before the WLW school audience. Dean Alfred Vivian, of Ohio University; L. L. Rummel, associate editor of the Ohio Farmer, and Ray Fife, director of Smith-Hughes work in Ohio, will conduct a course known as "Out at Old Aunt Mary's." Cross-country trips with Uncle John and adventures of discovery in Aunt Mary's garden will develop the facts of nature lore that would be taught in such a class in ordinary school.

Dean William A. McPherson and Dr. William Evans, of the Ohio State University, will direct a course in chemistry that will alternate with French. Their aim will be to give supplementary instruction that will be of greatest value to young students. In the French lessons emphasis will be on pronunciation and grammar.

A physics course, similar to the chemistry lessons, will originate at the University of Indiana. In both science courses it is planned to introduce leaders in the fields so that the pupils may hear the writers of their textbooks and the scientists most widely quoted.

Alternating with the physics lessons, a period devoted to health talks will stress preventive measures to help school children correct faulty diet, and to impress upon them the importance of sleep and exercise. The Indiana State

Metropolitan Opera Stars on KSD Program

Gennaro Papi to Direct Orchestra and Chorus Accompanying Them.

The high lights of a dozen of the world's greatest operas, presented by four Metropolitan Opera Co. stars, a chorus and a symphony orchestra under the direction of Gennaro Papi, will be broadcast in the General Motors Family Party tomorrow night over KSD. The concert, continuing through a full hour, will be of a new type in operatic presentations, in that the program will build carefully to a dramatic climax with the four stars singing the quartette from Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Alda Doninelli, soprano; Dorothea Flexer, contralto; Armand Tokatyan, tenor, and George Cehanovsky, baritone, constitute one of the most brilliant quartettes of recognized stars that has been presented in a radio program. Each has made a distinct place in music during the past three seasons of the Metropolitan.

Both Miss Doninelli and Miss Flexer are American singers who have received most of their training in America. Miss Doninelli is a native of Guatemala and Miss Flexer of Allentown, Pa. Armand Tokatyan is the Armenian tenor of Egyptian birth and Italian reputation. George Cehanovsky is a Russian baritone. He received all of his training under his mother's instruction and commanded a destroyer in the Russian navy during the World War.

Gennaro Papi, director of the orchestra and chorus and concert, has been known for years as one of the most distinguished authorities on French and Italian opera and has recently devoted his talents to a study of the possibilities of radio opera and concert performance, from the technical as well as the artistic point of view. He has arranged much of the music for this General Motors concert and has drilled both orchestra and chorus, with the stars in the program.

$1,000,000 Worth of Equipment On Display

Transmitting of Photographs by Radio to Be Demonstrated — Improved Receivers and Handsome Designs in Cabinets Features of Exhibit.

Exhibits valued at more than $1,000,000 will be on display at the Fifth Annual Southwest National Radio Exposition which will open in the Coliseum tomorrow and will continue all week. Indications are that it will be the largest, most comprehensive display of radio merchandise ever assembled in St. Louis. Every bit of available exhibit space will be occupied according to George H. Niekamp, president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association.

Distributors for almost every radio manufacturer in the country will display all the developments and refinements that have been made in the industry within the past year. New features in both cabinets and mechanical construction will be shown.

While the changes that have been made since the show last year have not been so startling as in some past years, almost every manufacturer of receivers has made some important departure from former models. All of these changes will be shown at the exposition.

Since the last few months have seen the introduction of screen grid tubes and other apparatus intended to produce clearer reception and tone, most manufacturers are stressing new features relative to the tonal qualities of receiving sets.

The display of new designs in radio furniture and cabinets will be on an elaborate scale. The cabinet that contains a radio receiver is now usually an attractive piece of furniture, generally in period designs and the finest of woods will characterize the cabinets shown at the exposition.

Striking and unusual designs have been used in arranging the exhibits and the backgrounds for them.

The Coliseum has been decorated especially for the exposition. Instead of the usual iron railing surrounding exhibits, green velvet ropes and gilt posts have been used this year. The canopied ceiling of previous shows has given way this year to an entirely new arrangement of thousands of vividly colored silk pennants of futuristic design.

A Crystal Studio has been erected at the south end of the building at an elevation which permits those on the floor of the arena or in the seats, a clear view of the announcer and the artists as they appear before the microphone. While entertainment is broadcast, a public address system will carry the programs through a battery of loud speakers to all parts of the Coliseum.

A display depicting the development of radio receiving sets from the discovery of radio until the present time, will be shown at the exposition for the last time before going to its permanent home in the Smithsonian Institution at Washington.

Bernays Johnson will twice each day allow 2200 volts of electricity to pass through his body while he sits in an electric chair. He will also fry eggs and perform other unusual feats, all with radio waves.

inherited from our ancient Moorish ancestors."

The Countess' family is said to be one of the oldest in Spain and comes from Barcelona. The title goes back for generations.

Asked if she preferred singing jazz to the songs of her native land, she said:

"I think I have two distinctly different personalities," she said. "When I sing classical melodies I am one person. When I sing jazz an entirely different feeling comes over me. But I can go back and sing classical songs just the same as before. The Spanish temperament, I think, is a help in rendering jazz. Jazz needs a lot of color, and every Spaniard has plenty of that as a national heritage. Our Spanish songs are by no means all languorous melodies sung under a balcony to the accompaniment of a guitar. We have our conquistas who are the equivalent of American chorus girls and sing in stage performances not unlike American musical comedies. The music, too, is somewhat similar."

Friday the guest artist on KWK's program will be Henry Burbig, comedian of the CeCo Couriers' hour on the Columbia System. All of the KWK staff performers will be heard at the Crystal Studio on these two days.

The St. Louis district competitions in the Third National Atwater Kent audition will be held in the Crystal Studio tomorrow and Tuesday nights and will be broadcast by KMOX at 9 o'clock. The men will compete tomorrow night and the women Tuesday.

TEMPLE is all electric, standard chassis—six 227 tubes—push pull amplification using the two new 245 power tubes full-wave rectification. A power supply contained in every respect in combination with the Temple electro-dynamic Speaker assures matchless tone for Temple receivers.

THINKING of BUYING? THINKING of SELLING?

NO MATTER! Let's talk awhile.

We, too, have been thinking of radio . . . for a good many years. Thinking of it and with it all the way through from its very birth to its present high estate.

Coupled with thought was constant research and experiment out of which came creation. Our acoustical engineers, working in our laboratories, have contributed materially and often toward the forward march of radio.

And while we've been thinking and building radio, we've been talking it, too. We have searched tirelessly amongst the dealers, the men who sell and service radio, to discover wherein lays its weakness on the purchaser side.

The years of creation and experiment perfected our workmanship. The dealers ripened and extended our knowledge. Through both channels, we probed to the one sore spot in radio ...the relentless, tone-destroying hum of the AC set and speaker. It was a problem in acoustics. It has been solved, finally, by Temple acoustical engineers.

Temple has cured the hum...drained it off...washed it out.

Temple went to a famous artist for a new thought in console and speaker design. To house this incomparable gem in a setting worthy of it, the unaffected loveliness of pure art is mirrored in the beauty that characterizes Temple cabinet-work.

You're thinking of radio?

Whether you buy to sell again or to enjoy with limitless pleasure of perfection first see and hear the new radio Temple has created.

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

● ... a new radio-receiver and a new ideal

—the man who loves the sing of a golf-ball in full flight

TO THE MAN WHO LOVES the sing of a golf-ball in full flight . . . to the woman who drives her own sport-coupé . . . to that portion of the public, in short, that has the time, the money, and the inclination to enjoy the better things of contemporary life, we present something new and refreshing.

Only such a restricted group, we feel, will appreciate in full the Eveready policy of "not how many, but how well"... the Eveready ideal of superb craftsmanship that builds for permanence, for lasting satisfaction over a period of years, for a definite return in happiness on the money you invest in this medium of home-entertainment.

The Precision Instrument

We like to refer to the new Eveready as the Precision Instrument . . . a radio-receiver born of a passion for painstaking accuracy; a precision that shuns the slap-dash assembly of mass production; a precision that does not stress one part or one feature at the expense of the others; a precision that you expect to find in a fine piano or a superlative motor-car.

This precision is predicated on previsision . . . that long look into the future when the oratory of the salesman is forgotten; when, five or ten years from now, you will still be enjoying fine, clear, natural reception through the Eveready receiver you buy today.

From the winding of a coil to the tightening of a tiny nut, Eveready precision obtains all along the line. Even the cabinets—those truly beautiful pieces of furniture that are a delight to live with, day after day—even the cabinets are designed to serve the sound-reproducing qualities of the receiver.

For instance, our research-laboratories, with the facilities and experience of the great electrical and scientific organization that sponsors them, have found a way to make radio weather-proof! This means that on hot, muggy nights, your Eveready receiver will be as sensitive as in crisp November. Distant stations will come in at room-filling volume. Clear . . . full-voiced . . . faithful to the original tone as it enters the microphone, miles away.

Built for years of service

If improvements are developed and found worth while in actual practice—they will be added. There may be refinements in the years to come, but we doubt that actual improvement, fundamental improvement, can be made in this present receiver, whose very basis is precision. Your investment today is therefore safeguarded. No "yearly model" is likely to render it obsolete.

We think of the Precision Instrument also as a musical instrument. It brings you the programs of the air in all their natural tone and volume—with nothing added, nothing taken away. It is actually "a ticket to the microphone" . . . it takes you to wherever the broadcasting originates, as though by private wire. And the price is no higher than you are asked to pay for the ordinary "commercial" radio-receiver.

If you have been confused by the babel of claims and counter-claims; if you are bewildered by technical terminology; if you have never owned any sort of radio, for one reason or another; if you have been disheartened (or disgusted!) by the new this or the new that which seems to make any radio obsolete overnight, we urge you to hear the new Eveready . . . this precision instrument; this finely engineered music-medium that will not be out of date next month or next year! See your nearest Eveready dealer now . . . today!

Wonders of Radio Waves At the Show

Man Strapped in an Electric Chair Will Endure Twice Current That Kills Criminals.

Bernays Johnson, who 20 years ago began experimenting with electricity in a litle brick house at the rear of 4300 Washington boulevard, will return to St. Louis as the outstanding star of the fifth annual Southwest National Radio Show this week.

Johnson is the son of former Lieutenant-Governor Charles P. Johnson. He was a pupil in Missouri and St. Louis schools until the lure of science made him lose interest in his courses in a manual training school here. He was "discovered" by St. Louis newspapers as early as 1909, his invention of a telephone that operated without wires attracting considerable attention.

During the radio show, Johnson will exhibit a "Theater of Wonders," a display of radio wave phenomena which he has demonstrated all over the country. He maintains a research laboratory at Newark, N. J., and is credited with more than 1000 inventions.

He has served as technical adviser for several large electrical corporations and for three years has been the radio expert of the World's Radio Fair in New York. He installed radio in the Vatican at Rome.

Defies Electric Chair.

Twice a day during the Radio Show Johnson will be strapped into a regulation electric death chair, and will allow twice the number of volts used in electrocuting condemned persons to pass through his body. A bar of iron, strapped in his mouth, melts under this charge but after about 60 seconds he is released seemingly unharmed.

He asserts that by relaxing and keeping cool electricity can be rendered harmless to a man. Grasping a live wire and remaining alive, he says is simply a matter of "keeping one's head."

Anyhow, he is under contract to perform this feat once in the afternoon and once at night for a week here.

A new radio lamp, which burns in midair without any wires connected to the transmitter, is given first place in "The Theater of Wonders." This lamp not only lights in midair but will light through a glass globe filled with water. The waves can be sent through a human body without losing power.

Other Radio "Wonders."

Radio waves will actuate the motors of a model aeroplane in another exhibit. A working model of the Lindbergh fuel-less or magnetic motor is used in this demonstration.

European scientists discovered a way to send heat waves through the air, making it possible to boil water in midair. Frying an egg with a wave that first passes through the human body is one of the scientifically sound "stunts" on this program.

A model aerial liner of the future, fitted with cabins and living quarters, is used to show alleged neutralization of gravity by radio waves. Johnson declared such a liner should be able to circle the globe in 24 hours when perfected.

"You just stay up and let the earth and not the ship do the speeding," he says.

His theory is that radio waves can be utilized to hold an airship stationary while the earth revolves on its axis below. All the ship's navigator need do, he says, is time and chart the hour of arrival in the country in which he wishes to land then sail downward toward his scheduled landing place. Thus far this experiment can be performed only within a short distance of the transmitter, hence a toy ship is used in the demonstration.

Metal plates weighing several pounds will be suspended in air by means of a radio wave and made to float as lightly as if they were of paper, Johnson says.

During one of Villa's expeditions against the Government of Mexico, Johnson served as that noted bandit's personal wireless operator.

When he was 21 (he is now 35), he was appointed consulting engineer of a concern in Texas promoting the manufacture of radios. The company ran into difficulties, and a court held that "the contention of these men that they are able to make a box which will pick up sound out of the air is obviously a flagrant fraud."

Radio networks, which broadcast programs all over the United States employ more than 100,000 miles of leased wires to carry programs to every corner of the land.

$1,000,000 Worth Of Equipment To Be Displayed

the show will present nationally known radio artists.

Doors Open at 2 P. M.

Dealers will be admitted to the show at 11 o'clock each morning, beginning Tuesday. The exposition will be opened to the public at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, although the formal opening will not take place until 7:30 in the evening when Mayor Miller will make an address. He will be introduced by George H. Niekamp, president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, under the auspices of which the show is held.

Other ofifcers of the association are: George H. Niekamp, president; Walter H. Dyer, vice president; Math. Kaemmerer, vice president; Samuel B. Singer, secretary, and W. A. Ward, treasurer; Otto E. Heilmann, N. E. Hill, L. E. Jaques, H. R. Levy, A. C. Brandt and Julian E. Sampson, directors.

The Show Committee includes: George H. Niekamp, chairman; Walter H. Dyer, hall arrangements; A. C. Brandt, advertising and publicity; Samuel B. Singer, broadcasting; Otto Heilmann, hall acoustics; W. A. Ward, finances; N. E. Hill, prizes; L. E. Jaques, convention; Julian Sampson, reception; M. Kaemmerer, space allocation, and H. B. Levy, program.

The exposition will be very different in most respects from the first St. Louis Radio Show, which was held in October, 1925. At that time radio was little more than a novelty and the displays were merely curiosities. A majority of the exhibits were of parts and accessories for the amateur set builder. The Radio Trades Association was organized with only a few members in order to give the show.

In the five years, the Southwest National Radio Exposition has grown to be one of the largest of its kind held in St. Louis. The number of exhibitors has grown to include distributors for the most important radio manufacturers in the country. Each show has been more successful than the preceding one, both from the standpoint of attendance and general interest.

War Veterans' Ballad a Hit

"Twilight," the first composition of Leland L. Yost, a World War veteran, brought him instant recognition in musical circles. Yost, a war casualty, struggling back to health in the Army hospital at Kerrville, Tex., has been confined to his bed for more than two years. Always having been interested in music, he recently turned to composition in an effort to find an interest which would occupy his mind and cheer him through his long hours of illness.

Allen McQuhae, famous Irish tenor and a former ranchman, known to millions through his songs in the Atwater Kent Radio Hour, featured "Twilight" in one of his broadcast programs last summer. The song was accepted by the first publisher to whom it was offered. It has attracted the favorable attention not only of singers, like McQuhae, but of orchestra leaders. The song is a dreamy waltz ballad with a popular swing.

Spots to the Gallon.

When the garage floor becomes spotted with oil and grease that has leaked from the car, the garage owner comes face to face with another opportunity to use gasoline. As a cleaner in such a case gasoline will remove more spots to the gallon than almost any other substance.

Atwater Kent Used In Vaudeville

Putting an Atwater Kent one radio set through its paces fore crowded houses over the vaudeville circuit is enabling Walton to headline the bill wherever he plays. Known as "Le conteur Distingue," he presents "Atwater Kent Half Hour" program which consists largely putting the set to work at amusing amusement for his patrons.

After introducing the set to audience, he tunes it in and nonchalantly by, concluding presentation with his own Walton and his "silent have covered most of the east of the Mississippi and of Canada with their new act."

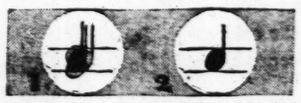
FADA presents . .
VIBRA-CONTROL
..the secret of tone-realism

VIBRA-CONTROL is the culmination of F. A. D. Andrea's lifelong ambition to build a radio with an absolutely natural full-powered tone.

Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all vibrations . . . is the long-sought answer to radio's most baffling problem. It has at last made possible the reproduction of tone quality exactly as broadcast, free from distortion, interference, and annoying hums and roars.



1—This is the way a note looks with tangled following tones.
2—This is how it appears—when vibrations are completely controlled.

What Vibra-Control Means

Vibra-Control could only be attained when engineers had succeeded in so co-ordinating the receiver, the speaker and the console that the finest shadings of tone were caught and reproduced without loss of quality or interference from unwanted and destructive counter vibrations.

Tap a glass with a pencil: You start vibrations of sound.
Place a finger-tip on the rim and you control the tone.

How Fada Did It

To make such an attainment possible Fada first perfected a low-loss radio frequency circuit sensitive enough to catch and magnify the weakest signals. Fada radios were instantly recognized as the "sensitive sets."

Then Fada invented the constant wave band pre-selector for hairline selectivity and to eliminate "phantom" stations. Now experts acclaimed Fada both sensitive and super-selective.

Increased power was made possible through specially designed circuit using 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification. The Fada dynamic speaker was perfected to deliver, undistorted, the full-power of the Fada circuit.

Fada Tone Long Famous

Quality was paramount in importance: (Fada transformers for instance cost four times as much as ordinary units.) Overnight Fada tone became famous; and still Fada engineers weren't satisfied.

The dynamic speaker brought new tone quality but it also brought a new problem.

How Fada finally achieved complete Vibra-Control is too long, too technical to detail here.

New Tone Realism

But today Vibra-Control is an accomplished fact; and with it Fada has actually enhanced those extraordinary qualities that have already made Fada radios the "choice of the experts."

Every gradation of tone, each delicate shading is brought to your ears unhampered by mechanical or electrical disturbances . . . so natural that you can close your eyes and sit beside the performers themselves.

VIBRA-CONTROL FADA 35
Uses screen grid and new 245 power tubes in push-pull amplification, with Fada Pre-Selector for sharpest selectivity. Fada full-power dynamic speaker. Equipped for phonograph attachment.
HIGHBOY $245 LESS TUBES
Fada radios are priced from $99.50 to $675.

"Because Fada output is necessarily limited, we suggest an immediate hearing of this revolutionary step in musical reproduction at your nearest Fada dealer."

Record Made by Majestic Plant, Wrape Asserts

Production and Sales Feat Unparalleled in Any Industry, He Says.

"Amazing is the word that comes to mind most readily, after a tour of teeming plants in Chicago, as characterizing Majestic radio, which is but little more than a year old—or young," Deane S. Kintner, writes in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Here are a few of many justifications of the adjective:

"Production of 5100 complete receivers and combinations daily, with preparations for increasing this to 6500 a day.

"Manufacture of 30,000 to 40,000 tubes each day in a factory that was entirely barren a few months ago. Soon the output is to be 50,000 or more.

"Employment of 12,000 workers, a large percentage of them feminine, to make and assemble sets, cabinets, tubes and speakers.

"Maintenance of this country's largest wood veneer plant, so that raw cabinet material may never be lacking.

"Meeting of Chicago's second largest payroll.

"Consumption of 75,000 miles of wire each working day to produce coil, transformer and speaker windings.

"Receipt of 30 carloads of raw material every morning, and shipment of 25 carloads of finished products every night.

Huge Tube Plant.

"Naturally enough, interest centers just now in the tube plant, not only because it is almost new, but also in view of the fact that by making its own tubes the Grigsby-Grunow Co. seeks independence of any shortage such as hampered sales last winter.

"Likewise, it is believed that still better results will be obtainable from Majestic sets when they are equipped with Majestic tubes, each matching the other. Hence the tube plant has been provided with all that is latest and best in machinery, and materials and operations are being checked and rechecked to insure quality and uniformity of output.

"Already the daylighted building seems almost filled with workers and appliances, yet it is planned to increase the number of tubes made daily to approximately 100,000 within two months.

"Each set requires eight tubes, which will make the regular tube demand 52,000 when the receiver production rate becomes 6500. Replacements of tubes in old sets are expected to run into many thousands."

"The record of swift yet substantial expansion made by the Grigsby-Grunow Co. is unparalleled in any industry. Henry Ford never did anything more wonderful," Harold Wrape, president of the Benwood-Linze Co., Majestic distributer, said yesterday. "The Majestic plant started at scratch in May, 1928, and within a year 600,000 Majestic sets were made and sold. The millionth Majestic set was produced last month and was presented to the same man who got the millionth Ford car. By Oct. 15 the Majestic plant will be making 6500 sets a day. If there ever was anything marvelous in industry, surely this feat deserves to be called 'hat.'"

12,000,000 Sets in U. S.

One estimate places the number of receiving sets now in use in the United States at 12,000,000.

NOVELTY EXHIBIT FOR RADIO SHOW

Lighting a lamp through a girl's head by radio waves, a feat that is to be performed at the St. Louis radio show.

Huge Speaker Placed for Radio Exposition

The same type of huge speaker that was a feature of last year's radio show has been placed inside the north entrance to the Coliseum to amplify the voices of singers and speakers at the exposition.

It has an air column 19 feet long, and is operated by four large dynamic units, each of which has a rating of 25 watts output. When it was used by the Post-Dispatch last fall to give out election returns, it could be heard above the noise of traffic for more than a quarter of a mile.

Five Radio Firms in St. Louis Work Group Buying Plan

Group purchasing and merchandising has been put into effect by five radio firms in St. Louis. The firms are the Kaemmerer Music Shops, of which Matt Kaemmerer is head; A. C. Brandt; the Sampson Co., headed by Julian Sampson; the Gaertner Electric Co., headed by George Gaertner, and R. A. Kissel.

All the heads of these firms have been active in radio organization work as well as in business Kaemmerer is first vice president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association Sampson and Brandt are now directors of the association, and Sampson was its president last year. Kissel also has been a director of the association.

At first the five firms got together to buy radio products in carload lots because of the manifest advantages to themselves and to the public. Then they found that it paid them to advertise jointly. Presently, too, they found that group buying could be applied to tubes and other merchandise as well as to receivers and speakers. Since May 1, when they got together, they have bought five carloads of radio sets a. a group.

The five firms work independently when it comes to selling the merchandise they have bought as a group. But they do meet frequently to establish policies and work out plans for service work, financing sales and so forth.

The benefits of their group buying have been so obvious that all five firms are extending it gradually to cover about everything that they sell, Kaemmerer said yesterday.

Schweig-Engel Firm Has 25,000 Service Calls in Single Year

The Schweig-Engel Corporation, 5247 Delmar boulevard, is celebrating its tenth anniversary this month. This firm, which was organized in 1919, has the following officers: Morris Schweig, president; Sam B. Singer, vice president; Martin Schweig, vice president; M. H. Engel, treasurer, and Eugene Schweig, secretary.

Morris Schweig and Engel organized the firm originally to sell motion picture projectors. In 1921 Singer joined it to handle radio as a side line. At first the radio business consisted of making and servicing custom built receivers, emphasis being placed on the service work, a policy which has been continued until today the firm employs 31 service men, three more than it has salesmen. By 1926 Schweig-Engel had swung wholly to the radio business.

It is now handling six well-known lines of radio receivers, and its service calls number 25,000 in a year. The firm's growth, Morris Schweig maintains, is due to competent service and the expert advice that it has enabled the firm to give to prospective buyers.

Singer and Eugene Schweig were lieutenants in the Signal Corps during the World War, both having been graduated from Purdue University in electrical engineering. Singer served in the Radio Research Division of the Signal Corps, and both men took radio courses at Yale College while in the army.

Eliminator Construction.

To construc the eliminator, connect a high capacity "A" filter condenser across the output terminals of the charger. Then connect the plus of the charger-filter combination—which is now the eliminator—to the plus "A" wire of the set. Also connect the negative "A" lead of the eliminator to the negative "A" wire of the set. Regulate the tube brilliancy by adjusting the tube rheostats of the set. If 199 type tubes are to be powered, connect a six ohm fixed resister in the negative wire between the eliminator negative "A" terminal and the set's negative "A" terminal.

SERVING THE

New Combination Phono-Radio Model By Stewart-Warner

Completes Line of Receivers of Unusual Power and Quality.

A new addition to the 1929-30 Stewart-Warner line of radio receivers is announced by Dan Hyland, general manager in St. Louis for the Stewart-Warner Radio Co., and will be displayed at the show.

The new model is the combination phonograph and radio.

The cabinet is finished in hand carved walnut and is of the sliding panel design. Record space is provided at the bottom of the cabinet.

The Stewart-Warner 900 Series is wired to receive any standard television hookup. Another feature stressed by the Stewart-Warner company is the ease of service. It is said that any part of the set can be removed and replaced without removing the chassis from its case. Almost perfect electrical connection is made at each joint because 22 carat gold is used in the soldering process.

The speaker, which is of the dynamic design, operating through the new 145-superpower amplifier tubes, is without hum, it is pointed out.

Unique Antenna Plan.

One unique feature is the antenna arrangement, making it possible to use any length of outside antenna by a simple adjustment inside the set. Through the use of this method a very short antenna can be used, insuring great selectivity even with powerful local stations. This same device also permits the owner to use the light socket for an antenna, if so desired.

The dialing arrangement of the new Stewart-Warner series is of an efficient design. The dial is graduated for each 10 kilocycles, making positive selection of stations desired the work of a moment. The lower part of the dial is calibrated with the conventional 0 to 100 divisions.

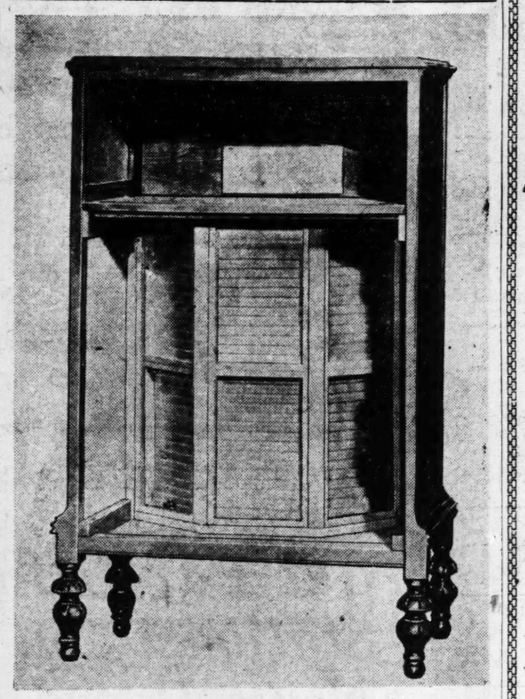
Complete Range of Styles.

The new line that Stewart-Warner has perfected covers complete range of console and table models.

The unusual smoothness of operation of the new Stewart-Warner sets as well as volume and selectivity are noteworthy.

All models of Stewart-Warner receivers are displayed by the local company at the radio show.

NEW CONDENSER SPEAKER



This is the so-called condenser type speaker which was perfected a few months ago and is beginning to be used in radio sets. It consists of several sections, generally six, made up of two plates separated by an insulating compound. The rear plate is rigid, but the front plate is perforated, covered with aluminum foil and moves.

Jack Coleman Runs Radio Store

Sonora Brings Out Complete New Radio Line

Company Operating Recently Acquired Federal Factories' Full Force.

The Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., announces a complete new line of Sonora radios with the exclusive Sonora synchro-tone modulator and screen-grid tubes.

Sonora recently acquired the Federal Telephone and Radio Co. and the Federal Ortho-Sonic Co. In addition to its main factory at Saginaw, Mich., the Sonora company is operating full force the two Federal plants, one at Buffalo and the other at Bridgeburg, Ont., Canada. The Sonora distributer in the St. Louis territory is the W. E. Fuetterer Supplies Co.

The synchro-tone modulator is an exclusive Sonora feature that reproduces even the faintest sound with the same fidelity as the original broadcast presentation. It is so sensitized that it covers the entire range of the musical scale, amplifying each note perfectly to any desired volume, without hum or distortion.

The new Sonora models, designed expressly for screen-grid operation, each have three screen-grid radio frequency tubes, power detector and one push-pull stage employing two 245-tubes. The chassis is completely shielded, including interstage condenser isolation, a feature that adds to the extreme sensitivity and selectivity of the sets and assures complete stability.

The Sonora dynamic speaker includes a special filter to eliminate a. c. hum and add materially to the tonal qualities.

All Sonora cabinets were designed, and are being manufactured entirely by Sonora, as is every other part of the new Sonora sets.

Furniture types for screen-grid models are the lowboy, highboy and de luxe cabinet.

The Sonora line includes also three radios of full unitized construction, with tuner and detector, audio amplifier, power rectifier and dynamic speaker, each in separate units. There are two types of chassis—the studio and de luxe. The former has nine tubes and the latter 11 tubes.

In addition, the Sonora line includes two Sonora Melodon combinations for radio and electrical record playing. One of the Melodons has the studio chassis, the other the de luxe chassis.

All of these models have auxiliary antenna, which may be used in place of the conventional outside aerial.

Daughters' Voices First He Hears on Air

The first radio selection that Mack Foreman and his wife heard was a song by their three daughters.

Foreman, a 43-year-old piano tuner of Meadville, an isolated hamlet in Southwestern Mississippi, and his wife enjoyed the thrill as the result of a "surprise party" by the Crosley Radio Corporation, operator of WLW.

Foreman, whose own dreams of musical career failed to materialize began several years ago to point his daughters for the goal which he had been unable to reach. He gave them singing lessons regularly and they improved enough to get a tryout seven months ago with the Dixie Follies, a musical comedy.

The piano tuner's dream came true when the three girls, Hilda, 19, Louise, 17, and Maxine, 16, went on the air over WLW. The Crosley organization istalled a receiving set in the Foreman cottage at Meadville especially for the occasion.

Sparton Dealers Hear Addresses by Factory Officers

Henshaw-Dudley Co., Distributer, Largely Made Up of Auto Men.

More than 200 Sparton dealers attended a meeting at the Jefferson Hotel on Monday as guests of the Sparton distributer, the Henshaw-Dudley Distributing Co.

Seth Henshaw and Tom Dudley, members of the distributing firm, welcomed the dealers and promised continued co-operation. Suggestions on installation of receivers and service were given by Gordon Volkenant of the statistical department of the Sparks-Withington Co. of Jackson, Mich., maker of Sparton receivers.

E. T. Hutchinson, sales manager for Sparks-Withington Co., discussed merchandising possibilities for the radio dealer. He stressed intensive selling methods. Willard S. French, president of Brooke, Smith & French, Inc., of Detroit, outlined the Sparton advertising campaign for the coming year. He was emphatic in describing the importance of dealer advertising to reap the benefit from national and local advertising.

The Henshaw-Dudley Distributing Co. has a personnel largely made up of automobile men. Tom A. Dudley, its president, has been associated with Edward S. Jordan in several official capacities for 13 years, or since the inception of the Jordan car by Edward S. Jordan. Seth B. Henshaw has just arrived to reside in St. Louis from Charleston, W. Va., where he has been engaged in the distribution of automobiles.

Edward S. Jordan is a stockholder and director in the firm. Paul Zens, formerly with the Thomas B. Jeffrey Co., and associated with Jordan at that time and later vice president in charge of sales of the Jordan Motor Car Co., is another stockholder and director of the Henshaw-Dudley Co.

The Henshaw-Dudley Co. have in their service department three graduates from Washington University. These men were graduated by Prof. Glasgow, who is the chief consulting engineer of the Sparks-Withington factory.

Associated with the company in the sales department are Frank S. Purviance Jr., formerly with the Sparton factory, and Francis X. Cain. Carson Hickox, a former Oklahoma cowboy, takes care of the sales problems in Eastern Missouri.

Fights What He Calls Radio "Nuisance Talk"

McMurdo Silver, Manufacturer, Opposes Lengthy Program Advertising.

Lengthy sales talks and announcements in broadcast programs must go, or the entire radio industry will feel the pressure of the listeners' discontent," says McMurdo Silver, Chicago radio manufacturer, who is fighting "this nuisance talk."

Listeners with stop watches have been stationed by Silver to check "bally hoo" announcements and advertising sandwiched between entertainment features on the air. They are chalking black and white marks against stations and sponsors according to the length and frequency of these interruptions, in an effort to arrive at definite statistics.

"The creation of good will towards a brand by a few brief announcements is all that advertisers should expect from their sponsorship of a program," said Silver, who is president of Silver-Marshall, Inc. "As a supplement to advertising in black and white, the long established medium for selling to the millions, air advertising finds its proper niche. But trying to tell on the air the detailed sales story which is legitimate in print is taking an unfair advantage of the radio public. A listener cannot tune out the station without taking a chance on missing part of a desirable musical number which may follow the 'nuisance talk.' In this way he is at the sponsor's mercy.

"We have found that some programs average as much as five minutes of nonsense between musical numbers. Reports from hearers show that they are far from satisfied with such hodge-podges of cheap advertising masquerading as entertainment. Imagine the listener's disgust with the whole system of ether wave entertainment, when he turns from one station to another and gets this same kind of verbosity. Fans who write radio stations about their favorite program should send complaint cards whenever they find these interruptions annoying. The ultimate solution is in the listeners' hands because enough complaint cards piling up on an announcer's desk would soon bring sponsors to their senses."

Two Women Find Success in Radio

There's opportunity for women in radio equal to the best opportunities for men. Witness the success of Miss Bertha Brainard, Eastern program director for the National Broadcasting Company, and of Miss Madge Tucker, production manager in charge of all NBC children's programs.

The equal of Miss Brainard's career would be difficult to duplicate in all the field of business. She entered the broadcasting business in its very first days when it seemed hardly more than an experiment. Today she is one of the most important executives in radio.

KDKA Broadcasts Synthetic 'Big Ben'

The secret of KDKA's mystery bell, which "bongs" mellowly on the hour when the station is broadcasting, is out!

Radio audiences have become accustomed to hear the deep-throated bell strike just once exactly on the hour, whether a program is in progress or the studio temporarily silent. No explanation is made by the announcer. The "bong" is the synthetic voice of Big Ben, London's famous clock.

The famous time piece's voice is imitated by frequencies imposed on the radio set in Pittsburg which do not become sound until they reach the radio speaker.

Fada Receivers Need No Aerial, Loop or Ground

Special Band Pass Filter Used for Selectivity and True Tone.

The new Fada receivers, which will be displayed at the radio show by the Beck & Corbitt Co., distributer, are made by F. A. D. Andren, Inc., of New York, which is a world-wide organization. Fada was the first to introduce commercially successful neutrodyne receivers.

The new Fada screen grid models are so powerful that they operate without aerial, loop or ground.

An interesting feature of these sets is a capacity coupled band pass filter designed to shut out "phantom stations." This filter has the property of constant selectivity. In the new Fada 35 set, for example, the band pass filter couples the antenna to the first radio-frequency amplifier. It is incorporated in this part of the circuit to prevent undesired signals being impressed on the grid of the first tube.

When two or more strong signals are impressed on the grid of an amplifier tube, they will modulate each other so that their sum and difference frequencies will appear in the tube plate circuit. If the receiver is tuned to a short wave, which is equal to the sum of the two impressed frequencies, both stations will be heard together in a conglomerate mess. Suppose the signals of two stations of 600 and 700 kilocycles were impressed on the grid of a radio-frequency amplifier tube. If the receiver were tuned to 1300 kilocycles both signals would be heard mixed together.

This has been termed "phantom stations" and is due to lack of selectivity between the antenna and the first amplifier tube. A good tuned circuit between the antenna and the first tube will prevent this under the usual conditions. A good band pass filter will prevent it under all conditions. Good selectivity between antenna and the first tube is more important than in any other part of the radio frequency amplifier.

"You've got to sacrifice one thing or the other," they told us. "You can't have clearness and volume and distance, all in the same radio set. You've got to sacrifice something." But Stewart-Warner went ahead without regard to anything that had ever been done before.

They developed an entirely new circuit. A Screen Grid circuit utilizing the most powerful tube equipment known to modern radio—two new UX-245 power tubes in "push-pull" with three 224 Screen Grid, two 227 Heater type and one 280 Rectifying tube.

The result is a set that provides tremendous volume. Without distortion. With amazing realism of tone. And extreme distance-getting ability. Performance beyond anything you have ever listened to. Beauty that will give you a genuine thrill. Modern!—even to plug-in connection for television.

It couldn't be done. But here it is—the new Stewart-Warner—"The Set with the Punch"—the punch that knocks out all former standards of radio reception. The punch that brings distant stations booming in with unmatched realism of tone.

Production Being Advanced Rapidly By Bremer-Tully

New Receivers Are Notable for Mechanical Excellence —Many Features.

The new Bremer-Tully sets, Models 81 and 82, are being delivered to dealers as rapidly as shipments come in from the factory and will be displayed at the radio show, reports Geo. W. Van Sickle, of the Van-Ashe Radio Co., distributer. The Van-Ashe Co. has been a pioneer jobber of Bremer-Tully products since 1922, when Bremer-Tully started making radio apparatus in Chicago.

From a technical standpoint the new models are a fine example of mechanical excellence. The 81 and 82 are consoles. The same chassis and speaker is in both, the only difference being in cabinet. Nine tubes are used, including a voltage regulator designed to handle line voltage fluctuations from 90 to 130 volts without affecting the operation of the set.

The circuit is totally shielded and perfectly balanced, and consists of four tuned stages using 27 type tubes, including a 27 tube detector, insuring noise-free operation.

Two 245 type tubes are used in push-pull arrangement in the final audio stages, operating at full rated voltage to give new richness of tone.

An illuminated selector dial is calibrated in kilocycles. There is single control for ordinary operation, with special auxiliary fine tuning control for sharper, clearer, distance tuning.

A phonograph connection is provided for high quality reproduction of phonograph records when used with a high impedance pickup.

The Bremer-Tully super dynamic speaker built into Models 81 and 82 is designed to eliminate hum and reproduce full-toned throughout the vocal and instrumental range, even when operated at full concert strength.

Many new laboratory instruments and tests have been designed to facilitate inspection and testing. Factory production engineers advise that Bremer-Tully production will practically be doubled within a few weeks.

Gibbons to Explain Palestine Outbreak

Floyd Gibbons, war correspondent, will continue his discussion and analysis of the present situation in Palestine in his broadcast talk through KSD tomorrow. This week Gibbons will discuss the importance to Great Britain of control of areas in the Near East. In order to maintain air routes linking England with India and other British possessions in the Far East, landing fields must be available in Palestine and Arabia, Gibbons says. Thus the present disturbance in Palestine is of grave importance to the empire.

Magnetic Field To Be Harnessed

Possibilities of the radio transmission of the future were described by Paul G. Andres, vice president and chief engineer of the Temple Corporation at the banquet which opened the Nashville radio show.

Andres described the use in the future of the earth's magnetic field in addition to ether waves as a means of radio transmission. "The earth's magnetic field," Andres said, "will open up communication channels that are not affected by water and land barriers.

"The receiver to be used will be designed to be responsive to magnetic variations at the broadcast frequency making speech and music audible. The value of such a change to the radio industry is seen in the fact that we now have about 350 broadcasting stations and only 92 channels available in the broadcast band."

Any outdoor aerial should be equipped with a lightning arrester. The arrester is not a protection against lightning but it will help keep the vicinity of the aerial free from excessive static discharges.

40,000,000 Radio Listeners.

America's radio audience has been estimated at 40,000,000.

Stromberg-Carlson Adds Three New Screen Grid Sets

Advanced Design and Very Powerful Dynamic Speaker Feature Radio Line.

New additions to the Stromberg-Carlson line for 1929 include three new screen grid receivers, a new "flexible armature" magnetic pick-up outfit for electrical reproduction of phoongraph records, and an improved, scientifically baffled, electro dynamic speaker.

Each of the three receivers uses three screen grid tubes in its radio frequency stage and the enormous amplification resulting makes possible the use of "linear" power detection with automatic grid bias, thus perfecting tone reproduction from stations using the new 100 per cent broadcast modulation. Each receiver has total shielding, each has a phonograph jack, and each has single dial tuning.

Some of the New Models.

Model 641 is a "Treasure Chest" table type in an American walnut cabinet of most compact design with vertical and horizontal graining of exquisite beauty. Its circuits are designed so that the detector feeds directly into the new UX-245 power output tube, eliminating one audio stage and htus reducing distortion and hum.

The No. 642 is a console with a built-in dynamic speaker. The high efficiency of its circuit, used with scientifically baffled dynamic speaker, gives greatly increased volume range while maintaining clarity and quality of tone. Its cabinet is finished in American walnut with reproduc ons of hand carved design and the speaker is concealed by sliding panels.

In the No. 846 console the advantage of reception at practically uniform volume of any desired intensity, through automatic volume-control, is one of several advanced features. In connection with the automatic control is a visual tuning meter by which the proper resonance point for best tonal results is indicated, and a silent key with which blasts of programs and background noises are eliminated in tuning from station to station. Two UX-245 tubes are used in the output of this receiver for fine tone quality at great volume.

The contrasting walnut cabinet of the No. 846 is half-octagonal with six graceful supporting legs. The control knobs for the radio receiver project through appropriate places in a delicate reproduction of hand-carved design of dogwood trees in bloom. As in all Stromberg-Carlsons, speaker, cabinet and chassis are all carefully matched before their final assembly to give best over-all results in tone quality.

New Dynamic Speakers.

A new magnetic pick-up out, known as the 2-A has been specially designed for these and similar receivers. The armature of this pickup is much shorter and lighter in weight than is usual and is cushioned so as to provide a very flexible mounting of the needle. This great flexibility reduces the wear on the grooves of the phonograph records on which it is employed.

Three "magnetic" cones have been retained in the line, the No. 14 table model, the No. 16 floor pedestal model, and the No. 17 wall type. In addition, there is the new No. 25 electro-dynamic speaker which is enclosed in a low, pedestaled cabinet of elegant walnut finish. This speaker has a large cone for better radiation of low frequencies and the corrugations in the cone are arranged to give even responsiveness over the entire scale. It has two to four times the sound output with a given electrical input than other dynamics, so that one tube in the radio receiver will give the same results as four when used in conjunction with a less efficient speaker.

Stewart-Warner Has Period Cabinets

Tracing the progress of radio development from the beginning, W. J. Zucker, vice president and sales manager of the Stewart-Warner Corporation, notes the decided influence of art in the manufacture of radio furniture. He pointed out that the demand for furniture craftsmanship favored the masters of the early periods, with the result that cabinetmakers of America are scouring the treasure spots of Europe for pieces characteristic of the designs of past centuries.

According to Zucker, the Stewart-Warner Corporation anticipated this trend and was early to adopt the dignified lines of such masters as Sheraton and other famous old English furniture makers. For instance, he pointed out, in the seventeenth century English console model, enclosing the Stewart-Warner new "900 series" receiver, the traditional sturdiness and enduring simplicity of design of early English craftsmanship has been faithfully carried out.

"A really good radio receiver should merit an equally fine cabinet," said Zucker. "As the radio itself has advanced to its present refinement, so also has the cabinet for housing the set developed from a plain box to the last word in furniture craft.

"People have come to regard the radio not only as a utility, but as an important piece of furniture to grace the living room of the home. The feminine influence, of course, has done much to bring about a change for better and more artistic cabinets."

Loudspeaker Nuisance.

Owners and operators of receiving sets in a quiet neighborhood or apartment house should consider other tenants, especially at night. Reception can be softened by reducing the volume of the speakers or shutting the windows and doors.

'Tone Engineer' Helps to Refine A-C Dayton Sets

Navigator Named by Pilots Who Heard It in First Demonstration.

The new AC Dayton Navigator receiver was named by a group of listeners at the first demonstration of the new set near McCook Field, the official laboratory for aviation of the United States army at Dayton, O., by a group of pilots who heard the program and marveled at the number of stations that rolled in, loud and perfect in tone. "That set certainly does navigate," said a navy pilot in the group. The name "Navigator" was born.

The AC Dayton Navigator comes in seven different models, all consoles, which will be exhibited at the radio show by the Barrett Electrical Supply Co., distributer.

Here is a powerful set, a new circuit, that pre-selects the stations so that when signals are amplified they are free of hum or distortion. There are nine tubes in one of the most powerful sets yet designed, including two 45s in push-pull audio, a deep-throated, specially constructed electric-dynamic speaker, and an illuminated dial designated in both numerals and kilocycles.

Conrad Strassner, president of the AC Dayton Co., himself a musician and authority on music, and R. W. Bennett, vice president, are responsible for the perfecting of the Navigator, for they worked with engineers over a period of three years. Strassner was one of the first radio manufacturers in the country to establish a "tone engineer" as an important laboratory worker. This man, a graduate of an internationally known conservatory of music, was added to the engineering staff several years ago for the express purpose of refining the reproduction of the AC Dayton radio.

All of the tuning on an AC Dayton set is done in a part of the electrical circuit separated from the radio-frequency amplification circuits. In by far the greatest majority of receivers the tuning and the amplification are closely associated with each other; all stages of amplification being tuned with a variable air condenser. But, as stated before, in this set the two functions are entirely divorced and the system employs a pretuner or what has been termed technically a "preselector." This preselector consists of a fully shielded circuit connected suitably with the antenna circuit that tunes to the desired signals while eliminating all other signals.

The selector functions as a band pass filter that accepts a band of frequencies large enough to pass all the tones of the broadcast signal, while having a sharp cutoff on both sides that makes tuning without interference from nearby channels a reality.

Nine Stations in Africa.

There are 196 broadcasting stations in Europe; 128 in North America outside the United States, 52 in South America; 18 in Asia; nine in Africa, and 28 in Oceania.

Signal Strength of Antenna.

The more sensitive the receiver, the smaller should be the antenna that is used with it. The less sensitive the set, the longer should be the aerial. There is a limit, however, for the length of the aerial. Whether a long or short aerial is used, it is vitally important that the lead-in wire be as short and direct as possible to the receiver. The lead-in wire should also be kept away whenever possible from objects that may absorb energy. It is not good practice to run a lead-in wire and tack it along the side of the house or the molding. It is surprising how much signal strength can be wasted in this manner.

New Control for New Power—But in the New Grebe this added power is controlled. Overlapping of stations is eliminated . . . strays are kept out. You get the full tone value made possible by that exclusive Grebe feature—the Equalized Band Pass Filter.

Single Audio Stage Means No Hum—Grebe reception is so strong . . . so pure in tonal characteristics . . . that only a single audio stage is needed. Hum and microphonic disturbances are eliminated.

Large Diameter Speaker . . . an Original Grebe Idea—Full tone range is effectively accomplished by special large diameter electrodynamic speaker . . . so successfully introduced by Grebe.

For Superb Reproduction of Phonograph Records—You can play your favorite phonograph records by a mere turn of the tuning dial. This automatically connects the electric phonograph pick-up with its specially wound transformer.

Cabinets Designed for Lasting Beauty and Acoustic Perfection—The New Grebe is obtainable in a wide choice of selected walnut and mahogany lowboy and highboy models. Furniture of characteristic beauty and dignity . . . and expertly designed for its acoustic properties. In a word, Grebe craftsmanship.

In July, at the National Radio Show in Chicago, the new Grebe Super-Synchrophase made its bow before the world's most critical audience. For months there had been a note of expectancy. A new power in radio had been inherited. . . . The Screen Grid Tube. How could this new power be controlled, but not subdued? Its defects eliminated—but its almost sensational advantages retained? The best technical minds in radio had been wrestling with this problem.

When the curtain was drawn at Chicago, manufacturers saw the answer. Their interest was immediately captured. Small wonder that it soon became the center of attention. Here was the solution . . . quietly worked out in the Grebe engineering laboratories . . . the Grebe "Equalized Band Pass Filter."

At this open forum the basic principles of the New Grebe were critically reviewed by experts and approved—its design studied and praised—its performance judged and pronounced perfect—its cabinet work commended, and its acoustics acclaimed as faultless.

I feel justly proud of this unstinted praise from other manufacturers, distributors and leading retail experts . . . justly proud of this set—a compliment to the organization of craftsmen who produced it. This universal acceptance of the New Grebe I pass on to the discriminating radio buyer as a guarantee of a fine instrument—outstanding in advanced design and perfect re-production.

Your Grebe dealer wants you to enjoy Tri-toned* radio. Let him arrange for a 48 hour demonstration in your own home. Telephone him . . . today.

*What is Tri-toned Radio?

Every musical sound has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from that of another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural over-emphasis of any part of the scale . . . Tri-toned radio.

New Kylectron Speaker Will Be Exhibited at Show

Featured in One Model of the Courier Line of Receivers.

Radio's newest speaker, the Kylectron will be demonstrated at the St. Louis radio exposition. The Kylectron is being introduced throughout the country by United Reproducers Corporation of Springfield, O., maker of Courier receivers, which are distributed by the Shapleigh Hardware Co. "Kylectron," the distributer said, "makes possible the most natural tone radio has ever known. It removes the 'barrel' or 'machine' sound from reception. It is the invention of Colin Kyle, formerly an obscure young California school teacher.

"At recent radio shows, where Kylectron has been heard, it has been hailed by experts and radio fans as the development of the year best suited to typify the progress the radio industry has made. Kylectron is based on an entirely new principle of sound reproduction. It reproduces tone with photographic accuracy."

Kylectron is exclusive equipment in Courier radio sets. It cannot be obtained in other than United Reproducers lines.

ew Kylectron Speaker Will Be Exhibited at Show

Featured in One Model of the Courier Line of Receivers.

Radio's newest speaker, the Kylectron will be demonstrated at the St. Louis radio exposition. The Kylectron is being introduced throughout the country by United Reproducers Corporation of Rochefield, O., maker of Courier receivers, which are distributed by the Shapleigh Hardware Co.

"Kylectron," the distributor says, "makes possible the most natural tone radio has ever known. It removes the 'barrel' or 'machine' sound from reception. It is the invention of Colin Kyle, formerly an obscure young California school teacher.

Remote Control For New Kolster And Brandes Sets

One Receiver Has Three Audio Stages and Double Push-Pull Audio.

Complete remote control of a radio receiver from any part of the home, use of the new screen-grid tube in radio amplification, push-pull audio amplification, dynamic speakers of a new design and selector tuning, are the outstanding innovations in the new Kolster and Brandes sets that will be displayed at the radio show by the Strauss Co., distributer.

The Brandes sets, forming a new line for 1929 manufactured by The Brandes Corporation, a subsidiary of Kolster, are in the low-priced field, but have features of high-priced lines.

Real Remote Control.

The Kolster Model K-45 is a distinct advance in radio for several reasons. One is remote control. There are no knobs or dials on the front of the set. In a corner of the top, the dial can be seen through a small glass window, and on the side are automatic tuning buttons in addition to the usual knob for manual tuning.

A cable is attached to the set, which can be led around behind the picture moulding or under the carpet, or even built into the wall, to any desired points of remote control. A small box about four inches by six inches, at the end of the cable, can rest on the arm of the listener's chair or on a bedside table. On the small box are six buttons, marked for six selected stations, a volume control, an on-and-off switch and two colored lights.

Can Tune From Armchair.

When the set is turned on at the remote control point, a red light glows on the small box. When a station button is pressed, a green light comes on to show that the set is not ready to play until a small motor automatically completes the tuning of the set, when the green light disappears to show the set is tuned to the desired station. The colored lights show the set is working perfectly, and, if no program is heard after the tuning is completed, it indicates that the station is not broadcasting.

While the automatic tuner is turning the dial, the reproducer is short-circuited automatically so that no intervening stations are heard.

This Kolster model is placed in the room just as any other set is installed, with the cable for remote control either stretched along the wall or built into the walls with taps in each room beside the favorite chair or at the bedside.

Unique Audio Amplifier.

The audio amplifier makes use of three stages, the first employing one 327-tube, the second two 327 tubes in push-pull arrangement, and the third two 350 tubes in push-pull. The second stage of two 327 tubes is necessary to supply sufficient power to the last stage for efficient operation and represents a development of the Kolster laboratories. Very low ratio transformers are used in the audio frequency system to avoid distortion and an exceptionally large speaker has been installed.

Two other Kolster models, both consoles, the K-43 and K-44, are equipped with the Kolster master dynamic speaker and 345 tubes in push-pull. Both have three screen grid tubes.

The Brandes sets have selector tuning similar to that in the Kolster sets, in addition to being four-condenser receivers with eight tubes, including five 327 tubes and two 345 tubes in push-pull.

Bosch Receivers Are Engineered for Screen Grid Tubes

Furniture Designed Exclusively for These Sets by Noted Manufacturers.

Bosch radio, which is engineered from the ground up to the revolutionary new screen grid type of vacuum tube, will be exhibited at the Radio Show by the James C. Gordon Co., Inc., distributer.

Three of these new tubes are used which gives the Bosch radio receiver more than four times the power capacity of sets not employing the screen grid type of tube. The new set also carries two of the new high powered audio tubes, arranged in push-pull power rectifier and a 227 power detector tube in a new power detector socket.

The chassis is built on an all-steel frame, structurally designed to insure rugged durability. Shielding is complete for the isolation of tubes not only from coils and condensers, but from each other. Lin-O-Lite tuning, exclusively Bosch, is another innovation.

The new screen grid Bosch is offered in a library or table model with sliding doors to cover the tuning control when the set is not in use as well as six beautiful consoles designed exclusively for Bosch radio by two of the leading furniture factories in America. They are in simple old English line, art Moderne and semi-modern as well as the more elaborate console models with intricate and beautiful carvings. Tendency in style is to the darker walnuts.

The American Bosch Magneto Corporation also announces a quality radio tube to be marketed under the B. ch name. The average circuit using the 201A tube has a gain per stage of about six. With the screen grid tube, gains of 20 to 25 per stage are possible. It can be readily seen that by putting in several stages of screen grid the unit gain is vastly multiplied. Beyond a certain point, no advantage arises from high amplification on account of reaching the noise level. However, the generous supply of signal delivered by the screen grid amplifiers permits the use of detection methods which are excellent from a quality reproduction standpoint.

Kent Largest Broadcaster.

A. Atwater Kent, with his series of Sunday night concerts, his Wednesday Morning National Home Hour and Thursday Evening Dance Program, all over a nation-wide network of stations, is the world's largest individual broadcaster.

Remote Control For Zenith Sets

Zenith engineers have developed a unique remote control device which is featured on the new "15th Anniversary" Model 55.

"The Zenith control," permits operation of the radio set from any room in the house, a convenience that adds further to radio enjoyment.

No longer is it necessary to leave any one room to tune in the radio or to put the set in or out of operation. A small walnut box with two control knobs is all there is to the device which is so simple a child can operate it. One knob controls the tuning, bringing in any number of stations at the press of a button, and the other knob acts as a volume control.

Now, remote control devices can be used in any room of the home. A thin cable connects the remote control with the Zenith automatic tuning device on the set. This cable, which can be had in any length, can be placed under a rug, where it will lie unnoticeable, or it can be run through the wall to any room and the remote control plugged in a wall socket like any other electrical appliance.

Forecasts End Of Interference by Man-Made Static

"Man-made static" will be eliminated to a large extent soon, according to Edwin Schiele of the Arcophone Corporation, distributers of C. A. Earl receivers.

"In the past radio manufacturers have endeavored to meet man-made electrical interference in radio reception by refinements in radio circuits. In the future they will not only continue building super-selective and super-sensitive radio set, but they will also co-operate with manufacturers of all forms of electrical devices so that these devices may be built in a fashion that will avoid their interfering with radio reception," Schiele says.

"Toward this end a conference is being called shortly by the C. A. Earl Corporation, at which will be present representatives of manufacturers of electric flasher signs, electric pianos, electric elevators, telephone apparatus, electric street cars and electric refrigerators. The C. A. Earl engineers will discuss with the electrical engineers the result of six months' investigation of the problem of static elimination. They will discuss in detail the part of the electrical apparatus that causes interference with radio reception and introduce devices they have discovered which will correct the trouble.

"It has been definitely proven that all electrical disturbances which enter the set through the power line or the aerial may be eliminated in the apparatus involved if the construction of the apparatus is perfect.

"The problem recognized by radio engineers is not to discover devices which will eliminate this electrical interference, but to devise the cheapest and most expedient form of using what they have developed.

"C. A. Earl engineers have uncovered the best way of handling these problems and will give them to the world shortly."

THE difference between "good" and "very good" isn't a matter that can be put exactly into words. Specifications do not make a radio any more than dimensions make a Parthenon.

The quality of the music which pours from your receiver is determined by the spirit which goes into the making of the instrument. All the world's knowledge of radio design is in a Stromberg-Carlson—of course. But there is more. There is the eagerness to take pains—to put here a little stronger piece of material, to shield there with a heavier plate of copper, to wind this coil just a bit more thoroughly, to make that wire connection a degree more solid.

And the result is the Stromberg-Carlson Receiver of today; decidedly better in giving you the true enjoyment that radio can afford because of that idea of "just a little better" which has gone into every single operation of its making.

City Finals In Singing Contest at Radio Show

Ten Young Men and as Many Girls Compete Tomorrow and Tuesday Nights — KMOX to Broadcast Competition.

One of the features of the St. Louis radio show will be the contest for the right to represent the St. Louis district on Oct. 5 in the Missouri State finals of the third Atwater Kent National Radio Audition. The competition will be tomorrow and Tuesday nights held in the show studio and also will be broadcast over KMOX. Ten young women and as many young men, who were selected from more than 60 entrants in an elimination contest Sept. 2, will be heard.

The ten boys will sing tomorrow nighth at 9 o'clock in the Coliseum. They are: Emerson Brown, Le Roy Busch, Milton Carr, J. E. Coolidge, Charles W. Landon, John D. Knes, Harold Leistritz, Robert L. Pribble, Jan Sadlo and F. Marion Weier.

The 10 girls to be heard on Tuesday night are: Jeanette Bowe, Margaretmary Durnin, Marjorie Gutgsell, Attilie Kerchloff, Lillian Krueger, Helen McFarland, Ruth Roll, Ethel Leaver, Birdie Murphy Koester and Wenona A. Rives.

Winners in the State Audition on Oct. 5 will compete in a district audition to be held in Chicago in November, and the national finals will be held in New York City in December.

Mrs. Frederic Nussbaum, Musical Arts Building, St. Louis, is Missouri State chairman and George Junkin, managing director of KMOX, is Missouri State manager. The district chairmen for Missouri are: St. Louis, Mrs. Stuart W. Manss; Kansas City, Mrs. Florence Woodard; Cape Girardeau, Mrs. Elby Hinchey; Moberly, Mrs. Warren L. Barr; Boonville, H. I. Zuzak; St. Joseph, Miss Bula May Bennett, and Joplin, Mrs. W. H. Mallory.

Progress being made in the several Missouri districts is more than gratifying, according to Mrs. Nussbaum, who reports that a number of promising entrants have entered the contest from districts in Missouri outside of St. Louis. The Kansas City district audition was held Sept. 9 and the Moberly district audition has been tentatively set for Sept. 26 at Columbia. Columbia is the logical location for this audition, Mrs. Nussbaum said, because of its accessibility from all points in the district and the possibility of attracting the university students during the latter part of September.

Originated as an experiment in 1927, continued in 1928 because of popular demand, the wisdom of the foundation's aim to discover the best young non-professional voices in the United States and give to the singers an opportunity for further training, recognition and reward, is held to have more than justified itself, and the audition has become a national institution.

All of the 10 finalists in each of the auditions previously held were unknown outside of their home communities before entering the contests. Today many of them are on the road to musical fame and fortune.

Each contestant in these auditions must be between the ages of

Thinks Radio Will Change Mind of Man

Sir Philip Gibbs Writes That It Presents New Opportunities to Humanity.

Radio is going to change the mind of man, declares Sir Philip Gibbs, the British writer, who thinks that radio will give man a mastery over life beyond all previous dreams.

"Here again the scientists have presented new opportunities to humanity which will surely alter their scheme of life, their habits of mind, their social customs and pleasures, almost as much as the alteration of material conditions which are now awaiting them," he writes in Cosmopolitan.

"Again we stand only on the threshold of a new age, and yet already we are conscious of newly revealed wonders which in the old days would have been thought miraculous and are indeed taking us into a region beyond mere matter, in the sanctuaries of eternal force."

Radio has already opened up new vistas of knowledge, according to Gibbs, and has given to people wider sympathies in life and put them into touch with other countries and minds.

"Perhaps those are high words to use about an invention which is called wireless or radio," he adds, "so common now after a few years of use, that most of us have a wireless aerial over our chimney-pots. One must not under-rate the effect even now on the human mind caused by this broadcasting habit which has taken hold of life. One may only hope that it will be less vulgarized by some of its transmitters.

"We are still at the beginning of this new knowledge. Marconi's beam system of wireless telephony is already past its experimental stage; it is now possible to focus the ordinary wireless rays upon a particular locality with such directness that when sent from England to Canada or Australia they may be received only over an area of something like 50 square miles. The world will become one universal telephone exchange with millions of conversations crossing each other through space in every direction."

Damrosch to Give 3-Year Radio Course in Music

A THREE-YEAR schedule of broadcast music appreciation concerts for schools and colleges, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, is announced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co.

The program is a continuation on a larger scale of the work Damrosch began last season on an experimental basis. From now on Damrosch will devote his entire time to radio, Aylesworth says. The series will be known as the NBC Music Appreciation Hour and it will be heard through more than 60 stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co., including its coast-to-coast facilities.

A survey made at the close of last season's musical appreciation concerts indicated that they were heard by more than 2,000,000 children.

"Damrosch's musical university of the air has unquestionably caught the imagination of the American people," Aylesworth said. "The amazing response on the part of children, teachers and parents to last year's concerts makes it the responsibility as well as the privilege of the National Graded Series of Concerts.

The first of the 1929-30 programs is scheduled for Friday morning, Oct. 11, at 10 o'clock. Following last year's general plan

"Old Ironsides" Program on KSD Tuesday

Admiral Andrews to Speak in Behalf of Movement to Restore Famous Frigate.

Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, United States Navy, will go to New York to broadcast an address on NBC network next Thursday at 8 p. m. in behalf of the campaign to preserve the United States Frigate "Constitution." He will speak in the course of the Clicquot Club Eskimos program over KSD and allied stations. The entire program will be dedicated to "Old Ironsides."

Admiral Andrews is the senior officer of his rank on the Navy's active list, and Commandant of the First Naval District. He has served as the chairman of the Save Old Ironsides Committee since Congress authorized the restoration of the Frigate in 1925. Congress has offered to appropriate funds to complete the restoration, but Admiral Andrews has declined this aid. He declares he considers it more fitting that the American people furnish the needed money by voluntary contributions. Although he is eligible for retirement Admiral Andrews has requested that he be allowed to remain on active duty until the successful conclusion of the campaign.

Police Plan Radio Dragnet In Philadelphia

Philadelphia is making arrangements to install radio equipment in more than 200 police automobiles.

Superintendent William B. Mills, after conferences with Director of Public Safety Schofield, has made application to the Federal Radio Commission for a permit to operate and maintain a police broadcasting station. It is proposed to operate this station on 500 watts power on a frequency above or below the regular commercial wave-length channel—between 20 and 550 meters.

The establishing of fixed posts commanded by machine guns at various exits to the city, the creation of a mobile motor cycle squad and the police patrol in red cars, more than a hundred of which have already been procured, are details of a system recently established to cope with robbers in Philadelphia.

Many Great Artists for Fall-Winter Kent Series

Concert and Operatic Stars Famous All Over World Will Be Soloists —Audition Winners Also Will Be Featured in Concerts.

A list of world-famous artists, equaling, at least, and probably surpassing the roster of celebrities heard in past years, is being engaged for the fall and winter Atwater Kent Hours that will be heard over KSD and allied MBC stations.

The coming Atwater Kent series will be the fifth in which the finest singers and musicians in this country have been presented to the radio audience in this broadcast series, which has come to be recognized as a national Sunday night institution.

Secrecy still shrouds the personnel of the artists for the new series, official announcement of which is expected to be made about Oct. 1. Prima donnas, however, will talk and artistic secrets have a way of getting bruited about. As a result, it is likely that a considerable number of the artists to participate in the Atwater Kent winter series could be named by any one of half a dozen program directors. A cross section of this opinion indicates that it is the new series the majority of the following artists will be heard:

Lucrezia Bori, Nina Morgana, Frances Alda, Maria Kurenko, Reinald Werrenrath, Beniamino Gigli, Efram Zimbalist, Titta Ruffo, Albert Spalding, Charles Hackett, Carmela Ponselle, Guiseppe de Luca, Jeanne Gordon, Tito Schipa and Richard Bonelli.

In addition, new artists who are winning laurels under the tutelage of the Atwater Ken Foundation may be expected to share in the Sunday evening broadcasts during the winter.

Agnes Davis of Denver and Wilbur Evans of Philadelphia, winners in the first National Radio Audition two years ago, will certainly have an opportunity to demonstrate to their radio sponsors—by whose votes they were largely selected—how their talents have been developed under the musical scholarships provided for them.

Likewise, Hazel Arth of Washington, D. C., and Donald Novis of Pasadena, Cal., winners of last years' audition, will have an opportunity to give a musical accounting of their progress.

One of the features of these concerts, of course, is to be the broadcasting of the finals in the third National Radio Audition, to be held in New York late in December.

Ten finalists — five young men and five young women—will make their final bid for audition honors over a radio hookup that will carry their voices into every section of the country. These 10 will share cash prizes of $25,000, in addition to receiving scholarships in leading musical conservatories.

Josef Pasternack, who has conducted at the Metropolitan and Ravinia Park Operas, as well as the Chicago and Boston Symphony Orchestras, is expected to continue to direct the Atwater Kent Orchestra in the Sunday night series.

Pasternack was himself a player

This Is Screen Grid Year, Says Norman S. Brown

Firm Distributing Atwater Kent Sets Has 600 Dealers.

The AC screen grid tube, as was expected, is playing the same part that the dynamic speaker did last year in sales, says Norman S. Brown, president of the Brown & Hall Supply Co., distributer of Atwater Kent receivers and speakers.

"With the advantage of screen grid tube sets, we expect to sell our full share of the 1,500,000 sets that have been set for the Atwater Kent production schedule this radio year," Brown said yesterday. "Thus far the Atwater Kent factory, the largest radio plant in the world, has kept well up to the schedule and sales have run equally well. As the colder weather, with increasingly good reception, sets in, we look for the sales of receivers and speakers to increase proportionately. There is every reason to expect this.

Better Rural Reception.

"This is a screen grid year. That's all. The screen grid set is the thing. It's the thing for the country dweller as well as the city man. For the past three years the listeners in rural communities, as a whole, have had to content themselves with the old type of battery-operated sets. Now they can have battery sets using DC screen grid tubes, and that means reception and tone quality far and away beyond what they have had to put up with.

"Business is much improved for us as compared with this time last year. The screen grid set is simply exerting a wonderful appeal to listeners. The business outlook is good generally, especially in the country. The nation has become radio-minded, as every one knows, and programs are becoming better all the time. Advance reports indicate a really wonderful series of broadcasts for the fall and winter.

"Radio has come to be as essential as the automobile. The wholesale and retail radio business is getting into stronger hands. More and more large firms are taking it up, and there has been a steady weeding out of the weaker dealers."

Firm Has 600 Dealers.

Incidentally the firm that Brown heads, and of which Fred Wiebe is vice president and general manager, has been in business for 16 years and today has some 600 dealers selling Atwater Kent receivers and speakers in the St. Louis trade territory.

Wiebe, by the way, on Tuesday was elected a director of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, to succeed Roy Haege. He has served as a director before, and has played an important role in the association, especially whenever the need of organizing ability has arisen.

Norman S. Brown, known as "Cap" to his friends, organized the Brown & Hall Supply Co., in 1913. Some time ago Wiebe wrote the story of the firm for the Electrical Record Magazine. "One cold day in that year (1913)," Wiebe wrote, " 'Cap' Brown returned from a trip during which he had sold everything from street cars to friction tape. He was tired of selling merchandise for others. If he could make a success of selling for others why could he not be just as successful selling for himself?

"Cap lost no time in making the idea practical. He organized the company without delay. He rented space in one or two rooms of an office building, sharing them with other business interests. Today the company's business is of such size that it requires, in addition to the main building at 1504 Pine street, another building to the west and warehouse space across the street. The company today occupies space which if it were added to the top of the main building would be equivalent to 11 floors. Today we travel 24 men, in both city and country territories, and throughout the year."

Writing on the firm's selling methods, Wiebe said: "Our salesmen now do not travel farther from headquarters than about 150 miles. Each salesman is given a small territory, so that he can reach any part of it within a few hours. This enables each to give his dealers much selling help. This is particularly true with our radio business.

Helps Dealers.

"We require each of our 24 salesmen to be capable of helping his dealers with constructive business ideas. In other words, our salesmen must be able to show the dealer how to move the goods from his shelves. Those goods are not sold when we sell them to the dealer; they are not sold until they are sold by him to the consumer.

"A professional window trimmer makes regular calls on our dealers. We have even gone so far as to encourage our salesmen to assist the dealers in their window trimming. We have engaged an instructor to teach our salesmen the window decorating art.

"Our advertising helps us in proportion as it helps our dealers by keeping our lines before the public notice. When we publish a large newspaper advertisement announcing the fact that we have just received a carload shipment of Atwater Kent radio receivers and speakers, we are helping our dealers to sell that carload when their share of it reaches them."

In addition to N. S. Brown, president, and Fred Wiebe, vice president, the firm of Brown & Hall Supply Co. includes Gilbert E. Semple, secretary-treasurer; Forest Brewington and Albert Brown.

Atwater Kent Service Goes Into the Home

Feels That Duty Is Not Ended Till Buyer Is Back for More.

The two most striking evidences of the complete reversal of business methods of a generation ago are illustrated in the entire abandonment of the policy of caveat emptor—"let the buyer beware"—and in the growth of the feeling of responsibility of the manufacturer for his product until the ultimate consumer has returned to the retailer for his second or third purchase of that product.

The manufacturer of today no longer feels that his duty has ended when he fills the orders of the wholesaler or jobber supplying the retailer with his stock. He does not feel his duty has ended even when the product of his factory reaches the shelves of the retailer. Nor when it moves from those shelves to the home for which it was designed. He thinks that his full duty is not ended until the consumer comes back for more.

In few places of business is modern merchandising raised to such a high pitch as in the organization of the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. sales system.

Many times has the retail dealer from a small town in the Midwest been astonished on reaching the desk of the salesmanager at the great Atwater Kent factory in Philadelphia, to find how well he is known to the salesmanager. He is greeted cordially by name and possibly asked immediately about some matter connected with his sale of Atwater Kent radio receivers that he had himself forgotten.

The Sunday Night Concerts.

The intimate knowledge the Atwater Kent executives possess of of the thousands of retailers who handle Atwater Kent products is the result of their merchandising system and their desire to follow the Atwater Kent receiving set into the home of the ultimate purchaser. The series of Atwater Kent Sunday night concerts should be evidence of this latter interest. But those concerts are not connected with the selling and distribution of radio receivers, save as they provide the finest music for the receivers to receive. They are simply an evidence of the keen interest of this most modern of manufacturers in the ultimate destination of his product.

Records show that at the present time the Atwater Kent factory is manufacturing radio receivers at the rate of a million a year. On Oct. 24, 1928, the 2,000,000th Atwater Kent receiver was turned out at the great Philadelphia plant. Feb. 15, 1929, or 114 days later, the 2,300,000th receiver was turned out. That is more radio receivers than any other one plant in the world has turned out in the same length of time.

The point of this merchandising story is that every Monday morning—or any other morning of the week—the Atwater Kent factory executives know within 5 per cent of exactly how many receiving sets are in the hands of the Atwater Kent distributers. It is not part of their policy to load up the distributer or retailer or force the sales of receivers by artificial methods. The sale of Atwater Kent receivers, as a policy, has been kept away from high peaks or rush periods and held to an increasingly higher level year by year and month by month. There are periods when sales are greater than other times, as in all business, but the upward movement of sales has come from the steadily increasing consumer interest—from the desire of the buying public to provide itself with more and more Atwater Kent products.

The "Line" Never Stops.

This does not mean that the advantages of owning Atwater Kent receiving sets has not been systematically and continually kept before the public by national and local advertising. There isn't a better advertised receiver on the market today than the Atwater Kent. But it does mean that the best advertisement of the Atwater Kent receiver must be the performance of the receiver itself in the hands of the satisfied customer, else such a tremendous demand would not have been possible. There are many good radio receiving sets manufactured, but there have been more Atwater Kent receiving sets sold and set up in the homes of customers than any other, and the merchandising organization of the Atwater Kent factory feels that its responsibility is not ended until the receiver reaches the home of the satisfied customer. It is prepared, therefore, to supply all the customers that may be in the 26,000,000 homes in the United States—whose demands are increasing in geometrical proportions.

This year more than 2,000,000 receivers will be manufactured—and delivered to customers—because the "line" that starts with the raw material in the factory reaches into the living rooms of the nation. When the 2,300,000th packed radio receiver was deposited on the loading platform of the factory on the afternoon of Feb. 15, it scarcely paused in its continuous motion until it reached a home and brought to that home the wealth of entertainment or enlightenment with which the broadcasting stations of the world are filling the air, and for which purpose it was painstakingly designed.

Many Great Artists For Fall-Winter Atwater-Kent Series

in an orchestra and there is not an orchestral instrument which he does not understand and few that he does not play.

For seven years he was solo viola player in the Metropolitan Opera House orchestra and played under the world's greatest conductors. In 1909, on the advice of Dr. Karl Muck, he went to Germany, where he won an engagement as conductor of opera in Bremen. On the advice of Toscanini, the Metropolitan Opera in New York offered him a contract as conductor. He directed all the Sunday night concerts his first season.

As a musician, Pasternack is a thorough master of harmony and counterpoint, and spends his spare time in composition. He is noted as a graceful and magnetic conductor and has perfect control over his orchestra. His memory is marvelous and he conducts most of the operas and symphonic music without the use of a score.

"I don't know of anything, aside from the production of radio receiving sets, that has given me so great returns in genuine pleasure as have our Sunday night concerts," said A. Atwater Kent, commenting on past broadcasts. At first, of course, these concerts were an experiment because a series had not been done before, and radio broadcasting was comparatively so new that some were skeptical of presenting grand opera and classic music over the air. I believed in it, and I felt that they ought to have the opportunity to hear it. It happened to be within my power to provide this class of entertainment. I felt I had taken so much out of radio that perhaps, as a duty, I ought to put a good deal back into it, and this seemed to me the best way to do it.

"But, because of the satisfaction that comes to me from having afforded opportunity to millions to hear in their own homes the best music that America affords, I regard it not only an opportunity but a privilege to have been able to put our weekly programs on the air."

Rejuvenating Tubes.

The filament of 201-A tube can be rejuvenated a great number of times, providing the filament is stripped and rejuvenated in rapid succession. If the tube is placed in service for an appreciable period between each rejuvenation process, this can be repeated only a few times before the tube filament is worn out.

ATWATER KENT SCREEN-GRID RADIO

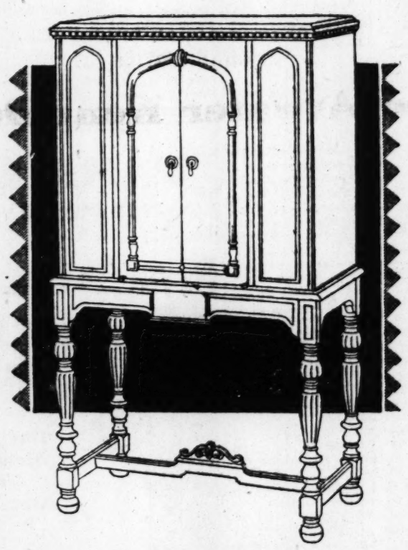
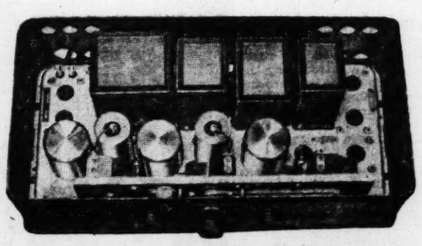
Opens the Gates to Better Reception

ALWAYS First with proved improvements, Atwater Kent again leads the way with Screen-Grid Radio. It means the clearest flow of pure tone quality that you ever heard from a radio set. It means new power to reach far-away stations—new sensitivity—new needle-point selectivity to separate the stations and pick out the one you want. New velvety depths and new heights of tonal perfection!

Through the magic of this Atwater Kent Screen-Grid Radio, the voice of radio in all its beauty comes to you clearer, finer, farther than ever before—with mighty volume, if you like, or with the intimacy of a softly played guitar.





BE SURE TO LOOK INSIDE OF AN

ATWATER KENT RADIO

AND SEE THE WORKMANSHIP

One out of every ten employes in the Atwater Kent plant is an inspector or tester. A typical receiving set is subjected to a total of 752 inspections and electrical tests before it is allowed to leave the factory.

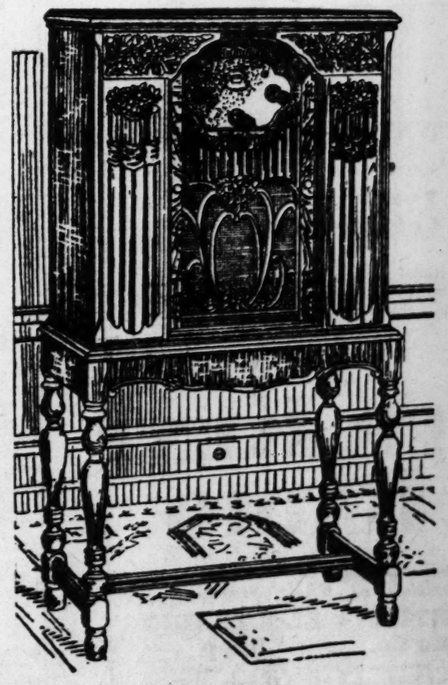
THE best of American cabinet makers—famous for sound design and sincere workmanship—are co-operating to meet the demand for Atwater Kent Screen-Grid Radio in fine cabinets. You have the choice among the creations of not just one or two cabinet specialists, but of many.

The price depends upon the cabinet you choose. Whatever you pay, you may be sure you are getting the biggest value for your dollar that you can find in the whole world of radio.

On the front of every Atwater Kent in a furniture cabinet you will find a name-plate showing that the radio was made by Atwater Kent. On the back you will find a name-plate showing that the cabinet was made by a famous furniture manufacturer expressly for Atwater-Kent Screen-Grid Radio.



New Atwater Kent Screen Grid Radio Highly Sensitive

Needlepoint Selectivity Makes Enormous Power Under Perfect Control.

Atwater Kent screen grid radio, one of the first on the market, was produced only after thousands of hours of experimentation and testing in the Atwater Kent laboratories. Its producer feels that in its highly sensitive character it represents the culmination of his 27 years of experience as a manufacturer of electrical equipment.

The new screen grid radio has "enormous power, needle point selectivity, longer reach and magic tone," according to the company's announcement, which adds: "It takes more out of the air and brings more into your home. It is vastly more powerful. Yet, all of this new energy is completely under control—as obedient to the fingers of a child as to those of a radio engineer, and as silent as a leopard's step.

"All unwarranted noises are filtered out. The only sound heard is the music and voices from the broadcasting studio. The electro-dynamic tone is so pure that the listener feels he might reach out and touch the artist. For stations fairly nearby very little power is utilized. The reserve is tapped by turning the 'local-distance' switch, just as a driver presses down the accelerator to make his car go faster. Stations way off across the map which perhaps have been only names come in clearly. Every station—every program is clear. They are not elbowed out by others, because the new screen grid radio has needle point selectivity. Furthermore, only a short indoor antenna is necessary if an outdoor wire is inconvenient."

The new receiver marks a departure from previous Atwater Kent models in another important particular. It has an illuminated station dial instead of the full visioned disk dial characteristic of former models. Announcement is also made concerning screen grid radios in cabinets. The new set is offered as a table model with separate speaker, but it also may be purchased in cabinets. To house the new set a large number of America's finest furniture makers have designed cabinets exclusively for it, ranging from simple to elaborate and available at all Atwater Kent dealers.

Jacquinot Jules In Luncheon Talk

Miss Jacquinot Jules, musical director of KMOX, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the Lindenwood College Alumni on Monday, Sept. 23, at 2:00 p. m., at the Forest Park Hotel. Her topic will be "Behind the Scenes in a Radio Station, as Viewed by the Musical Director." Miss Katheryne McIntire, also of the KMOX staff, who is known on the air as "Sunbonnet Sue," will play several violin solos.

Miss Jules is KMOX staff organist, has been studio accompanist, and has had charge of auditions, the Woman's Hour and Children's programs in which she is known on the air as "Auntie Jack."

Mrs. Frank T. Koenecke and Mrs. Robert Ryan will act as hostesses at the luncheon.

Damrosch to Direct 3-Year Music Course

there will be four series of concerts graded to suit the mental development of children from the third grade through high schools and colleges.

An innovation will be the inclusion of programs designed especially for the music clubs of the country.

For such adults as are eager to take up the study of symphonic music Damrosch has arranged a fourth series which also will be designed to appeal to high school and college groups.

Each series will include 12 programs, according to present plans. The programs for the two younger groups—that is series A for the third and fourth grades and series B for the fifth and sixth grades—will be presented on the same Friday. On alternate Fridays the two advanced series—series C for the seventh, eighth and ninth grades and series D for the high school and college students—will be given.

Teachers' Manual Prepared.

Entire new programs for the four series have been worked out by Damrosch during the past three months. The conductor has also prepared a teacher's manual of questions and answers, similar to the one used last year as a supplement to the experimental concerts.

"This course is intended to supplement the musical instruction already given in schols," Damrosch said. "It is a course in appreciation rather than in technique and should prove interesting and valuable to persons who cannot read a note of music as well as to those skilled in vocal and instrumental expression.

"Judging from the results of last season I am convinced that in three more years we can revolutionize the musical life of America. Before radio became a part of school life, at least 99 per cent of our boys and girls had never heard of the great musical works. Such music was only for the very few in the metropolitan centers whose parents took them to symphony concerts.

"If children hear a sufficient amount of fine music when they are young, they will not be content to live without it when they are older. This can be accomplished through radio broadcasting. There already are indications, after a single season, that these educational concerts stimulate children to take up a personal study of instrumental music as well as to organize school orchestras. I think it is now only a matter of time before music is thoroughly democratized—belonging not only to small groups in our great cities, but to the entire country.

Developing Musical Taste.

"The results of last season's concerts far exceeded my expectations From evidence I received in the form of letters, it seems safe to say that we made thousands of new, young disciples for symphonic music. They are not only able to identify by sound the various instruments used in a symphony orchestra but have also developed the beginning of a real interest in the works of the great masters.

"I feel I must express my sincere thanks to the school teachers and the principals of the country for their able co-operation. Their assistance contributed a great deal in offsetting the handicap of not being able to come in actual contact with the children.

"In many cases they themselves financed the purchase of radio receiving sets in order that their pupils might listen in. Many of them write that they supplemented our instructions over the air with pictures of the various instruments in the orchestra, of the orchestra itself and of the great composers whose works appeared on the program."

Training the Children.

In developing the four series Damrosch has followed the same idea used last year, introducing the younger children to the instruments in his "musical family," taking up in detail the various kinds of instruments and touching on the various forms used in symphonic music.

An appeal to childish imagination is made in such programs as "Fairy Tales From Many Lands," "Dances of Foreign Lands," "Fun in Music" and "Music Inspired by Greek Myths." Entire symphonies are presented for high school and college groups.

Schedule of Concerts.

The schedule of concerts follows:

For Grades 3 and 4 from 11 to 11:20 a. m.; for Grades 5 and 6, from 11:20 to noon on Oct. 11, Oct. 25, Nov. 8, Nov. 22, Dec. 13, Jan. 3, Jan. 17, Jan. 31, Feb. 14, Feb. 28, March 14 and March 28.

For Grades 7, 8 and 9, from 11 to 11:20 a. m., and for high schools and colleges from 11:20 a. m. to noon, on Oct. 18, Nov. 1, Nov. 15, Dec. 6, Dec. 20, Jan. 10, Jan. 24, Feb. 7, Feb. 21, March 7, March 21 and April 4.

Girls' Harmony Trio, 'Wanderers,' on WENR

Another new feature has been booked for the air vaudeville presented each night by WENR, Chicago. It is a girls' harmony trio, "The Wanderers," already well known to the radio audience. The members of the trio are "Lu" Mathews, "Gay" Mathews and Greta Woodson. Miss Woodson was first heard over KFJF, Oklahoma City, Ok., and Lu and Gay Mathews over WGES, Chicago. As a trio they have appeared before the microphones of the National Broadcasting Co. chain and most of the Chicago stations. They will be heard shortly after 11 o'clock on Monday nights.

A. Atwater Kent Predicts Set for Each One in Family

Then There Will Be No Argument About Program —Thinks Radio Will Take Lead in Field of Education.

By A. ATWATER KENT, President, Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co.

Radio's forward strides during the past year are only an index of the further progress just ahead. Each year the scope of radio's usefulness and utilization grows progressively greater. From its present position as a leading factor in the information and entertainment of the public—providing a diversity and variety of material not possible through any other medium—it seems certain to advance, in the immediate future, into leadership in the educational field as well.

Studies now in progress by a committee of the National Education Association indicate the importance well-informed educators place on the possibilities ahead of radio as an agency for education. Out of these studies there is foreseen a definite, constructive plan for the use of radio by the schools. Such a plan will be a milestone of historic importance, not only for radio but for education as well.

Radio now provides an all-year as well as an all-day service to the public. The modern all-electric set, in hot weather or cold, in deluge or drouth, brings in the programs with a clarity and volume undreamed of even two or three years ago.

As a result, radio programs projected for this summer surpass any similar broadcasts ever before attempted. The play-by-play broadcast of baseball games and leading sport events, the programs of music and drama, featuring the finest artists, the political discussions in which members of the Cabinet and Congress will participate, are but typical of the programs which radio today commands.

The variety and high quality of today's broadcasts have resulted not only in speeding the day when there will be a radio in every home but in creating a demand for additional sets, over which different members of the family may tune in on the programs in which they are especially interested.

Radio Salesmen To Go to School Starting Sept. 23

Electrical Sales Canvassers Also Can Take the Courses.

The St. Louis Radio Trades Association and the Electrical Board of Trade plan a concerted effort to dignify the profession of direct selling in the electrical appliance and radio field through an educational program.

A canvass of 10,000 homes in St. Louis is said to have proved that when housewives slam doors in the faces of salesmen, they do it because of past experience and not because they are not interested. The percentage of the 10,000 who are interested in 80 per cent of the services that house-to-house salesmen could render if given the opportunity is remarkably high. Wrong methods of approach and presentation, however, have made the salesmen suffer and the housewives suffer also through lack of understanding.

The St. Louis Radio Trades Association and the Electrical Board of Trade decided to employ the most outstanding national character in sales education work and personal training to make it possible for radio and electrical salesmen to receive training.

So a school is to be conducted by these organizations for six weeks, beginning Sept. 23.

At this school will be taught the fundamentals of salesmanship to any man or woman now engaged in direct sales work or to anyone interested in sales work but not now engaged in it.

Throughout this educational work, the idea will be to make salesmen who visit housewives daily for direct selling render a real service, for selling will take care of itself if service is rendered. Courtesy and gentlemanly conduct by salesmen will be stressed in the finishing course in this new school.

NOTED TENOR

Howard Melaney, "The Singing Fireman," who is to be one of the KMOX artists at the radio show.

Atwater Kent Poll Shows Listeners Like Male Quartet

Male quartets are more popular with radio audiences than any other form of entertainment. At least, that is indicated by a poll taken by Atwater Kent representatives, which explains the regular appearance in the Atwater Kent radio concerts of a male quartet.

The Atwater Kent Quartet broadcasting this summer includes Victor Edmunds, first tenor; George Rasely, second tenor; Erwyn Mutch, baritone; James Davies, basso. Rehearsing for more than two months, the quartet gave a concert before a critical New York audience at Town Hall, which was highly commended by the metropolitan press.

Erwyn Mutch is a Pennsylvanian who began his musical career as a boy soprano soloist in New York choirs, later becoming baritone soloist in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. After the war he studied with Jean de Reszke in France.

George Rasely is a native of St. Louis. At the age of twenty he was chosen for the tenor position in the Old South Church in Boston and later as soloist at the Park Avenue Baptist Church, New York, where he has sung for more than ten years. He is also well known as a concert artist.

Victor Edmunds is a Welshman who has sung throughout Wales, Scotland and England at festivals and in several London recitals. He has made several concert tours through Canada and the West, singing with the Los Angeles Society, Long Beach Oratorio Society, and others, in addition to operatic appearances.

James Davies was born in Newport-Mon, England, and is a graduate of the Royal College of Music in London. He was three times winner at the Welsh National Eisteddfod, the greatest honor a singer can achieve in Wales. He came to America with the Royal Welsh Singers, who toured this country for two years with great success.

For the Notebook.

Excessive hum from a receiver may come from either a poorly filtered supply to the dynamic speaker or a defective rectifier tube in the set.

The ordinary static transformer will not work on D. C. transformation. The dynamic transformer or dynamo machine can be used for this purpose.

A defective tube can sometimes be made to function correctly by gently tapping it in order to jar the elements so as to secure the loose contact or to open it altogether.

Jazz in Third Place on Air, Survey Shows

Classical Music First, Educational Feature Second, on CBS Chain Programs.

Critics of radio broadcasting who say that "you can't get anything but jazz on the air" are under considerable misapprehension, according to an analysis made by the Columbia Broadcasting System of its average week's programs, which shows that dance music occupies third place in amount of time consumed, behind both classical and educational programs.

The survey, which was made by the educational bureau of the Columbia System as part of the system's contribution to the work of the Federal Advisory Committee on Education by Radio, revealed that educational, instructional and informative broadcasting occupies 22.6 per cent of the total time Columbia broadcast each week. This comprises nearly 25½ hours of educational broadcasting each week, only a fraction of a per cent behind classical music, which accounts for 23.3 per cent of Columbia's time on the air. On the other hand, only slightly more than 22 hours a week are devoted to dance music, which is but 19.7 per cent of the whole.

Half of Time Cultural.

William S. Paley, president of the Columbia System, one of the members of the Advisory Committee appointed by Secretary of the Interior Lyman D. Wilbur, and Dr. H. Robinson Shipherd, chairman of the fact-finding subcommittee, expressed gratification at the amount of time spent on educational work. Mr. Paley said:

"I knew that we were devoting considerable time to educational broadcasting, but was not aware that it made up so large a percentage of our total time. Considering the fact that classical music not only is entertaining, but is actually instructive in the appreciation of good music, plus the 5 per cent of out time occupied by the presentation of dramatic programs, Columbia is devoting more than half of its time to programs that exercise a distinct cultural effect upon the radio-listening public. This is precisely in line with our policy."

More than 50 programs are included in the 25 hours a week of educational broadcasting, covering a wide range of subjects. Included in these are music appreciation, home economics, dietetics, agriculture, weather forecasts for farmers, balanced menus, book reviews, aviation lessons, piano technique, fashion design, literature, history, philosophy, psychology, political science, economics, investments, interior decoration, travel, and foreign languages.

Much Time to Fine Music.

Nearly half the time consumed by classical music is in presentations by symphony orchestras of 22 to 45 pieces. The rest is taken up in string orchestra concerts, salon groups, trios, vocalists and instrumental solos or duets. Among the most notable of such programs are those of the United Symphony Orchestra, United Grand Opera Company, Buffalo Civic Symphony Orchestra, Voice of Columbia, Mathilde Harding and Serge Kotlarsky, the U. S. Army, Navy and Marine bands.

Of the remaining time, nearly 14 hours are devoted to music of the better type, including folk songs, modern foreign songs, light opera, spirituals and semi-popular music. This type of program includes such presentations as "Story in a Song," "Daguerreotypes," "Arabesque," "Gypsy Camp," "In a Russian Village," "Around the Samovar," and "Soul of the Southland."

Eleven hours each week are devoted to drama. Of these, six are occupied by serious plays and five hours by comedies. The remaining 14 hours of the average week of 112 hours of broadcasting is occupied by miscellaneous odds and ends.

Officers of Columbia said that advertisers were turning more and more to good music and drama for their commercial programs. Of six new commercial hours the programs of which have been decided upon, two are to be dramatic, one of popular music, two of classical music, and the other a combination of both types with a preponderance of the classical.

Following is an analysis of one week's programs over the Columbia Broadcasting System:

Type of Program.	Hours a Week.

$50,000,000 in Year For Broadcasting

Five or six years ago most persons termed radio a passing fad, something to interest the boy but having no real value.

At that time radio sales amounted to $60,000,000 a year. In 1928, $650,000,000 worth of radios were bought by the public. It is estimated that there are more than 10,000,000 sets in use in the United States.

In many schools radio programs form part of the regular course of study. Many offices and factories find that the radio makes the worker more contended and energetic, doing away with fatigue. Wherever time drags—radio steps in and put a new interest in life.

Who pays for the broadcasting? Advertisers for the most part, of course, just as advertisers make it possible to buy a modern newspaper for 2 or 3 cents or a magazine for 5 to 25 cents. This year there will be spent about $50,000,000 for radio broadcasting.

Ivantzoff to Sing 3 Arias Over Air

An inaugural program celebrating the opening of the new studios of WKBW, WGR, WMAK and WKEN at Buffalo, N. Y., jointly operated by the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation, will be heard over the Columbia chain at 8:30 Monday night, Sept. 23.

Featured on the program will be a 30-piece symphony orchestra under the direction of Herbert Straub, musical director of the Buffalo Broadcasting Corporation, and Ivan Ivantzoff, baritone, well known to radio audiences throughout the country.

Ivantzoff will sing the "Toreador Song" from "Carmen," Massenet's "Vision Fugitif," "Eri Tu," from Verdi's "Bal Masque," "Song of the Flea," by Moussorgsky, and Gretchaninoff's "Steppe."

Eveready Players to Give "Treasure Island"

They Will Open Fall Program Tuesday Evening In Drama Based on Stevenson's Immortal Story of Buccaneers of Spanish Main.

One foggy evening there appeared at an English seacoast inn on old seaman who asked for lodgings. His piratical appearance, accentuated by a livid saber cut, was disquieting to the inkeeper. But the stranger set fear at rest by throwing on the table a handful of gold and added the assurance that he wanted only a quiet place to live.

All went uneventfully until one night a blind beggar appeared at the inn and asked to be guided to the old sea dog. Feeling for the latter's hand, he slipped into it a circular piece of black paper. Then the beggar stepped out into the night.

The events that followed this mysterious and sinister pantomime were breath-taking, fantastic and glamorous. They form the basis of "Treasure Island," Robert Louis Stevenson's great romance of the Spanish Main.

The opening fall program of the Eveready Hour will be to reproduce on the air a dramatic version of Stevenson's immortal tale of the buccaneers. A company of actors has been engaged to present the drama and "Treasure Island" will go on the air next Tuesday evening, Sept. 17 at 7 o'clock over KSD and allied stations.

In Long John Silver, Stevenson epitomized the ferocity and craftiness that made such names as those of Kidd, Morgan and Lafitte terrors of the seas. Even Long John's parrot was a sinister creature.

In bright contrast to Silver and his crew of murderers is the character of Jim Hawkins. The little cabin boy whose cleverness and bravery fitfully upset the whole bloodthirsty plan of the pirates is the hero of Treasure Island. In the Eveready Hour broadcast of Stevenson's epic Jim Hawkins will be played by Wheeler Dryden. Rosaline Greene, radio's first leading lady, the only woman in the cast, will play the part of Jim's mother. Louis Hector, star of many Broadway successes, will play Silver.

From the smoky tap room of the Admiral Benbow inn to the steaming marshes of Treasure Island, the Eveready broadcast will reproduce the action of the great Stevenson romance.

The Eveready Hour orchestra under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, will render a program of music suitable to the performance.

Louis Hector as "Long John Silver" in the "Treasure Island" program in the Eveready Hour on KSD next Tuesday night.

400,000 Children Join Safety Club

Radio's most tireless worker in the interest of child safety, Walter (Uncle Bob) Wilson, originator of the children's "Curb Is the Limit" Club, which now has more than 400,000 members, and broadcaster of children's programs over KYW, Chicago, for the last seven years, will go to Cleveland next Wednesday to start a new chapter of his safety club at Station WTAM. He will be heard Wednesdays and Thursdays after that date.

Esraj Is Newest Instrument on Air

A venerable ancestor of the modern violin, developed by the musicians of India centuries ago, matched its haunting quarter tones with the more readily understood harmony of modern instruments in a recent NBC program.

This particular esraj, as the instrument is called, received added homage from the crowd of curious listeners in the studio because it was once the property of Rabindranath Tagore, Indian poet and nationalist. Tagore's son brought the esraj to this country, where he gave it to Sarat Lahiri, the present owner.

The esraj has two octaves of sympathetic strings, with 22 notes to the scale. Because of its quarter tones, which require infinite adroitness and years of practice, the esraj does not always sound completely melodious to untrained western ears.

Changes in Allocation Considered

Congress Likely to Force Commission to Aid Listeners in Large Areas Where There Is Little or No Reception.

By Thomas Stevenson.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The Federal Radio Commission may be forced by Congress to make important changes in the broadcasting structure.

Among other things, several stations in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other large cities may be scrapped.

At present large sections of the country are absolutely without radio reception, while others are without adequate reception during eight months of the year.

In some sections of the country, it would be difficult to give a radio set away during the summer. This applies to large parts of Montana, Iowa, Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Colorado, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

In its allocation, the Radio Commission figured that cleared channel stations would render service to those sections. Theoretically, they should, but in actual practice they fail to do so. Under the present development the only way those sections will get service is through local stations.

The Radio Commission has received sufficient applications to improve service, but it has not had the wave lengths to give to those who applied.

In a large measure, the law is responsible. The law says that each state shall receive a certain portion of radio facilities, depending on the population of the state.

Therefore, New York City is entitled to almost as many stations as the states of Idaho, Nebraska, Wyoming, Wisconsin, South Dakota, North Dakota, New Mexico, Montana, Minnesota and Colorado.

Gulbransen Set Made in Plant Nearly Automatic

Production Schedule Calls for 1000 Receivers a Day by Oct. 1.

The Gulbransen Co. of Chicago, is operating on a production schedule calling for 1000 radio sets a day by Oct. 1.

Two models of screen grid sets, one a highboy cabinet, the other a lowboy or console cabinet, both of which have the radio-phonograph switch feature, are now being produced. These will be shown by the W. E. Fuetterer Supplies Co., distributer, at the St. Louis Radio Show.

Each embodies condensers and filters synchronized to an extent that in "gain testing" only four-millionths of a volt tolerance are permitted; 10-inch dynamic speakers operated through extra high quality audio systems using full one-inch cube laminated cores; a local and long-distance switch; and a phonographic- radio switch operated by the same knob that controls the AC switch double primary circuit maintains unusual efficiency on both high and low wave stations.

Production Automatic.

The sets are licensed under RCA Hazeltine and Miessner patents. The Gulbransen factory has a production system as near automatic as any observed up to the present time. Raw materials leave the stockroom in trays that are delivered by an overhead belt to the beginning of the production line.

The first operation includes the placing of the trays on dollies together with a blank chassis. The belt moves a single station and automatically stops while the operators complete that part of the assembly to which they have been assigned. As each operator completes his or her part of the assembly a button is pushed which registers on the tally board at the head of the line.

Provision for Checking.

When the last operation has been completed the belt automatically moves another station and the cycle is repeated. It has required a little time to work out the individual operations so that no part shall hold up the entire line, and even if it were necessary to so distribute the work that one operator would eliminate a single screw which would be put in by the succeeding operator such would be found highly satisfactory in the successful operation of the automatic line.

Combined with the automatic system is a tallying machine consisting of a mechanically operated typewriter which registers the operations as they are completed. The register that is made permits the engineering department to check from time to time to determine whether or not the operations should be changed at any particular station to expedite production.

Uses of Vacuum Tube.

A vacuum tube is supposed to work like a check valve; that is, it should allow the radio signals to pass through fully in one direction, but should completely block any attempt of the signals to flow through the tube backward. If it permitted this backward flow, the circuit in which the tube is used would oscillate, setting up squeals and howls in the loud speaker and rendering the receiver useless.

Balanced Unit Construction in Philco Receivers

Both Screen Grid and Neutrodyne-Plus Chassis Are Manufactured.

As the tone of a fine orchestra can only be clear if all its instruments are perfectly balanced, so clearness of tone of a radio receiver is in proportion to the balance of its units. With this principle in mind radio engineers of the Philco factory, manufacturers of Philco radio receivers, have perfected a balanced unit that not only produces a clear, rich tone but has fullness as well, says Harry Brockman, of the Battery Exchange, distributer, which will display the new Philco sets at the radio show.

"To obtain ideal reception," Brockman said, "the antenna and ground units of receiver must be in perfect balance. Without this perfect reception is not possible. In the Philco receiver each unit is in perfect balance and is responsible for the wonderful tones obtained."

Choice of Classes.

Philco receivers, marketed in a lowboy, highboy and highboy de luxe cabinets as well as a table model, are provided either with the neutrodyne-plus circuit or the screen-grid receivers.

Two new chassis have been added to the line. One is a 6-tube AC screen grid set, with push-pull audio. The other is an AC 8-tube neutrodyne-plus with push-pull audio.

These new balanced-unit models have been through every imaginable test to secure undistorted tone and extreme distance reception. A balanced-unit set means that every coil, transformer, choke and in fact every unit entering into the set is carefully balanced, one against the other, through the most delicate and complicated testing apparatus so, that when the set is assembled each unit will work at the same peak of efficiency, providing a free and unobstructed path through the set from the antenna to the ear. In the Philco balanced-unit set, even the speaker is carefully matched and balanced with the rest of the units in the set.

Varied Models.

The lowboy, highboy, highboy de luxe, furniture housing the Philco sets, are fine examples of craftsmanship and artistry.

Either the screen grid of neutrodyne-plus chassis models are built into these cabinets. There is also a table model and mantel type loud-speaker, in cabinets of metal with walnut finish and silver trim.

Chassis 85 is an AC, 6-tube (including rectifier), screen grid receiver with tuned antenna stage; two tuned stages of radio frequency using UY-224 screen grid tubes; biased power detector using heater type UY-227, and one push-pull audio stage using two new UX-245 tubes and one UX-280 full wave rectifier.

Chassis 87 is an AC 8-tube, including rectifier, neutrodyne-plus receiver with tune antenna stage, three stages of tuned radio frequency using UX-226 tubes; detector using UY-227 tube, two audio stages using two UX-245 power tubes in the second stage, this being a push-pull stage. A built-in aerial is used.

Shielded Chassis Used.

Both chassis are extensively and completely shielded. AC hum has been reduced to a minimum.

Selectivity has been secured by means of a pre-selector antenna tuning circuit, together with scientifically designed balanced units. The balanced units of the Philco also provide extreme sensitivity and give owners the opportunity to get really distant stations.

All furniture models have the new, matched Philco electro-dynamic speaker. The cone is of seamless metalized fabric and the size has been increased to 10 inches, resulting in perfect reproduction. The Philco acoustic equalizers, a new improvement used in all furniture models, prevents undesirable cabinet resonance.

The lowboy is a very attractive open-faced cabinet with Oriental walnut raised side panels and setback birdseye maple center panel.

Electric Spiders Spin Filament

Electrical spiders quite as ingenious as real spiders, are now employed by the radio industry in spinning resistance filament. These machines turn out a hair-like glass thread which is subsequently coated to form metallized filament. The finished product is known as metallized resistor or metallized powerohm.

To supply the steadily increasing demand for metallized resistors about 2,500,000 feet, or about 470 miles, of metallized filament will be produced during 1929. The supply is made by a battery of electric spiders in one of the plants of the International Resistance Co. of Philadelphia, Pa. Each electrical spider takes a special glass rod about three-ighths inch diameter, presses one end against an electrically-heated die, and produces a hair-like filament which is then pulled along and wound on a reel. Because of its fineness and flexibility the glass thread does not break even when considerably bent.

Subsequently, the glass filament is passed through an alcohol bath, then rubbed and polished by cloth pads and finally receives its metallic coating. The resistance per unit length is continuously checked during the coating process. Finally, the filament is broken into 12-inch lengths and packed in large glass tubes.

4 AMAZING TESTS

Anybody Can Understand!

1. The Ice-Pick Test . . . .
2. The Vanishing-Antenna Test
3. The Hairpin Test . . . . .
4. The Coin Test . . . . . .

One Radio Stands Out From All Others—because it will do things other radios simply cannot equal.

That one radio is SILVER RADIO—guaranteed, for instance, to get more programs without an aerial then nine out of ten other radios can get with their big interference-collecting outdoor aerials!

That's a big claim—like that of the man who offered to "whip all comers with one arm tied behind his back." But SILVER RADIO is a mighty "big" radio. In side-by-side tests with other radios, SILVER RADIOS have produced startling results every time.

Take the four tests above. They can easily be applied to any radio (your Silver Radio dealer will make them for you), or give you a folder that tells how you can apply them to any radio anywhere. They'll show you the simply amazing difference between SILVER RADIO and all other radios. Then make any other test—the stiffer the better—that you can think of . . . For tone, in order that you may realize the simply gorgeous tonal possibilities of SILVER RADIO . . . For sharp tuning, to see how it brings in only one program at a time . . .

Examine the marvelous beauty of SILVER RADIO cabinets. When you're all through testing, you'll realize just why California owners of SILVER RADIOS can get Japan, Australia, New Zealand in their own homes in the wee morning hours . . . just why world famous opera stars select SILVER RADIOS for their own homes because of its beauty of tone.

And, after all, why not have the best in your own home, too . . . tell your SILVER RADIO dealer that you've come to see his four amazing tests."

Startling New Features of SILVER RADIO

SILVER RADIO, product of the manufacturer who introduced screen-grid radio to America in 1927, is now, naturally, the most widely-imitated of all radios. But only SILVER RADIO has "everything new"—FOUR screen-grid tubes, screen-grid power detection, band-selector tuning, matched-impedance electro-dynamic speaker, Overtone Switch to minimize static, complete shielding, automatic voltage regulation where desired, and—ELIMINATION OF ALL AERIAL CONNECTION.

Day-Fan Sets Give Extra Long Distance Range

Receiver Designed and Built by a Group of Radio Engineers.

The simple tuning control of the Day-Fan receiver is set in ball bearings so they can never wobble, slacken, or jerk in tuning. Nowadays with so many broadcasting stations on the air at once this is important. This is but one of numerous features to be seen in the set at the radio show, where it will be exhibited by the Fuchs Appliance Co., distributer.

There are nine tubes in all in the Day-Fan radio.

An illuminated dial is graduated in kilocycles as well as index numbers. It also has a phonograph connection.

Four features of the receivers pointed out by factory engineers, are selectivity sufficient to meet the demands of the most exacting; ample volume, making possible long distance reception with ease; true tonal reproduction and quietness of operation. Dynamic speakers are standard.

An additional stage of radio frequency gives great distance range and sharp selectivity. There are four stages of radio frequency, detector, first audio, and push-pull audio using the new power tubes.

The Day-Fan laboratory works on a slightly different principle than a great many laboratories. Each member of the laboratory force takes a special problem in hand, works it out individually, and completely covers that problem. This means that the Day-Fan set is built by a group of radio engineers, rather than by any one particular engineer.

The cabinet design is conservatively beautiful, with a touch of the modernistic so that it will fit in with the home setting of today.

One model is a large walnut console cabinet with a burl panel, another console is small and compact, finished in American walnut. A third console model also is of American walnut and has sliding panels which conceal the set.

Earl Receivers Tested in Every Part of Country

Sets Thoroughly Tried Out on Pacific Coast Under Very Bad Conditions.

Earl receivers, which are to be shown by the Artophone Corporation, distributer, at the radio show, were tested for months in virtually every region of this country where poor reception had been reported. Especially was this true as to the Pacific Coast, where listeners have reception troubles far worse than most set owners in the Midwest and East have to contend with. Not only must West Coast listeners fight to tune in stations against the multitude of broadcasters in their own sections, but they also have difficulty in picking up and amplifying in their receivers the signals from stations east of the Rockies that seem to be deflected or absorbed as they pass over the high mountains. The Earl sets were not put into production until the engineers reported that the final models could cope with any reception conditions encountered.

Description of Sets.

The Earl models use eight-tube and nine-tube chassis designed for super selectivity without sacrificing tonal realism. There are four principal types—Models 22, 31, 32 and 41.

Three of the models have four tuned circuits ahead of the power detector, as well as push pull amplification with super power tubes. The Model 41 has five tuned circuits, and was built to reach out for the utmost in distance reception. All models have built-in dynamic speakers.

The adage that it is the product that makes the firm not the company that makes the product has again been proven in the radio field, said Edwin Schiele, of Artophone Corporation.

For seven years, the old Chas. Freshman Co., Inc., sold Freshman radio. Certain models they called Equaphase and Masterpieces, but not one of the yearly models approached the success of the latest model which was christened in honor of the new president of the company, C. A. Earl.

Large Business Done.

"So great was the trade and public acceptance of C. A. Earl Radio that the radio industry began referring to the Chas. Freshman Co., Inc., as the Earl Radio Corporation. So the stockholders and directors of the Freshman group, recognizing this, voted, Aug. 19 to change the name to Earl Radio Corporation," said Schiele.

"Again a firm has been re-made by a fine product. Whereas the greatest business by the Chas. Freshman Co. Inc., in a year was $10,000,000, more than a third of this amount of business has been done during the three worst months in the radio industry, May, June and July, 1929. There is every indication that August, September and October will more than triple this business and that the Earl Radio Corporation will set a new all time record during the short period it has been in business."

How to Figure Cost Of AC Set Operation

"It is easy to check the current consumed by an all-electric set and compare it with the current consumption of the average electric light lamps by noting how fast the metal disk revolves on the watt-hour meter," says George Lewis, vice president of the Arcturus Radio Tube Co. "For instance, with all current in the house turned off, the disk should not move at all.

"If, with a 75-watt lamp turned on, the disk revolves five times in one minute and with only the radio set turned on, it revolves fifteen times in one minute, it is obvious that the radio consumes three times as much power as the 75-watt lamp, or 225 watts," said Mr. Lewis. "Multiply this by the number of hours a month the set is in operation, divide by 1,000 and multiply by the cost of electricity to you per killowatt hour (refer to your bill) and you will know what it costs for current to operate the radio set for one month. This will invariably be less than the cost of charging batteries and buying new 'B' batteries."

Grounding the Antenna.

While fire underwriters suggest that an antenna grounding switch is desirable, they do not require it. The switch merely serves to connect the aerial wire solidly to the ground. It is as well to disconnect the aerial wire at the lightning arrester and connect it to the ground terminal of the arrester. The same thing is accomplished by short circuiting the lightning arrester. This prevents sparking during an electric storm. Sparking may ignite some inflammable material.

Amrad 'Bel Canto' Line Designed for Natural Reception

Exceptional Distance Getting Ability Credited to These Receiving Sets.

"Amrad has had the most instantaneous dealer acceptance ever accorded a new radio line in the middle west," according to the Amrad factory.

"Amrad has very keenly felt its responsibility in producing a fine radio line. The Bel Canto series represents the finest in mechanical and electrical performance. Each Amrad model represents a fine, exquisitely beautiful piece of furniture, constructed of rare and imported woods, especially matched and finished.

"The Amrad chassis is built for ultra sensitivity and selectivity and designed to use the new screen-grid tubes. The new UX-245 power tubes are used in push-pull in the last stage, and the reproduction of speech and music is natural beyond belief.

"Volume is controlled perfectly from a whisper to orchestra volume without the slightest sign of distortion.

"All these important and desirable features have created a great dealer acceptance."

Explanations of Law Will Be Broadcast

Having completed its planned series of law appreciation appeals, the Radio Law Appreciation Committee will begin early in October a series of common sense explanations of law.

These programs will be created by associations of noted lawyers and will be broadcast once a week from a minimum of 100 radio stations.

While C. A. Earl remains executive chairman of the committee, the subcommittee in charge of the presentation of the educational program is headed by Harry Beach, another radio executive.

PERFORMANCE WINS

The public is the final and best judge of radio value. Engineers and designers may make sets that perform perfectly in the laboratory. But only you, and the millions of other radio listeners, are competent to say: "This or that radio is best in my home."

No amount of advertising, no amount of "past reputation," could in a single season have made a newcomer like the C. A. Earl the radio sensation of 1929.

Nothing could have made the C. A. Earl a best seller but PERFORMANCE. Performance in the home, under every difficult local condition—such as no other radio offered.

Before you make your selection, hear the C. A. Earl. Write for your local dealer's name and catalog of new models ($99.50 to $225.00).

Every Model of Radiola Receivers Will Be at Show

Screen Grid and Superheterodyne Sets Featured—Combinations Coming.

All of the Radiola receivers will be seen at the radio show this week, including both screen grid and superheterodyne circuits.

Among them will be Models 44 and 46, the one a table type, the other a console. The circuit for these two sets uses three AC screen grid tubes, two in the R. F. stages and one as a power detector. There is only one audio stage, which has a 45 type power tube. This chassis is sensitive and selectie bu is distinguished by remarkable tone quality and quiet operation.

The Model 33, which is in a modernistic metal cabinet, has a circuit using three tuned R. F. stages, detector and two stages of audio.

The Model 66 is a powerful superheterodyne of great power and selectivity. Two new models that are coming are radio-phonograph combinations, one using the screen grid chassis the other having the 66 superheterodyne circuit.

The Superheterodyne.

When a Radiola employing the super-heterodyne circuit is tuned in on a concert the tone signal is picked up by what is known as the first stage of tune-radio frequency. When passing through that stage the tone is increased six times in volume. It then passes through a second stage of tuned radio frequency and is asmplified six times again. Thus at the end of the second stage it is 36 times greater in volume than when first received.

The tone signal is then changed to the predetermined wave length mentioned above, and passes through what is known as the first intermediate stage of amplification where its volume is increased 20 times. At the end of this stage the signal is 720 times its original strength. It then passes through a second intermediate stage of amplification where its volume is amplified 20 times again. The tone signal after passing through the two stages of radio frequency and the two stages of intermediate frequency amplification—otherwise known as the RCA super-heterodyne circuit—is 14,400 times stronger than it was when originally received.

Great Amplification.

The signal after leaving the second stage of intermediate frequency amplification is passed on to a powerful detector, then through the audio power amplifier stage and then to the speaker. By the time the tone is emitted by the speaker it is thousands and thousands of times greater in volume than when originally picked from the air.

When the original carrier wave on which the tone signal arrives passes from the second stage of radio frequency amplification to the first stage of intermediate frequency much of the interference caused by tone signals being broadcast on waves of almost the same length, is lost—only the one wave is converted and amplified—the others drop by the wayside.

The selectivity of this circuit is great but it has not been carried to a point where tone quality is sacrificed for selectivity. This circuit picks up the tone—amplifies it, then when converting its carrier wave, drops those sounds which distort and destroy—and amplifies the original tone with all of the minute overtones necessary to reproduce the full color and sparkle of good music and speech.

Last but no least is the ease with which this circuit is operated; a single control for finding the signals and aother for the volume.

Another Screen Grid Set Added To Crosley Line

Monotrad Is the Result of Months of Work by Engineers.

The full line of Crosley radio receiving sets, ranging from the screen grid battery set to the eight-tube 42-S model, will be displayed at the St. Louis Radio Shop by the Geller, Ward & Hasner Co., distributer.

The line includes receivers for storage battery, A. C. or 110 volt D. C. operation, some models using the three-element A. C. tubes, 226 and 227, and others the new screen grid tubes and the new power output tubes.

The Crosley 21 was designed for homes where electric service is not available.

The 22, a two-tone walnut veneer wooden console, has the same receiver unit used in the 21.

The Crosley 31 may be converted into a console by the addition of legs. Or, with speaker attached underneath, the set becomes an end table and radio combined. The set without legs may be used in a cabinet, if desired.

The new Unitrad screen grid receiving unit, with three screen grid tubes in R. F. stages, each with its coil completely housed in a double compartment shield with removable lid, has the new Crosley range control. The Unitrad is used in Models 41-S and 42-S. It may be installed in any type of cabinet.

The Crosley 42-S heads the list. The console of matched woods was designed especially for the enthusiast who demands the most in radio. A seven-tube screen grid receiving unit called the Monotrad has just been added to the Crosley line. It is the result of months of planning and experiments by Crosley engineers.

The Monotrad has two screen grid tubes for radio frequency stages, one heater-type tube as power detector, one 227 heater type first audio tube, resistance coupled, two 245 power output tubes connected push-pull, one 280 rectifier tube, a completely shielded gang condenser with an illuminated dial, a carbon type volume control regulating amplification, and a Mershon condenser.

J. Clarke Coit, St. Louisan, Heads Big Radio Concern

J. Clarke Coit, after a five-year term as president of the Simmons Hardware Co. of St. Louis, has resigned to take up new duties as president of the United States Radio and Television Corporation of Chicago.

"After thorough study of the radio industry, I am convinced that radio offers an opportunity comparable only to the automobile during its development stage," Coit said. "Modern merchandising methods are demanding more and more diversification for the retail dealer and in this connection the addition of the radio line today offers the best possibilities. Of all radio manufacturers none is better equipped than the United States Radio and Television Corporation, both from a manufacturing and distribution standpoint, to make the most of this opportunity."

Coit's advent occurs at a time when the factories of the United States Radio and Television Corporation are operating toward peak output. The new Apex receiver is meeting with remarkable popularity.

New Steinite Sets Have Super Screen Grid Tube Chassis

Give Unusual Reception With Extremely Short Aerials —Very Sensitive.

The new Steinite super screen grid chassis, which will be displayed at the show by the Campbell Iron Co., distributer, embodies a number of new mechanical and electrical refinements. The chassis and power pack are made in a single unit so that the set requires no hook-up when received by the dealer. The speaker plugs into the chassis by a special jack. Each individually tuned stage and its tube are completely shielded.

The radio frequency portion of the chassis is so designed that high amplification is obtained without tendency toward oscillation. This amplifier uses three of the screen grid tubes (No. 224) in the radio frequency amplifier and a single No. 227 power detector. Due to the high gain of the linear power detection with automatic grid beds, it is possible to operate the power stage consisting of two No. 245 tubes in push-pull stage without any intermediate stages of audio frequency amplification. This eliminates distortion and hum originating in the first stage of audio.

The power section of the chassis has been vastly improved. Instead of four line voltage taps, a single Hi-Lo switch takes care of line voltage variations. The receiver will operate with all tubes at their proper voltage with line voltages varying from 95 to 130 volts. The power transformer has been redesigned using heavier construction so that there is less heat to be dissipated, and will run cool even under continuous operation.

The transformer is impregnated to prevent moisture trouble, but is not sealed in wax. The filter condensers are vacuum impregnated with oil. This oil penetrates

New Steinite Sets Have Super Screen Grid Tube Chassis

Give Unusual Reception With Extremely Short Aerials —Very Sensitive.

The new Steinite super screen grid chassis, which will be displayed at the show by the Campbell Iron Co., distributer, embodies a number of new mechanical and electrical refinements. The chassis and power pack are made in a single unit so that the set requires no hook-up when received by the dealer. The speaker plugs into the chassis by a special jack. Each individually tuned stage and its tube are completely shielded.

The radio frequency portion of the chassis is so designed that high amplification is obtained without tendency toward oscillation. This amplifier uses three of the screen grid tubes (No. 224) in the radio frequency amplifier and a single No. 227 power detector. Due to the high gain of the linear power detection with automatic grid beds, it is possible to operate the power stage consisting of two No. 245 tubes in push-pull stage without any intermediate stages of audio frequency amplification. This eliminates distortion and hum originating in the first stage of audio.

The power section of the chassis has been vastly improved. Instead of four line voltage taps, a single Hi-Lo switch takes care of line voltage variations. The receiver will operate with all tubes at their proper voltage with line voltages varying from 95 to 130 volts. The power transformer has been redesigned using heavier construction so that there is less heat to be dissipated, and will run cool even under continuous operation.

The transformer is impregnated to prevent moisture trouble, but is not sealed in wax. The filter condensers are vacuum impregnated with oil. This oil penetrates through the entire condenser, positively protecting the condenser against moisture and air which causes condensers to break down after being in use 100 hours or more. The condenser is then coated with wax before sealing, which eliminates the possibility of the condenser being imperfectly shielded or grounded to the can.

These improvements have been made in accordance with the latest accepted standards of condenser and power pack construction and gives a power system which should be relatively free from trouble due to over-heating of the transformer and breaking down of filter condensers. In the rectifier stage is a No. 280 tube.

The chassis is cadmium plated and uses three No. 224 tubes, one No. 227, two No. 245 and one No. 180, six in all, fully licensed under RCA and RFL patents.

This receiver has a large electro-dynamic speaker. It is designed to operate with a wide variety of aerials and gives most unusual reception with extremely short aerials. Being totally shielded and using four tuned circuits, it is very selective.

The amplification over the tuning range of the dial is relatively constant, making it possible to bring in stations on either low or high frequencies with equal response.

Star Square Stores Enlarge the Main Radio Department

Company Recently Opened Its Thirteenth Store in This City.

The Star Square Stores announce the opening of a new and enlarged radio department in the main downtown store, 1129 Locust street. Recently the company opened its thirteenth store at 5941 Easton avenue.

Stanley Ragland, general manager of the company, recalls that the Star Square Stores organized as a corporation in St. Louis in 1922. Its first store was its present headquarters at 1129 Locust street, and it dealt then principally in auto accessories and general motor supplies. Within two years several stores were opened in other parts of the city and thereafter, by reason of demand from other districts additional stores were opened.

Until 1925 the company continued to deal exclusively in auto tires and auto accessories. In that year it branched out into selling radios. At that time crystal sets were much used. Because of the demand for radios the company installed departments in each of its other stores, and it became necessary to make extensive alterations at the main store, using the entire second floor for display of radios only.

Ragland said the company expected this year the largest volume of radio business in its history. It has expended considerable money in this new expansion, so as to be able to display and demonstrate various makes of radios in separate booths.

He said he believed the new and enlarged radio department at the main store is complete and the most beautiful radio department in St. Louis. The radio service department has been enlarged and improved.

The growth of the Star Square Stores, Ragland said, can be attributed to three things, primarily—service, standard merchandise and satisfied customers.

Unique Sound Deflecting Plan In Colonial Sets

Screen Grid Power Detector Only One of Numerous Advance Features.

The full line of Colonial receivers will be exhibited at the St. Louis radio show.

There are three principal art models of these sets—the "Piccadilly," the Cavalier" and the "Moderne." The top center panel of the first named set forms a slide back door which, when opened, reveals the embossed illuminated bronze control panel. A "Cameo" door in the center of the front of the "Cavalier" may be kept closed while the set is operating. The "Moderne" model is what its name implies—designed in ultra modern style. Its top center panel lifts and slides back to reveal the controls.

Four AC screen grid tubes are used in the first four stages, the last as a screen grid power detector. The first audio stage is resistance coupled for true tone quality and the last audio stage has two 45 type tubes in push pull. The tuned circuits are staggered to give a band pass effect, and there is also a filter network to prevent cross talk from strong stations.

A unique feature of the Colonial set is that the sound waves from its large dynamic speaker are deflected toward the floor, thereby diffusing them and giving an effect of realism through uniform distribution over a room.

The speaker and the circuit used in the Colonial sets were designed by Dr. Fulton Cutting, president of the Colonial Radio Corporation and a noted radio engineer.

Otto E. Heilmann is factory representative for the Colonial receivers.

To service out-of-town customers, Star Square Stores recently issued its first 120-page catalogue, in which are listed radio sets, auto tires and supplies, electric lighting fixtures, sporting goods, washing machines and paints of all kinds.

Sparton Chassis Designed to Give True Reproduction

Pre-Selector Tuning and Single Audio Stage Among Features of This Receiver.

The new Sparton sets, with pre-selector tuning, will be displayed at the Radio Show by the Henshaw-Dudley Distributing Co.

The Sparton receiver chassis is designed for undistorted reception and for the convenience of home users and service men. It consists of a pre-selector which does the tuning ahead of the R. F. amplifying tubes, a power unit and audio amplifier, and a super-dynamic speaker. It is divided into three easily separated units, so that any unit may be substituted and a set may be serviced without interrupting the enjoyment of its owner for more than a few minutes while the change is being made.

The pre-selector tuner, which is operated with the usual single control and illuminated dial, shuts out signals from all stations except the one wanted, but passes the desired station's signal along to a powerful radio frequency amplifier, which raises the signal strength to the desired power, then puts it into a power detector stage, which rectifies the signal and sends it to a single push-pull audio stage. In several Sparton models the audio stage uses two of the 45 type power tubes, but a de luxe model has two of the super power 50 tubes in push-pull.

A complaint against selectively tuning receivers often has been that while they did shut out unwanted stations, they also distorted the reception from the station tuned in. The Sparton pre-selector was designed especially to meet this objection. It does give selective tuning, and it also does pass along full, round music to the dynamic speaker built into each Sparton chassis. The simplicity of design of the R. F. amplifier is another factor in preserving the clearness of the original signals sent out by the broadcasting stations.

A single stage of push-pull audio, using high grade audio transformers, as the Sparton sets do, has certain advantages as compared with the usual radio amplifier made up of a first audio stage feeding into a push-pull stage. Theoretically, the audio system used by Sparton should result in "clear as a bell" reproduction. Practically, this effect is achieved.

New Series Coming

A series of dramatized stories of Parisian life in its lighter moments will begin Sept. 29 over WJZ. The half-hour to be filled by the new feature is that following the Sunday evening Collier's hour. The act will be known as the D'orsay program, and will be commercially sponsored.

Freed Sets Built To Tune Powerful Local Stations Out

Selectivity and Distance Range Characteristics of New Receivers.

Freed receivers, in both the eight-tube and nine-tube types, will be exhibited at the radio show by the C. Heinz Stove Co., distributer.

In addition to selectivity and sensitivity of an exceptionally high order, the Freed sets are distinguished by cabinets designed by some of the most famous of furniture stylists. One model, for example, comes in veneered walnut console, with built-in inductor dynamic speaker, but the veneering is of unusually fine wood.

Another model, also using an inductor dynamic type speaker, has especially attractive walnut paneling. Still another highboy cabinet, this one with full electro dynamic speaker, is finished in selected rare woods in inlay and overlay effects.

A de luxe model designed for extreme distance reception, has a special dynamic speaker, an extra stage of radio frequency amplification, and comes in a folding door cabinet of imported woods.

All the Freed receivers have push-pull audio, using two of the 45 type power tubes; automatic light socket aerials, and simple, perfected tuning controls.

The Freed factory is among the concerns in the radio industry that sponsors a broadcast program, the Freed Orchestradians being heard over KWK and NBC network.

In addition, the Freed organization is co-operating with the chain companies toward better broadcasting. It has established the Freed Foundation, which recently offered six prizes to stimulate excellence in broadcast programs and in technical perfecting of radio stations and broadcasting methods. Its executives have been active in promoting the educational broadcasts aimed at inculcating respect for the law. A new series of programs, intended to explain the meaning of law and laws to the average man and woman, is to be put on the air soon over a number of stations throughout the country.

Before being put into production, a number of Freed sets were sent out all over the country in charge of radio engineers and subjected to the most exacting of tests wherever it was reported that reception conditions were bad. Whenever an engineer reported that he had difficulty in tuning in any station or in tuning one out, steps were taken to check his findings, and if the facts disclosed need of a change in the receiver, this was made.

The result, it is said is that Freed receivers perform under any conditions of sensitivity or selectivity, especially where it is a case of tuning out powerful local stations to get distance.

Silver Receivers Have Screen Grid Power Detector

Sales Director for Silver-Marshall Addresses Dealers at St. Louis Meeting.

Eighteen months of pioneering in the building and selling of screen grid tube radio went before marketing of the new Silver radio, some 125 dealers were informed by D. S. Hill, director of sales for Silver-Marshall, Inc., of Chicago, at a dinner meeting Wednesday night at the Jefferson Hotel. Silver-Marshall, said Hill, was ahead of all other manufacturers in use of both the DC and the AC screen grid tubes. Thousands of its screen grid sets were in the hands of fans and experimenters before other manufacturers began to investigate the possibilities of the new tubes.

The new Silver sets which Hill described will be exhibited at the radio show this week by the distributer, the Electric Lamp and Supply Co., of which H. S. Hollander is head. They all have four AC screen grid tubes, three in R F stages and one as a power detector of exceptional handing capacity. Band selector tuning, said to be extremely selective yet insuring pure tone, is another feature.

Each Silver set has an invisible screen antenna in the cabinet, outside aerials or even the usual inside antenna not being necessary for distance reception. An "overtone" switch enables one to extend the upper tones range at will. A "peaked" input coupler permits uniform amplification on all wave lengths.

Other features include: 6 type tubes in push-pull, socket for an optional voltage regulating tube that is fully automatic in operation from 90 to 110 volts, resistance coupling between the screen grid detector and the first audio stage, and audio transformers designed to cover the range from 50 to 5000 cycles.

Furniture is unusually attractive. One highboy model with sliding doors is done in walnut in an antique design. Another, a lowboy model, has the same features of Sheraton design as the highboy.

Besides Sales Director Hill, speakers included M. C. Lanmon, engineer in charge of inspection for Silver-Marshall, Willing Wood, factory representative, and H. S. Hollander, head of the Electric Lamp and Supply Co., who was host for the dinner.

Among other things, Hill told how the Silver-Marshall company was formed in 1924 by McMurdo Silver. Since that time the company has moved five times because of increasing business, the last time into a Chicago plant having 106,000 square feet of floor space. Silver-Marshall started as a parts manufacturer, and its sets and parts for custom set builders and radio fans were world famous. Little by little the company found itself almost forced into the making and marketing of complete receivers. It was first to put a practicable screen grid tube set on the market, and its experience with the DC tubes of that type put it in an advanced position to take advantage of the new AC screen grid tubes.

Nye Again Advocates U. S. Radio Station

The question of whether or not the Government should operate its own broadcasting station for the purpose of disseminating information by Government agencies was brought to the fore again recently by Senator Nye of North Dakota, who commented on the bill to this effect which he has introduced.

The bill would provide for establishment of such a station in Washington, D. C., with authority for the Secretary of Commerce to establish additional stations if necessary "to assure that matter broadcast shall reach simultaneously all sections of the country."

"The political campaigns of the future will be largely campaigns by radio," Senator Nye said, "and to prevent the control of public discussion by privately owned stations the enactment of the measure will assure the national candidates of all parties the right to reach, without cost, the entire United States."

Local Atwater Kent Dealers Organize to Put Concerts on Air

Jack Coleman to Sing at Radio Show Under Their Sponsorship.

Fifty of the Atwater Kent dealers in St. Louis have organized to sponsor the series of 15 weekly concerts that are being broadcast over KMOX and WIL to supplement the Sunday and mid-week Atwater Kent concerts on a country-wide NBC network.

This week is the eighth in the series. The programs are broadcast over KMOX on Monday and Friday mornings, from 10:30 to 10:45. They go on the air over WIL Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights, from 7:15 to 7:30, and Thursday and Saturday afternoons, from 2:15 to 2:30.

Jack Coleman, who for two years was staff tenor for WIL, is to sing at the radio show this week under the sponsorship of the Atwater Kent dealers.

Recently, the St. Louis Atwater Kent Dealers co-operated with WIL in a competition to bring to light new talent for broadcasting. A number of promising singers and musicians were discovered.

Clock Is Devised To Turn on Set

A new radio clock that may be attached to any receiver to turn on the set at a predetermined time, regardless of where the owner may be at the time, has been developed. There is also no danger of the set being left running if a station goes off the air, for the clock will turn off the set at the opportune time.

Another use of the clock is in the case of centralized radio installations, such as hotels, hospitals or schools, where a number of receivers, automatically adjusted, carry a number of programs to the guests, patients or students. Installations of this type are entirely automatic, the wave channels being permanently selected.

The new radio clock is extremely simple, working on new principles. The bottom part is the clock proper, which, incidentally, is built in such a manner that the face protrudes through the panel, while the upper part of the clock, which is the time adjustment, is secreted behind the panel.

Double Push Pull Audio Featured in New Zenith Sets

Special Screen Grid Circuit Designed to Give Super Performance.

Prominent among the screen grid receivers is the new Zenith "50 line" chassis which incorporates features revolutionary both in screen grid design and performance. The new Zenith will be shown by the distributer, Lindemann-Hoffer, Inc.

A number of new features include "double push-pull" audio amplification, providing tone quality, in which every note of the harmonic scale is reproduced with equal resonance and with a naturalness said to be uncannily accurate.

Nine tubes are used, including rectification, employing three 224 screen grid, three 227 heater type, two 45 amplifiers and one rectifier. The two 45 amplifiers are arranged with two of the 227 tubes in double push-pull.

The chassis is all-metal construction, with 100 per cent die-made precision parts and perfectly shielded. A five-gang variable condenser is supported by five separate radio circuits. Specially designed audio transformers and a self-heating filter condenser of unlimited life are also used. A most desirable feature is the minimum of noise level with a maximum of signal strength.

Hairline selectivity and the ability to tune in distant stations with ease are more than ever emphasized by Zenith's specially designed screen grid circuit.

The chassis is designed and built to work with the new super-size 12-inch electro-dynamic type speaker which is being used exclusively by Zenith in the new "50 line" models.

Phonograph Pickup Included.

A phonograph pickup connection with a patented switch is included. The dial for hand-tuning, is translucent and calibrated in both kilocycles and meters. It can easily be read from either a standing or sitting position, an unusual feature in console models.

Two control knobs are provided, a left-hand vernier knob and a right-hand knob acting as a combination volume control and "on and off" switch. An antenna and selectivity adjustment is furnished which permits the regulating of the antenna to any length for best reception and selectivity.

Known as Models 52, 53, 54 and 55, all incorporate Zenith automatic tuning and Zenith's new screen grid chassis.

Zenith cabinets, designed by America's foremost cabinet artists and manufactured in Zenith's new cabinet factory, which is equipped with the most modern of woodworking machinery in existence, reflect artistry and workmanship of the highest order. Woods used are selected butt walnut, English satinwood and Carpathian elm burl with hand-rubbed and highlighted finish.

Violinist Plays Over KSD Tonight

"Hello, Margot." In addition, they assist in the ensemble work of the vocal orchestra with special solo and duet arrangements by Frank Black, director.

Saint-Saen's "The Swan," to be sung in a special arrangement by the "Muted Singers,' a special ensemble.

The broadcast will open with "My Annapolis and You," shifting to "Here in My Arms," from "Dearest Enemy," and continuing with an exotic note in "Dance Barbare." The first two numbers afford unusual harmony passages for the quartette and the mezzo-soprano soloist.

"Go Down, Moses," a spiritual, and "Steamboat," an impressionistic Mississippi levee tone picture, will reflect two phases of Southern life.

The complete program follows:

"My Annapolis and You," "Here in My Arms," from "Dearest Enemy," "Dance Barbare," fantasy on "With a Song in My Heart," "Hello Margot." "Go Down Moses," "Steamboat," "The Swan," Saint Saens; "I've Got a Feelin' I'm Fallin'."

David Lawrence is to give his usual talk on "Our Government" at 7 o'clock.

Catherine Wade-Smith, violinist, will play two works of Samuel Gardner in the Atwater Kent concert at 7:15 over KSD.

She began playing the violin as a child, when she had visions of following in the footsteps of the late Maud Powell. She confesses to having been paralyzed with fear when she first stood on the stage of the Chicago Auditorium—where only a few days before she had heard Kreisler in one of his recitals, and played before a crowded house, with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. She did not recover from the fright until Director Frederick Stock took her by the hand and led her out to receive the applause of an enthusiastic audience.

The program:

March of the Tin Soldiers ..... Pierne
Charme D'Espagne Habanera ... Mezzocapo
Orchestra
Midnight Bells ..... Heuberger
South Sea Serenade. Hanenschild-Pasternack
There Was Once an Owl ..... Herbert
Orchestra
From the Canebrake ..... Gardner
Waltz in A Major ..... Brahms
Selections from "The Merry Widow" . Lehar
Orchestra

Tonight's Biblical Drama period, with the National Players, under Gerald Stopp, will begin at 7:45 over KSD.

Pitley Applause

What is believed to be the shortest "applause letter" on record recently was received by the National Broadcast Co. On a letter head the program title "The Family Goes Abroad" was written. Below it was a rubber stamped "O. K." with the initials of the head of the firm on the letter head.

Victor Radio Equipment on De Luxe Train

Success of Installation Results in Order for Sets for Nine Other Trains.

With the installation and successful operation of a Victor radio receiving set on its de luxe new train, the Empire Builder, the Great Northern Railway has added to its hotel-like luxuries the latest form of diversion for passengers, it was announced by officials of the railroad yesterday. The same Victor model will be seen at the St. Louis radio show, where it will be exhibited by the Aeolian Co. of Missouri and the Koerber-Bremer Co., distributers.

Running from Chicago to Seattle, Portland and other cities of the Pacific Northwest, the Empire Builder is drawn by super-power electric and oil-burning engines, and operates on a new fast schedule that enables travelers to save a business day. The inauguration of the new train was heralded to the country by Graham McNamee over a coast-to-coast hook-up, and while the train was on exhibition in the Union Depot at Chicago this last word in railway travel comfort was visited by more than 20,000 persons.

During the inspection both radio concerts and phonograph records played by a new RE-45 Victor radio with Electrola were enjoyed by those who visited the luxurious lounge car of the train, where Great Northern officials and their guests listened to the Empire Builder broadcast. In co-operation with railroad engineers, the technicians of the Radio-Victor corporation devised a special installation which permitted passengers on the Empire Builder's initial trip, and this form of entertainment will be a regular feature of its daily runs both west-bound and east-bound.

It is stated by Great Northern engineers that results obtained with the new Victor have been highly satisfactory with both the radio and the Electrola. Even with the noise of the speeding train the micro-synchronous feature of the instrument resulted in amazing faithfulness and clearness of reception. In addition to several Chicago stations, WLW, Cincinnati, and KSTP, St. Paul, are picked up with excellent volume.

Following the success of this novel experiment the Great Northern has ordered nine additional Victor instruments, it was announced recently by the Radio-Victor corporation. These will be placed in service on other Great Northern trains, and one will be part of the equipment of the private car of the president of the road.

That this newest departure in entertaining travelers on de luxe trains will shortly result in making Victor instruments standard equipment on the country's fastest trains is the opinion expressed by both radio and railroad engineers.

Mounting Tubes.

It will not harm the tubes to mount the amplifier so that the tubes are horizontal instead of vertical. It is neccesary to avoid allowing the heat from the tubes to rise against any part of the amplifier and especially against the filter condensers. If the amplifier can be mounted so that there is a free circulation of air about the tubes and so that the heat rising from the tubes does not strike the transformers or condensers of the amplifier, there should be no difficulty in operation of the receiver.

Brunswick Has Special Voltage Regulating Tube

Long Tube Life Assured by Device in New Type Receivers.

The 1929 Brunswick receiver is of the tuned radio frequency type, completely neutralized, consisting of tuned radio frequency amplification, detector and two stages of audio frequency amplification in nine tubes. Two 245s are used in the second audio stage in push-pull amplification. A voltage regulating tube makes for long tube life.

One of the features of the new Brunswick receivers is constant amplification over the entire frequency band.

Tuning is accomplished by means of a single control for reception of nearby stations and a vernier for tuning in distant stations and adjusting the receiver to antennas of any length.

The chassis and power plant, which is the same in all models, are each formed from one piece of metal and serve as a mounting for all the parts required to complete the apparatus. The radio chassis is made separate from the audio and power portion, but the two are interlocked in assembly. All wiring is rigid, preventing the set from getting out of adjustment.

The reproducer, of the electro-dynamic type, was a large cone. This speaker, in conjunction with the radio and audio parts assures tone qualities of absolute fidelity, engineers declare.

The receivers are marketed in Model 14, which is housed in an artistic lowboy console with center and side panels finished in butt walnut mounted with top piece of matched ribbon walnut; Model 21, a highboy console featuring French doors with American butt walnut both outside and inside and in the radio panel. Ribbon walnut is used on the door as well as the panels on either side. A narrow inlay of white holly adds to the distinctive appearance of the doors. A carved molding extends around three sides of the cabinet; Model 31, the combination radio and Panatrope, has French doors, side panels and radio panel of butt walnut framed with ribbon walnut with a burled maple overlay above and below the doors. The legs are hand-carved.

Firm Formed For Distributing Lyric Receivers

Kex Electrical Corporation Will Exhibit New Sets at Radio Show.

The line of Lyric radio receivers made by the All-American Mohawk Corporation of Chicago, is to be distributed in the St. Louis trade territory by the newly organized Kex Electrical Corporation. Organizers of the firm are H. H. Fleer, F. A. Fox and W. J. Barth. Salesrooms are at 4561 Delmar boulevard and executive offices at 2823 Locust boulevard.

Ten tubes are used in these Lyrics, which will be seen at the radio show.

Four tuned stages of neutralized radio frequency and a tuned power detector give the new Lyric sets exceptional distance reach and selectivity. They are handled by a special five-gang condenser that has been scientifically balanced.

The Hazeltine neutrodyne circuit is used basically, and the receivers are licensed also under R. C. A., Westinghouse, A. T. & T. and General Electric patents. Ten tubes are used in each Lyric chassis.

The All-American Mohawk Corporation, which was formed from the All-American and Mohawk companies, has certain advantages in designing audio stages for a receiver. The All-American audio transformers for years have been among the really fine devices, and were among those especially favored by custom set builders in making receivers for the more particular fans. These transformers have been still further developed, and are used in the new Lyric receivers with 45 tubes in push pull. This combination, working into a super dynamic speaker, gives realism of reproduction and covers the tone range from 50 to above 5000 cycles.

The power unit in the lyric sets has been designed to work the tubes with all necessary power yet to guard against premature wearing out of tubes. A graduated volume control is used that gives very smooth shadings without any "jumpiness."

Cabinets have been designed of selected woods to be in keeping with the exceptional character of reception made possible by the 10-tube chassis.

Incidentally, the All-American Mohawk Corporation is one of the radio manufacturers that is playing an active part in broadcasting. Its weekly broadcast program is now going on the air over KSD and a national NBC network Saturday nights.

New WENR Feature

Radio History Told in Display Of Apparatus

The permanent display of historical radio apparatus which is to become one of the exhibits at the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, will be shown at the radio exposition in the Coliseum here for the last time before it is placed in the museum which houses the "Spirit of St. Louis."

Thirty-three pieces, including instruments used as early as 1900, make up the display. Among them are Marconi's original receiving set, the kite he used in suspending his aerial, and the De Forest stream arc.

The instruments will be placed in chronological order on long tables at the exposition and clearly labeled so that visitors may trace through them the development of radio.

The collection, owned by the Radio-Victor Corporation of America, will be shipped here from Atlanta, Ga., where it was displayed at the radio show just concluded.

Trav-Ler Portable Receivers Made in St. Louis Factory

Set With New Circuit Turned Out in Plant Moved From Chicago.

An exhibit of Trav-Ler portable receivers, which are made in St. Louis, will be made at the radio show by the Trav-Ler Manufacturing Corporation. This company was acquired in October, 1928, by Harold J. Wrape, Carl Hambuechen and C. R. Ogle of St. Louis, and recently its plant was moved here after reorganization.

The Trav-Ler corporation was organized in April, 1923, by Frank Magee, former production manager of the Howard Radio Co. of Chicago.

Seeing a growing use for the future, the concern began exclusive manufacture of portable receivers. It concentrated on the development of small radio sets for four years and through large increase in volume of business proved how well their original idea of a market for portable receiving sets was founded.

The feature of Trav-Ler engineering has always been to produce a receiver of fine tone quality and sensitivity that would permit distance reception and, in the city, selective tuning of all stations between 200 and 600 meters. It has always endeavored to furnish these features in a truly portable set that would be convenient to carry, light, and so constructed that it would withstand rough handling.

There are difficult problems in the design of portables due to the fact that a set of this nature is subject to harder use than a non-portable set. Except in the cities, the sets are generally operated where no line power is available and have to depend on batteries. Generally the set is taken as far away as possible from broadcasting centers. Instead of being used in the evening when reception is at its best, it is often operated in the middle of the day when atmospheric conditions are at the worst for reception.

Trav-Ler portables are widely used by Congressmen in their homes in Washington and as they travel around their districts to check up on radio conditions. They are used by radio government inspectors as they travel over their territories.

The first problem of the new management was to design a new circuit and provide a truly modern receiver. Three models of portables are now being manufactured for battery and A. C. and D. C. power operation. These are meeting with wide trade acceptance, and although they have been on the market only a few weeks, there is every indication they will be popular.

There is a startling increase in the use of portable radio receiving sets, of such proportions it is expected there may in the near future be the same development in this field as in England and the Continent.

The Trav-Ler Corporation maintains its own selling organization, covering the United States from Maine to California. It has district sales offices and branch warehouses in New York and Chicago and expects to open another branch on the Pacific Coast.

Olive Palmer Suits Costumes To Her Songs

Olive Palmer, coloratura soprano of the Palmolive Hour, thinks dress and especially colors have an important psychological effect on a singer.

"If, for instance, I am to sing something from 'Carmen' my dress that evening must be bright and gay and decidedly Spanish in type. If it is to be a simple love ballad, some soft shimmery creation of blue and silver helps me. A Scotch air calls for a bit of plaid while naturally an Irish song means that my dress must be green.

"When men artists wear evening clothes or summery flannels or sports togs, it helps us with the mimicry of romantic duets. When I hear Paul Oliver in some song of the sea, I shut my eyes and picture him in a naval uniform. Perhaps these theories will sound strange to those who tune in on the Palmolive Hour, but the results of 'dressing up' are real to me."

nd Pass Filter In New Grebe Sets Gives Selectivity

Cuts Out Undesired Signals Before They Reach Amplifying Stages.

The equalized band pass filter, device developed by A. H. Grebe Co., Inc., of Richmond Hill, N. which harnesses and directs the plification made possible by the reen grid circuit of the new rebe SK-4 and makes hairline seivity a reality, is claimed to be e of the year's radio engineerg achievements.

This equalized band pass filter, hich will be found in Grebe sets hibited at the radio show by the affelbach & Duffy Co., is made p of two loosely coupled stages receding the first radio frequen- amplifier. The inherent action loosely coupled circuits is that narrow band of frequencies is ually passed from one tuned cirit to the other, whereas frequenies above or below this band do et get through the circuit. Thus efore the desired station's energy ven reaches the grid of the first adio frequency amplifier tube, the and pass filter has filtered out ractically all of the undesired sigals on adjacent wave-length channels.

After the effective selecting action of the tubeless band pass filter there remain three more tuned circuits, one after each of the three screen grid tubes which pass the desired signal after each succeeding stage of amplification, yet offer a high impedance to the passage of the already weakened undesired signal.

Alfred H. Grebe, president of the Grebe organization, said the following about the band pass filter:

"Having obtained much higher sensitivity than necessary in the SK-4 set, we also sought increased selectivity. We found we could readily afford to exchange the excess sensitivity for greater selectivity and we thus were able to install a band pass filter before the first radio stage for this purpose.

"We went further by adding a variable condenser in the antenna circuit, forming an equalized band pass filter, so that we get not only selective tuning on the low wavelengths as well as on the high ones, but also equal amplification of signals along the entire dial. I might add that this has been made possible through the use of screen grid tubes."

This equalized band pass filter, which will be found in Grebe sets exhibited at the radio show by the Muehlbach & Duffy Co., is made up of two loosely coupled stages preceding the first radio frequency amplifier. The inherent action of loosely coupled circuits is that a narrow band of frequencies is easily passed from one tuned circuit to the other, whereas frequencies above or below this band do not get through the circuit. Thus before the desired station's energy even reaches the grid of the first radio frequency amplifier tube, the band pass filter has filtered out practically all of the undesired signals on adjacent wave-length channels.

NBC ENTRY IN BEAUTY CONTEST

Countess Olga Medolago Albani, who has been entered by the National Broadcasting Co. in the New York radio show beauty contest.

Piece of Cabinet Is Used as Check

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—A radio company salesman called on a prospective customer who had taken out a demonstration set and kept it for some time without notifying the store whether he intended to buy it.

The salesman said the time had come to "take it or leave it."

The customer in picking up the set dropped it and smashed it. He wrote a check for the price of the set on a fragment of the cabinet. The "wooden check" was accepted and cashed by a bank.

Steinite Sales Quota Absorbed

At the recent Steinite jobbers' convention held at Fort Wayne in connection with the dedication of the new plant, the entire sales quota for the new screen grid models was absorbed by less than 45 per cent of the company's wholesalers, according to announcement by Oscar Getz, vice president.

"Such response to our new models was a tremendous surprise, even to officials of the company," said Getz. "At this rate, we will be forced to step up our production schedule immediately."

Special Speaker Built for New Kellogg Sets

Screen Grid Receivers Develop Great Volume—Two Use 50 Type Tubes.

So great is the volume that can be delivered by one of the new Kellogg A C screen grid receivers, that it was necessary to design a special speaker to handle it. At the same time, the volume control is so smooth and gradual that the sets may be operated at a whisper. The new Kelloggs will be exhibited at the show by the distributer, the Fleer-Petty Auto Supply Co.

Two receivers and a radio-phonograph combination are the principal Kellogg models. One receiver uses a nine-tube chassis with 45 tubes in push pull audio, the other and the combination have a 10-tube chassis with two 50 type super power tubes in push pull.

Three R F screen grid tubes feed into a special power detector. The audio system had to be different from anything used in the past to handle such power. The first audio tube, of the heater type, is operated at maximum plate voltage and grid bias. The output of the first audio is fed into a push-pull stage, utilizing two K 50 tubes in one chassis and two of the new UX 245 tubes in another.

Interesting Controls.

The result of this tremendous radio and audio frequency amplification is that only the most ruggedly constructed dynamic speakers will handle the output. To make this power available to the operator of the receiver with a minimum of effort, there are only three controls. The center knob controls the single illuminated dial for tuning.

The right-hand knob controls the signal input to the receiver, so that sensitivity can be regulated. The left-hand control knob is the manual setting for an automatic volume regulator. This controls the amount of amplification of a signal after it has been passed by the input control.

Volume Automatically Controlled.

The outstanding feature about the left hand or manual amplification control is that it sets the limit within which the volume is automatically controlled by a heater tube. Thus the operator, after tuning in a station and setting the manual amplification control, can turn the tuning knob, bringing in local station after local station with no blasting. In between the local stations, distant stations will come through. The automatic volume control tube increases the sensitivity of the set automatically as a weak or distant station is approached.

Under some unfavorable reception conditions, due to noise or static, it is possible to get better reception by the use of these two controls.

The tremendous power from the amplifier stages is put through a dynamic speaker of special design and construction with matched impedances. The entire tone range, from 50 cycles to 5000 cycles per second, is handled with satisfactory volume.

Radio Compass For Show, Kolster Dealers Are Told

A radio compass, of the type that has figured in several sensational rescues of passengers and crews of sinking ships, is to be exhibited at the St. Louis radio show this week, it was stated Thursday night by Gene Strauss of the Strauss Co., Kolster distributer. Strauss at the time was addressing a meeting of the Kolster Club at the Coronado Hotel.

This compass was invented by Dr. Frederick Kolster, chief research engineer for the Kolster Radio Corporation, maker of Kolster receivers. Recently Dr. Kolster perfected a smaller design of the compass so that it could be used by yachts and other small craft.

The Kolster Club is an organization of Kolster dealers in the St. Louis territory covered by the Strauss Co. It has members not only in the St. Louis metropolitan area, but also in a number of other cities and towns in the territory. It is proving to be an unusually effective medium for getting co-operation between wholesaler and dealers and between the dealers themselves. The meetings are always well attended, and enthusiastic.

Three Radio Dealers Begin Experiment in Co-Operative Effort

An experiment in co-operation between radio dealers is being tried by the Dorton Radio Co., 2809 North Kingshighway; the George Oonk Radio Co., 5316 West Florissant avenue, and the Electradio Shop, 3354 North Union boulevard.

Thus far the three firms have worked together only to do joint advertising so as to run larger newspaper copy than any of them desires to run alone. But the experiment probably will be carried further, possibly to co-operative buying.

The firms are planning to work out policies as to service, selling, allowances and other matters that can be adhered to by all for their mutual benefit and for that of customers as well. It is believed that it will be possible to create a definite customer good will in the name of the three stores, yet leave each firm free to sell independently.

Hamp Popular

Charles W. Hamp finished in first place in a Pittsburg popularity contest for radio artists, displacing Graham McNamee in the last-minute count of votes. Jessica Dragonette was third, Milton Cross fourth and Mildred Hunt, "Crooner," ran fifth.

Karl Jorn of The Metropolitan On Air Thursday

Karl Jorn, famous Wagnerian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing the Swan Song from Wagner's Opera "Lohengrin" and three German folk songs when he appears as soloist on the German program which the "Around the World with Libby" Concert Ensemble will present Thursday night over KWK.

In addition to being a famous opera singer, Jorn is a master of German lieder. For this part of his program he has chosen "Die Lorelei," "Der Tiroler Und Sein Kind" and "Madel Ruck."

Considerable variety is introduced into the Libby German program by the performance of one of the latest modernistic pieces from the recent opera "Johnny Spielt Auf." This opera created a stir last year at its premiere at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. In this story built around a roguish, Negro banjo player there is a "blues" melody that is particularly effective. A special arrangement of this number, made by Josef Pasternack, director, will be performed by the Libby Orchestra.

As a companion group the orchestra will present two popular German songs of the day. These are similar in type to American popular songs. They are "Fraulein, Pardon" and "Margot," both the rage at present in Germany.

'Monitor' Planned To Check Stations

Some 20,000 domestic and numerous foreign radio transmitting stations will benefit from the first stations will benefit from the first "constant frequency monitoring station" in the world, to be erected in December at Grand Island, Neb., according to W. D. Terrell, chief of the Radio Division of the Department of Commerce.

This station will serve as a check on wave lengths, and will be able definitely to place a transmitting station back on its frequency by a telephone message.

More Than 1,400,000 a Year.

More than a million sets will be produced this year by the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. of Philadelphia.

Frank Black wields the baton during the program of the Chase and Sanborn Choral Orchestra Sunday evenings over KSD. Phil Ohman and Victor Arden, piano duo, and the vocalists make the event a family affair for the NBC.

Putting Tubes In Wrong Sockets Causes 'Burn-Outs'

Fully 65 Per Cent of Value 'Returns' Due to This, Engineers Find.

One of the most interesting studies in the modern radio tube production plant is that made of tubes that come back for replacement. In the DeForest plant, careful examinations are made of these rejects to determine whether the breakown was due to causes beyond the control of the manufacturer or if there was a defect in the tube.

The causes of tube failures are scientifically determined in the modern radio tube plant with special equipment. First, the rejected tube is examined to determine when it was produced and by what unit of the plant. This is accomplished by referring to a secret code number in the tube then it is possible to check up the entire career of the tube.

Microscope Tells Story.

The next step is to subject the tube to tests from which characteristic curves may be made up. These tests include hum tests, emision, plate current, gas, leakage, and so on. With the general health of the tube determined, the exact causes of failure are next traced down to their source. If the filament circuit, for instance, is open, the bulb is removed and the elements examined to find out if the open circuit was caused by short-circuit, over-voltage, or crossed wires.

Tubes that have been burned out tell the entire story of their untimely end when the filament is examined under the microscope. If the filament has been overloaded up to 15 or 20 per cent, the filament wires are elongated or tapered on each side of the break. If the burn-out was caused by a short-circuit between filament and grid, it is found that the grid bears a small discolored spot at the point where the contact occurred.

Abuse Often to Blame.

Short circuits are not always caused while operating the radio set. They are often due to mishandling or dropping the tube. If this has been the case, a very casual inspection shows displacement of the elements resulting from such abuse. Sometimes the dropping of the tube does not result in a complete breakdown of the elements, but displaces their relative positions so that the characteristics are no longer uniform and the tube will not function properly.

A great many tubes returned to the factory as defective prove to be in excellent condition. This is probably due to faulty receiving sets, particularly poor socket contact or loose rheostat contacts, for which the tube was blamed. Considerable misunderstanding would be avoided if, when a tube fails to light, it were shifted to another socket designed to take the same tube. In this manner trouble would be traced to a defective socket or rheostat in many instances.

Investigation proves that as high as 65 per cent of filament burnouts can be traced to placing tubes in the wrong socket. Also, the current should always be turned off when changing tuoes.

Elaborate Ground

PROVIDENCE, R. I. — More than 11,000 strips of copper wire nailed down in a geometrical pattern in the rooms of the building housing Station WJAR of Providence form a ground for a new 1000-watt transmitter. Two thermostatically controlled crystals enable the station to keep within one-tenth per cent of its allotted frequency.

Congress apparently supposed that each broadcasting station could be counted on to serve a certain number of people. Therefore, it divided the stations according to the population.

The number of people served by a broadcasting station depends on two factors: the density of population and physical conditions affecting the signals of the station such as statib and fading.

In New York it is possible for one station to serve several million people, but that is not possible in the Westerh states.

Six stations would well serve New York. Six other stations would well serve Chicago. Instead, there are about 20 stations operating simultaneously in and around Chicago.

In Nebraska, there are only two full-time stations—a 50-watt station at Ravenna and a 100-watt station at Lincoln. In North Dakota there are four full time stations, all of them of 100 watts each. In South Dakota there are only four full-time stations, three of them of 100 watts each and the fourth of 15 watts.

Under the law, there must be a certain population to justify a regional station, which is a station of 500 watts or more. In many sections of the Middle and Far West, there is not sufficient population to justify the Commission under the present law in giving full time to stations in those sections.

Four Majestic Models to Be Seen at Show

Noteworthy Improvements in the New Receivers and Cabinets.

An exhibit occupying 800 square feet of floor space near the front entrance of the Coliseum will display to visitors to the Radio Show this week the four models of Majestic receivers which the Grigsby-Grunow Co. is manufacturing. The Benwood-Linze Co., the St. Louis distributer, will make the exhibit.

A terraced platform narrowing into a single column on top of which rests a crown bearing the insignia, "Mighty Monarch of the Air," will support the sets on display. Suspended above the exhibit is a model of the Graf Zeppelin, which has been made to appear as though it remains aloft without support. The background of the exhibit has been worked out in a harmony of vivid colors.

Improvements Made.

Within the new sets the outstanding change is the use of 27 and 45 tubes, replacing 26 and 71. Four 27s are used in four stages of tuned radio frequency, free from hum and clicks and crackling brought in on the house current lines. Following these four stages, comes power detection, a 27 tube so connected that what is called "plate rectification" is obtained. This results in a true power detector, removing the last "bottle neck" in radio and permitting the greatly built-up energy from the radio frequency stages to pass unhindered to the two 45 power tubes.

Another feature, and one which engineers have sought for years, is the automatic sensitivity control which eliminates juggling of volume (sensitivity) control as one goes up and down the dial. It is not necessary to retard the sensitivity on low wave lengths or boost it at the upper end of the dial.

A new and larger power unit is found in all models. The type 80 rectifier is still used and the transformers and filter units are heavier than in the past and capable of handling more energy.

The baffle-board chamber is a marked improvement. New developments also have been made in the dynamic speaker.

Fine Cabinets.

While the same chassis, speaker and power pack is used in all models, the cabinets differ. The cabinet of Model 91 is an early English design of American walnut. The instrument panel is overlaid with genuine imported Australian lacewood. The escutcheon plate and knobs are finished in silver. The "Twin 91" is in walnut veneer.

Model 92 cabinet is taken from the Jacobean period and is of American walnut. Doors are of matched butt walnut, with overlays on them, and the interior panel of Australian lacewood. The escutcheon plate, knobs and door pulls are finished in silver.

The cabinet of the combination electric radio and phonograph is of matched butt burl walnut. The radio has three stages of tuned radio frequency amplifications, using the R. F. L. balanced circuit. Two stages of audio amplification are used with two 50 types power tubes in the last stage. The phonograph is equipped with an electric motor and pickup. A phonograph switch is combined with the main tuning control.

Some States May Lose Broadcasters

States with more than their fair share of broadcasting facilities are likely to lose some of their excess as a result of demands from under-quota states, it is indicated by activities of the Federal Radio Commission.

There has been a steady demand for licenses, the commission now having pending, the applications of 300 or 400 would-be entrants in the broadcasting field. Naturally, it cannot tell applicants from the under-quota states that there is no room for them, for the radio act specifically provides for equitable distribution.

Temple Models All Have 14-Inch Dynamic Speaker

New Plant, With Capacity of 250,000 Sets a Year, Under Way.

The signing of contracts for a new radio set factory with sufficient space for making 250,000 receivers a year has been announced by the Temple Corporation of Chicago. The factory is to be ready for occupancy by Dec. 1, according to Alfred Marchev, president.

The building is to have more than 300,000 square feet of all-daylight floor space, and is to cost over $500,000. Offices and research laboratories will be in the administration building, which will be a two-story structure with a central tower rising two additional stories in height.

Temple receivers will be displayed at the radio show by the Universal Cabinet Co., distributer. The Temple sets are arranged so that either screen-grid or ordinary 227-type tubes may be used, the change over from one type to the other requiring about 30 minutes work. All models use the Temple 14-inch dynamic loud speaker.

In converting a Temple set from 227 tubes o a screen-grid tube receiver, two radio-frequency transformers and two resistors must be changed. Then two 224-type screen-grid tubes are substituted for the 227 tubes in the r.f. stages and the job is done.

Bosch Programs Every Saturday Through WDAF

James C. Gordon Co. Sponsors Afternoon Salon Concerts Weekly.

The James C. Gordon Co., Inc., distributer of Bosch radio in the St. Louis and Kansas City territories, has gone on the air with a distinctive program that is being broadcast Saturday afternoons, from 2:30 to 3 o'clock, over WDAF, Kansas City. WDAF uses the 610 kilocycle channel, which is six notches on the dial below KSD.

James C. Gordon, president of the sponsoring firm, said that these Bosch programs would be given by a salon orchestra and would be of the high-grade type to which listeners were accustomed to listen at night. He has signed a contract for a WDAF broadcast every Saturday afternoon for three months.

An idea of the character of the programs to be broadcast may be gained from the one printed herewith, which was scheduled to open the series yesterday afternoon:

'NAT' SHILKRET VERSATILE AS MUSICIAN

At an age when most boy-children are banging unmusically upon tin drums, Nathaniel Shilkret was playing simple melodies on a clarinet. He has acquired the clarinet on his fifth birthday and two years later was playing clarinet solos in a 70-piece boys' orchestra. The orchestra's first public appearances were in New York. Later the youngsters went "on the road" and the child Shilkret was billed as the "boy prodigy of the clarinet."

Seven-year-old Nathaniel wasn't satisfied with the range of musical expresion allotted him by the reed instrument. He climbed upon a piano stool and worked hard at exercises given by a teacher. In a few years his small fingers brought out the melodies of Beethoven, Bach and other master composers.

Music Was Fun.

All this time the youngster's ambition was to be a civil engineer. Music was fun—but not considered a posible life-work. He did not dream that his natural talent eventually would put him where he would be conducting orchestras for audiences of millions. That time came when he began broadcasting through network stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co.

He went to school. Mathematics, physics—all courses thought necessary to his planned career in engineering—were assiduously studied. Eventually music conquered him. He stopped his study of engineering in his sophomore year in college.

Always ahead of his years in his accomplishments, Shilkret was an active assistant of Walter Damrosch at the age of 16. His work then was at the piano.

While in his teens Shilkret played with the Russian Symphony Orchestra, using his clarinet, the New York Symphony Orchestra and the Barrere Ensemble.

Has Pleasing Tenor.

To become an accompanist for singers, the youth took voice lessons. He has a pleasing tenor but refuses to use it in public.

His next step upward in his musical career came when he was 24 years old. He joined the Victor Talking Machine Co. and went to work in developing a new style of orchestral scoring, especially adapted for making records.

He has been with the Victor company for 10 years, dividing his time between the phonograph laboratories and the NBC studios. He is especially well known through his work in arranging and conducting the Eveready and Maxwell House hours.

Shilkret, conducting, looks like a poet. He has a thin, sensitive face, its asceticism relieved by wrinkles of humor at mouth corners and eyes. His hair, straight and dark, sweeps down over an unusually high forehead.

Wears Bow Ties.

His direction of symphonic numbers is dignified and careful. He becomes vibrant when he leads his musicians into a syncopated number, using a gesture that reminds one of nothing else but a woman rubbing clothes on a small washboard.

He isn't interested in anything but music and his hobby is writing music. He has written and has had published a number of well-known selections.

Shilkret, according to persons close to him, never is too busy to give some of his time to young, struggling musicians who come to him for advice and encouragement.

Bosch Programs Every Saturday Through WDAF

James C. Gordon Co. Sponsors Afternoon Salon Concerts Weekly.

The James C. Gordon Co., Inc., distributer of Bosch radio in the St. Louis and Kansas City territories, has gone on the air with a distinctive program that is being broadcast Saturday afternoons, from 2:30 to 3 o'clock, over WDAF, Kansas City. WDAF uses the 610 kilocycle channel, which is six notches on the dial below KSD.

James C. Gordon, president of the sponsoring firm, said that these Bosch programs would be given by a salon orchestra and would be of the high-grade type to which listeners were accustomed to listen at night. He has signed a contract for a WDAF broadcast every Saturday afternoon for three months.

An idea of the character of the programs to be broadcast may be gained from the one printed herewith, which was scheduled to open the series yesterday afternoon:

Overture to Blossom Time ..... Romberg — Orchestra
Concert waltz, Mio Tesoro — Strauss — Orchestra
The Swan ..... Saint-Saens — Flute with orchestra.
Schon Rosmarin ..... Kreisler — Xlophone with orchestra.
Angels' Serenade ..... Braza — Cello with orchestra.
Janina ..... Drumm — Piano with orchestra.
The Only Girl ..... Herbert — Vibraharp with orchestra.
Paran Love Song ..... Brown — Trombone with orchestra

'NAT' SHILKRET VERSATILE AS MUSICIAN

At an age when most boy-children are banging unmusically upon tin drums, Nathaniel Shilkret was playing simple melodies on a clarinet. He has acquired the clarinet on his fifth birthday and two years later was playing clarinet solos in a 70-piece boys' orchestra. The orchestra's first public appearances were in New York. Later the youngsters went "on the road" and the child Shilkret was billed as the "boy prodigy of the clarinet."

Seven-year-old Nathaniel wasn't satisfied with the range of musical expression allotted him by the reed instrument. He climbed upon a piano stool and worked hard at exercises given by a teacher. In a few years his small fingers brought out the melodies of Beethoven, Bach and other master composers.

Music Was Fun.

All this time the youngster's ambition was to be a civil engineer. Music was fun—but not considered a possible life-work. He did not dream that his natural talent eventually would put him where he would be conducting orchestras for audiences of millions. That time came when he began broadcasting through network stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co.

He went to school. Mathematics, physics—all courses thought necessary to his planned career in engineering—were assiduously studied. Eventually music conquered him. He stopped his study of engineering in his sophomore year in college.

Always ahead of his years in his accomplishments, Shilkret was an active assistant of Walter Damrosch at the age of 16. His work then was at the piano.

While in his teens Shilkret played with the Russian Symphony Orchestra, using his clarinet, the New York Symphony Orchestra and the Barrere Ensemble.

Has Pleasing Tenor.

To become an accompanist for singers, the youth took voice lessons. He has a pleasing tenor but refuses to use it in public.

His next step upward in his musical career came when he was 24 years old. He joined the Victor Talking Machine Co. and went to work in developing a new style of orchestral scoring, especially adapted for making records.

He has been with the Victor company for 10 years, dividing his time between the phonograph laboratories and the NBC studios. He is especially well known through his work in arranging and conducting the Eveready and Maxwell House hours.

Shilkret, conducting, looks like a poet. He has a thin, sensitive face, its asceticism relieved by wrinkles of humor at mouth corners and eyes. His hair, straight and dark, sweeps down over an unusually high forehead.

Wears Bow Ties.

His direction of symphonic numbers is dignified and careful. He becomes vibrant when he leads his musicians into a syncopated number, using a gesture that reminds one of nothing else but a woman rubbing clothes on a small washboard.

He isn't interested in anything but music and his hobby is writing music. He has written and has had published a number of well-known selections.

Shilkret, according to persons close to him, never is too busy to give some of his time to young, struggling musicians who come to him for advice and encouragement.

Here and There on The Air

SIR HARRY LAUDER received $15,000 for his 15 minutes on the air, according to a representative of the National Broadcasting Co. He sang three songs, each netting him $5000. He introduced each song himself instead of calling upon an announcer.

Franz Kaltenborn, orchestra conductor and violin virtuoso, made his bow to NBC listeners recently in the Master Musicians program. Kaltenborn is a pioneer of summer night music in New York, leader of a symphonic string quartet bearing his name.

Al Bernard and Percy Hemus, wise-cracking "end men" of the Dutch Masters Minstrels, have methods all their own. Hemus swings in a hammock and the gags just come to him. Bernard rides for hours in the subway, keeping his ears open for good "cracks."

Hugh Walton, formerly of WOR, has joined WABC announcers and will soon be heard on programs broadcast over the Columbia system. He comes from the Pacific Coast, where he entered broadcasting in 1926 with KGW, Portland. Walton is 25 years old, tall, blond and handsome.

Announcers who read the daily stock market report over the NBC system must be more than careful. Clear, easily understood pronunciation is almost a mania with them. Before they go on the air they often read the report over several times to be familiar with the various terms. The fact that a mistake might cause some listener a loss is the reason.

"La Strada Solitaria," sung by Guiseppe de Benedetto in a recent NBC broadcast of "Neapolitan Nights," was first sung by Caruso at the home of Princess Pignatelli in Naples when Caruso was a student.

Pat Kelly made his debut as announcer for a nationwide broadcast in the Halsey-Stuart hour recently. One arm was still bandaged from fractures sustained in a motor accident months ago, but Kelly managed the complicated switching of networks with one hand.

Lannie Ross, National Broadcasting Co. tenor, is a Yale man and music forms only a small part of his interests. He studies law, runs around the block several times before breakfast, and has a fancy for poetry. At Yale he was a track star and also a star in the glee club.

He went to Yale to pursue a classical course and planned later to study law. The natural beauty of his voice made him a soloist. While he was thus occupying his time between lectures, a commercial sponsor of one of the NBC programs heard his songs and invited him to appear on the program. Ross accepted and his work was so fine that it won him a contract with the National Broadcasting Concert Bureau.

Pauline Haggard, NBC soprano, has her own "mike" technique when she sings sentimental songs. She pretends the "mike" is "him" and flirts with it.

Horace Heidt, leader of the Californians, heard in an R-K-O hour, didn't start out to be a musician. He was considered as a possible representative of America in the Olympic games during his school days at Culver Military Academy. Thomas Neeley of the NBC music department, recalls that the band leader on the day before his graduation pitched a one-hit game of baseball, broke a school shotput record, was captain of the swimming team, set a new record for the 50-yard swim, then boxed at night.

Alexander Kiroloff, conductor of Troika Bells, heard through the NBC System, recently spent a day in Coney Island and had dinner at a beach resort where recorded music entertains the diners. A record of Russian music was put on the machine. Kiroloff listened entranced. The music ended and Kiroloff rushed over to the proprietor.

"That music was grand," he said. "The orchestra rivals my own. I must know the name of it."

The proprietor handed him the record. Kiroloff had just listened to a record made by his own band under his own direction.

Charles D. Brown, radio actor, heard in NBC productions, has the second lead in "The Commodore Marries," a new Broadway production.

William C. "Bill" Munday Jr., announcer of football games and boxing matches and sports writer for the Atlanta Journal, twice recently has ridden from Atlanta to New York for a five minute sports talk on the Gillette program, heard each Friday night. He will probably repeat the trip at least twice in the near future.

Raymond Knight, N. B. C. production manager, played a role in a recent dramatic presentation that was particularly appropriate. Knight's part was that of a young lawyer. Before Knight became interested in writing and radio dramatics he was a lawyer, and, of course, a young one.

Ralph Wentworth, director of the Columbia Artists' Bureau, has secured for WABC the services of Lawrence Blundon Wills, virtuoso of the Marimba-xylophone who has been compared to masters of the pipe organ. He was formerly headliner with several national vaudeville circuits. He will be featured in the Dream Makers and Souvenir programs over WABC.

Alan Ray, Columbia System tenor, tells of his first experience before a microphone, several years ago at Station WEAO, in Columbus, O. The studio was padded and he could not near himself, so after the first few notes, thought he had lost his voice. Louder and louder he sang, but still no voice seemed to come.

Paula Hemminghaus, contralto, is a great believer in moods and uses beads to express them. When she is light-hearted she wears pearls. When she feels like conquering the world, she wears red and black beads, and when she is somewhat downcast the beads are pale lavender.

Edward H. Bierstadt was a writer of detective stories before going into radio. He is preparing a new NBC series on "Historic Trials."

John S. Young, NBC announcer, is known in Boston as a dramatic actor, having starred in many stage plays there before entering radio.

Vaughn de Leath, Olga Serlis, Walter Preston and Gerald Stopp all claim Illinois as their native state.

Percy Hemus, known to the radio audience for his work with the Dutch Master Minstrels, is trying his hand at writing radio plays. He was author of "The Jones' Celebrate the Fourth," heard over the NBC's System recently.

Kenneth Frickett is one of the few announcers who has never been a professional singer. He was fresh from college and looking for a job when he got his first chance as a spokesman.

Ludwig Laurier, conductor of the Slumber Ensemble and the Black and Gold Room Orchestra, is a believer in exercise. He walks three or four miles daily, even in summer.

Emil Seidel is a new conductor at N. B. C. He was one time with Paul Whiteman at the old Palais Royale and with "White's Scandals" for two seasons. Now he is conducting a "jazz" orchestra.

All Erla Models Built Around AC Screen Grid Tubes

Selected Walnut Used in Creating Some Interesting Cabinet Designs.

Erla receivers, which will be exhibited at the radio show by the F. Tiemann Stove and Hardware Co., have been built around the AC screen grid tubes, and are not merely screen grid sets.

Three of the AC screen grid tubes are used in the R. F. stages, and feed into a heater type power detector. The four tuning circuits are of the low loss type, and are tuned with a single control.

The first audio stage uses a heater type tube powered and biased for large handling capacity, and 45 type power tubes are employed in push pull and the final audio. The result, as a matter of course, is great distance range, selectivity and realism of production, as a dynamic speaker, designed to match the chassis, is built into each cabinet.

All parts of the set are fully shielded, and the chassis foundation is of extra heavy construction. Tip jacks in the chassis provided for phonograph pick-up. A "local-distance" switch on the front panel enables a user to suit the receiver to reception conditions.

A Model 31 Erla is a sliding door console done in selected walnut veneers, and has one-piece solid legs and sides. The top front panel is of Zebra wood, carefully matched, while side panels are of burl walnut. The doors are of diamond matched walnut and so constructed that they open all the way.

Model 30 is of de luxe design in selected walnut and hand-rubbed finish in two-tone effect and with rounded corner. Side panels are diamond matched walnut. The French doors are of highest grade imported burl walnut, built so that when opened they fit into recesses in the cabinet.

Model 32 is an open console and the same as Model 31, except that it has no doors.

The Erla is manufactured under R. C. A. license, and is said to have made unusual record on distance tuning.

Kennedy Screen Grid Sets Designed For Quality Audio

True Reproduction Sought as Well as Power and Distance Range.

The Kennedy screen grid circuit is built on a low, rugged base of drawn and formed 16-gauge, cold rolled steel. Complete shielding is employed by using aluminum shields over the coils and tubes, copper shielding below the base, while all of the steel parts used as shielding, as well as the under side of the main base, are heavily plated with copper. It will be shown by the Lance Electrical Supply Co., distributer, at the radio show.

The circuit comprises three tuned radio frequency stages using screen grid tubes, followed by a heater type power detector tube, the detector stage also being tuned. The antenna coupling system eliminates the need of "trimmers" or compensating devices and assists in giving high, uniform amplification over the entire broadcast band.

Part of the extremely high amplification possible with screen grid tubes is utilized to provide more selectivity, instead of an unusual amount of volume which would only overload the detector and audio tubes, causing distortion and freakish tuning. Sensitivity, however, is retained and increased in proportion to the added capabilities of the screen grid tubes.

Fidelity of sound reproduction has been stressed in the audio frequency amplifier. The first audio stage is resistance coupled, followed by a transformer coupled push-pull power output stage using two of the new type 245 tubes.

The amplifier and detector may be used for the electrical reproduction of phonograph records.

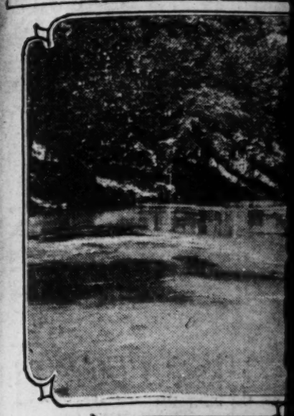
Beautiful Sc



One of Prettiest R Leads Southward

By ROBERT L. BRADLEY
Automobile Editor.

NOT the least delightful part of a motor trip to Van Buren, Mo., and the Big Spring State Park is the ride south from Ironton through the Ozarks over a gravel highway that is undoubtedly one of the most beautiful in the State. The ordinary state-wide thoroughfare pales into insignificance beside Missouri Route No. 21, as it is marked. Through verdant valleys, over abruptly climbing hills and through almost ceaseless woods, the road dips and winds from a point a few miles south of Ironton all the way to Van Buren.

It is not often that the journey to some picturesque weekend spot proves as interesting as the destination itself. There is usually some drawback that leaves a bad taste in the mouth, no matter how pleasing the rest of the trip may be.

But the 350-mile round trip from St. Louis to the Big Spring Park is an exception. In our opinion, the road south of Ironton is excelled by only one other Missouri Highway No. 8 between Steelville and Potosi.

favorite route to Van Buren is to leave St. Louis by the Lemay Ferry road, which becomes U. S. 61, follow the pavement to Farmington, there branching off westward over a country road, known as the Doe Run road, which connects with Missouri No. 21 just north of Pilot Knob.

Missouri 21 is followed through Ironton and Centerville to its junction with U. S. 60, which goes to Van Buren. A two-mile detour on Missouri 21 north of Pilot Knob, while surfacing is being laid, makes the Farmington route preferable to the De Soto-Potosi route.

One enters woods almost as soon as Ironton and Arcadia are left behind. Steep hills at various points have necessitated highway engineering feats similar to those in the Rockies. At one such a place, a rock wall has been constructed, cutting off a view of what is called the "Royal Gorge." Several score feet below the road, a small creek winds through a rugged, boulder-strewn course.

Dwellers in this section of the Ozarks exist in almost primitive fashion. Farms are ill-kept, run-down and productive of but sparse crops. The houses for the most part are rude, log shacks, with none of the conveniences that we of the city look on as our daily necessities. Old people and young are poorly clothed. Their outlook on life seems to be one of resignation and apathy. Some eke out a precarious existence by cutting timber and hauling it to the neighboring villages.

This very condition, pitiable though it is, lends an atmosphere of age and peace, even of romance, to the country. Isolated for years as it has been, because of lack of good roads and rail lines, it is not strange to note such conditions.

But it is a decided shock to find families of six and eight huddled together in two rooms.

All this one senses as one speeds south toward Van Buren. That town is beautifully situated in the valley of the Current River, with mountains on all sides. A new highway bridge has been built over the stream. From the hills on the southwest side of the river, one can see many miles in all directions.

In Van Buren hotel accommodations are adequate and reasonable. Many St. Louisans go each year to spend their vacations there.

Big Spring Park is five miles below Van Buren on another county dirt road which, although bumpy in spots, is nevertheless passable in all weather. With the exception of this short stretch, in fact, the route from Farmington is exceptionally smooth.

The county road skirts the north bank of the Current briefly, and then plunges into the quiet glade that surrounds the spring and provides ideal camping and picnic quarters for hundreds of tourists.

Second largest in the United States, the giant spring unleashes its huge volume of icy cold, blue

Through verdant valleys, over abruptly climbing hills and through almost ceaseless woods, the road dips and winds from a point a few miles south of Ironton all the way to Van Buren.

It is not often that the journey to some picturesque weekend spot proves as interesting as the destination itself. There is usually some drawback that leaves a bad taste in the mouth, no matter how pleasing the rest of the trip may be.

But the 350-mile round trip from St. Louis to the Big Spring Park is an exception. In our opinion, the road south of Ironton is excelled by only one other Missouri Highway No. 8 between Steelville and Potosi.

A favorite route to Van Buren is to leave St. Louis by the Lemay Ferry road, which becomes U. S. 61, follow the pavement to Farmington, there branching off westward over a country road, known as the Doe Run road, which connects with Missouri No. 21 just north of Pilot Knob.

Missouri 21 is followed through Ironton and Centerville to its junction with U. S. 60, which goes to Van Buren. A two-mile detour on Missouri 21 north of Pilot Knob, while surfacing is being laid, makes the Farmington route preferable to the De Soto-Potosi route.

One enters woods almost as soon as Ironton and Arcadia are left behind. Steep hills at various points have necessitated highway engineering feats similar to those in the Rockies. At one such a place, a rock wall has been constructed, cutting off a view of what is called the "Royal Gorge." Several score feet below the road, a small creek winds through a rugged, boulder-strewn course.

Dwellers in this section of the Ozarks exist in almost primitive fashion. Farms are ill-kept, run-down and productive of but sparse crops. The houses for the most part are rude, log shacks, with none of the conveniences that we of the city look on as our daily necessities. Old people and young are poorly clothed. Their outlook on life seems to be one of resignation and apathy. Some eke out a precarious existence by cutting timber and hauling it to the neighboring villages.

This very condition, pitiable though it is, lends an atmosphere of age and peace, even of romance, to the country. Isolated for years as it has been, because of lack of good roads and rail lines, it is not strange to note such conditions.

But it is a decided shock to find families of six and eight huddled together in two rooms.

All this one senses as one speeds south toward Van Buren. That town is beautifully situated in the valley of the Current River, with mountains on all sides. A new highway bridge has been built over the stream. From the hills on the southwest side of the river one can see many miles in all directions.

In Van Buren hotel accommodations are adequate and reasonable. Many St. Louis-ans elect each year to spend their vacations there.

Big Spring Park is five miles below Van Buren on another county dirt road which, although bumpy in spots, is nevertheless passable in all weather. With the exception of this short stretch, in fact, the route from Farmington is exceptionally smooth.

The county road skirts the north bank of the Current briefly and then plunges into the quiet glade that surrounds the spring and provides ideal camping and picnic quarters for hundreds of tourists.

Second largest in the United States, the giant spring unleashes its huge volume of icy cold, blue water from the base of a towering bluff. One glimpses the roaring surge of water with a feeling of awe. The estimated daily flow is from 174,000,000 to 543,000,000 gallons, enough to form a sizeable stream that flows only a short distance before it swells the meandering Current River.

Fishermen travel from all parts of Missouri to cast their bait in the Current, which is widely known for its trout and jack salmon and large and small mouth bass. The park also is in the center of a good hunting country and before long innumerable duck will pause on the migratory flights southward, in the many ponds and lakes that abound.

By making a breath-taking climb of the steep bluff that surmounts the source of the spring, one obtains a lovely view of the spring. The woods nearby are interlaced with narrow trails that make hiking a delight.

As autumn starts to decorate the forests with multi-colored leaves and to chill the air in the evenings, motorists in search of week-end trips would do well to head south toward Van Buren and Big Spring Park. It will be a worth while experience for those who have not made the trip.

Automobile Club Arranges Routes To Balloon Race

Of the 40,000 persons who are expected to attend the Gordon Bennett International Balloon Race starting from St. Louis Saturday, Sept. 28, it is probable that a large majority will be motorists who will drive to the balloon field adjacent to Manion's Park, 8900 South Broadway, in their cars.

Highways leading to St. Louis are in excellent condition for the out-of-town motorist. Street routings from the various points of entrance to the city leading to the vicinity of the balloon field have been worked out by the Automobile Club of Missouri so as to divide traffic among the available thoroughfares as evenly as possible and a survey of the vicinity of the balloon field within a three-quarter mile radius shows there should be available parking space on cross streets to accommodate several thousand cars.

A parking area to accommodate approximately 250 to 270 cars on the field proper has been designated and will be restricted to official cars. Parking for the general public is suggested on streets lying west of Broadway and it is likely that some property owners may see a chance to do a good day's business by converting private property into parking spaces at so much per park.

As traffic approaches the balloon field it will of necessity converge toward Broadway, but according to the Auto Club, three other streets may be used with virtually equal convenience and their use will tend to avoid producing traffic congestion on Broadway.

These thoroughfares are Pennsylvania avenue, which is paved from Eichelberger street to a point opposite Manion's Park and runs a block west of Broadway; Michigan and Virginia avenues, which approach the vicinity of the balloon field, and from which several east and west streets are cut through leading via Broadway directly to the field, namely, Koeln avenue, Nagel avenue, Blow street, Quincy street, Loughborough avenue, Haven street and Fillmore street.

The Auto Club's street routings are as follows:

Traffic from Lewis and Clark and Chain of Rocks Bridges south on Broadway to Taylor avenue, right turn on Taylor avenue to Florissant avenue, crossing into Kingshighway Northeast and Kingshighway boulevard, south to the end of Kingshighway at Gravois avenue, right one block on

Airplanes Open Up Wilderness To Fishermen

EVELETH, Minn., Sept. 14.—The airplane has at last won a century old battle between man and nature in turning one of the last wilderness sections in the United States into a fisherman's paradise. Lying only 100 miles north of Duluth, Minn., one of the main shipping ports on the Great Lakes, this section has scarcely ever heard the sound of a hunter's gun or the run of a fisherman's reel. In fact it is said that there are parts that a white man has never visited, and lakes which have never seen a boat.

Abounding in big game, with a dozen varieties of fish in the many lakes nestling among the virgin timber, nature has been successful until now in keeping this territory free from the inroads of civilization. Occasional Indian or native trappers have brought back such remarkable tales of the hunting and fishing possibilities that party after party has attempted to break nature's secure seal. With no trails, or landmarks, dense forests and long portages between lakes, even the most experienced guides have found it almost impossible to penetrate to the wild region beyond the fringe of civilization.

Party after party became lost in the wilderness, and after losing their bearings, several men starved to death while awaiting help. Others were found only in the nick of time, and so finally all attempts to reach what was known to be one of the best hunting and fishing grounds practically ceased.

This summer for the first time, parties of sportsmen are reaching what has come to be called "The Fisherman's Paradise" almost daily. Instead of weeks of preparation in picking guides, equipment and arranging a route, and then a hazardous back-breaking trip by trail and canoe lasting many days, and with doubt as to whether the way out would finally be found, the modern sportsman loads his canoes,

Electric Driven Gasoline Car, Built for Col. Green, Described

SOUTH DARTMOUTH, Mass., Sept. 14.—There has just been completed and delivered to Col. Edward H. R. Green, the multi-millionaire son of the late Hetty Green, a unique gas-electric, or electro-gasoline automobile, the first of its kind ever built. It was built especially for Col. Green, who, owing to an injury received years ago, has never been able to drive an ordinary gasoline type of car. He has used instead, when driving about his vast Round Hills estate here, stretched along the shores of Luzzards' Bay, a small car of the electric storage battery type. When away from the estate, in Florida and elsewhere, he has had a chauffeur drive him in a big car of the gasoline type. He has 20 cars of various kinds and makes, but the little electric is the only one he has ever been able to drive himself.

Now he has a powerful car which he can drive, without necessity of using a clutch and gear shift, for this car is without either. Another of the same type, but with a different body, is now being built to his order for use in Florida this coming winter.

The new car is a combination of gasoline and electric power. The simplest way to regard it is to consider it as a machine with an electric transmission, instead of a mechanical transmission. What the designers and builders did in this case was to take a new standard car of the cabriolet type with a six-cylinder sleeve valve engine capable of developing 60 horsepower and after all the transmission had been taken out, put a generator and motor in its place, with proper connections to the rear axle.

The generator is bolted directly to the flywheel of the gasoline engine, which is the primary power plant. The generator revolves at the same speed as the engine, thus doing away with need for clutch and gear shift. The power generated by the engine through the dynamo is transmitted through short cables to a motor which is coupled, by means of a universal joint, to a short, flexible driveshaft, at the end of which is a second universal joint connecting with a worm drive shaft running to the rear axle.

Because of the necessity of using a worm drive, the rear axle is provided with gears that have a reduction value of eight and a quarter to one, instead of the standard four and seven-sixteenths to one.

To start the car and attain high speed after the ignition switch has been turned on and the engine is running in neutral at idling speed requires only three operations or motions. First the battery is closed by a field switch located close to the right hand, attached to the seat. Then the controller is thrown over into the forward position and the operator steps on the gas. It is only necessary to step on the accelerator for subsequent operations, such as increasing speed, and the battery field switch and controller are not touched again until the car is parked, or it is necessary to back the car.

Pushing the control lever half way down puts the engine into neutral and pushing it all the way down throws the motor into reverse for backing. In coming to a dead stop on a hill, with this electric drive car, there is no danger of its rolling backward while shifting gears, as stepping on the accelerator is all that is necessary to move it forward and against the pull of gravity.

The car delivered to Col. Green has a foot brake pedal placed where the clutch pedal is ordinarily, and an emergency brake at his right hand acts on the rear wheels directly. The car may also be brought to a quick stop in an emergency by throwing the switch that reverses the current in the fields of the motor. While this particular car is geared only for 40 miles an hour, by providing the proper gear ratio in the rear axle, a car may be developed of almost any speed desired. This speed limitation by means of

Costs State Million Each Biennium to Collect Auto Fees

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 14.—The State of Missouri spends nearly a million dollars every two years to collect about $20,000,000 in automobile license fees.

Appropriations made by the last general assembly provide $913,325 for the administration of the automobile registration department for 1929-30. The largest item is $249,425 for purchase of the tags issued to automobiles, trucks, motor cycles, and chauffers badges.

Salary items include 19 clerks at $2400 a year; 16 clerks at $1800; 12 at $1500; 30 at $1200; and 30 more at $1020. Other items provide salaries for three inspectors at $1800 a year each, and $130,000 for postage.

Virginia Moves Its History to Highways by System of Signs

Series of 800 Markers Point Way for Motorists to Make Pilgrimages Among Scenes With Patriotic Settings.

THE Commonwealth of Virginia has solved the problem of accommodating the demands of the motoring public for highways that take the shortest distance between two given points and yet visit the out-of-the-way places where unaccommodating headliners in American history performed the deeds that made them famous. It being physically impossible to accommodate the highways to history and still obtain the aforesaid results, Virginia is moving her history to the highways.

If, perchance, in roaring down some part of the 2500 miles of fine hard-surfaced Virginia road you should see a line of cars ahead frantically and noisily applying brakes, you will immediately know that the Jones family from Ashtabula has suddenly slowed to a walk in the leading auto, in order more easily to read a roadside inscription. It might even be this one, which illustrates both Virginia's method of transporting her history to the motorist, and the reason why the Joneses were unable to digest its message while traveling at 35 per.

"Gunston Hall, several miles to the east. The land was patented in 1651 by Richard Turney, who was hanged for taking part in Bacon's rebellion in 1676. The house was built in 1758 by the fourth George Mason, author of the Virginia bill of rights."

It might be said by way of explanation that Virginia has so much history that it has been found difficult to confine it, even in 50-word doses, to the 800 markers which make an historic highway of practically the entire Virginia State highway system. It is a woeful fact that many United States citizens might even be befuddled to just exactly explain why George Mason and his bill of rights has a place in history, but no matter how poor the motorist's knowledge of history may be, he will be unable to travel many miles in Virginia without seeing in these roadside inscriptions a great many names without which the school history of his boyhood would indeed have been a poor thing.

George Washington, Lafayette, Rochambeau, John Smith, Pocahontas, Richard Henry Lee, Patrick Henry, Henry Clay and Thomas Jefferson, stand out in bold type on almost every highway in Virginia. While the motorist may hesitate to drive his high powered car along the dusty county thoroughfares which lead back to the rural seclusions where "the mill boy of the slashes," "the father of his country," "the author of the Monroe doctrine," "the Christian Soldier," "the sword, the pen and tongue of the Revolution," or any number of the other figures which helped carve from a vast wilderness these United States, he cannot miss seeing in a general way the section of Virginia where in the days of coaches and lone horsemen, these great Virginians lived.

And if, perchance, the visitor is not interested in the dusty old pages of history which deal with the days of Powhatan and Indian massacres, of Braddock and the French and Indian Wars, of George Rogers Clark and the conquest of the Northwest, or of Lewis and Clark and the Louisiana territory, he will find just as much of interest which took place less than a hundred years ago. Corn fields now cover many a bloody battlefield of the war between the States, and most of the minnie balls have been picked up from Chancellorsville and Cold Harbor, from Petersburg and New Market battlefields, but the glory of men of North and South whose blood has enriched Virginia's fields and the pages of American history, live on in many memories. They also live, as do the stories of their deeds, in the metal highway inscriptions which dot Virginia highways, and with apologies to the immortal Admiral Schley "there is history enough for us all," and Virginia has made no descriminations in presenting it.

For if the Jones family of Ashtabula was intent on history of the War Between the States they might stop before any number of markers telling of the defeats of Southern arms, but they would also find many which would be highly appealing to the Ashby's of Louisville.

All the romance of Virginia is tersely hinted at in these metal signs. To the man of imagination the following is good as a book, written by his favorite author:

"Here Mosby attacked Sheridan's supply train, August 13, 1864, capturing 600 horses and mules and 300 prisoners," but it should be supplemented by the following, only three miles further on the highway:

"Near this spot several of Mosby's men were executed by order of General Custer, September 22, 1864."

What could be more romantic than another reference to Mosby in the following sign:

"Mosby, entering the town in the night of March 8, 1863, captured the Union General Stoughton." Not half the story is told here, but at Fairfax courthouse, where the sign is located, stands the parsonage where Stoughton, well within the Union lines, had boasted of how he would destroy Mosby's command. The marker also fails to mention the large number of mules captured by the raider, but President Lincoln, when informed of the incident, bemoaned the loss of the animals more than that of the General.

Virginia's modern history is also told on the roadside markers. The location of World War training camps, the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson, World War President, and other historial events of a modern nature, are among the inscriptions.

Many a historian would benefit by the reference he would see on Virginia markers. Men with an industrial interest will also find it absorbing to locate on these cold slabs of iron the progress of commercial development. From one marker is gleaned the fact that nearby a wharf was built to ship copper abroad, while on another is told the story of the first iron furnace. Many iron furnaces are marked, and one bit of history which will be news to most visitors is recorded as follows:

"Old Telegraph Line."

"One of the first telegraph lines in the world, a part of the Washington-New Orleans Telegraph Co., was [illegible] from Washington to Petersburg an 1847. From this the road took its name."

On the Eastern Shore of Virginia is another which is of general interest, because it is little known:

"Arlington. Five miles southeast on the south side of Old Plantation Creek, is Arlington, built by John Custis before 1680. There Sir William Berkeley, when driven from Jamestown by Bacon in 1676, made his headquarters and thence he sailed back to Jamestown." It was after the "Arlington" that the world-famous estate of Robert E. Lee, now the National Cemetery, across the Potomac from Washington, obtained its name.

Nor does Virginia lack in interest for women travelers. What could be more interesting to the modern girl than this marker?

"Little Hunting Creek. Margaret

1930 Packards Have Four-Speed Transmissions

Improvements Noted in Body and Chassis, Lower and Longer.

New models of the Packard eight, which have been awaited with much interest since Aug. 1 when the Packard Co. announced they would be forthcoming in the early fall are announced today. They were placed on display at the Berry Motor Car Co., 2201 Locust boulevard, Thursday.

They are characteristically Packard in appearance although with subtle changes that add much to the proverbial Packard beauty. Comfort, convenience, beauty and safety might be called the key notes in the new Packards. Changes in the chassis and in the bodies add much in all four of these attributes which the car has always been credited with having in big measure. Packard has increased facilities of its body factory and now is in complete control of building quality and beauty into its bodies as well as its motors and chassis.

With three complete lines and, in addition, the almost unlimited choices offered in individual custom bodies by the best known custom body builders of the country, Packard now completely covers the fine car field.

There are 11 different types in each line of cars with bodies made within Packard's own shops and four different wheel bases. They are known as the Packard standard eight with prices ranging from $2675 for the five-passenger sedan to $2775 for the seven-passenger sedan-limousine; the Packard custom eight with prices from $3190 to $3885 and the Packard deluxe eight from $4585 to $5350.

The five-passenger sedan in the standard eight line has a wheel base of 127½ inches and the other 10 body models have a wheel base of 134½ inches. All models of the custom eight have a wheel base of 140½ inches and deluxe cars are all on the 145½-inch wheel base chassis.

The Packard lines are retained in conformity with the company's policy of years. They are given added beauty, however, by a broad moulding which has a graceful curve at the back and which sweeps forward over the cowl. Another moulding follows along the bottom body sill. The cars are also 1½ inches lower. This with the new mouldings and method of striping gives them the appearance of being even longer than they are.

The new models have all the improvements which would be expected to be found in a new Packard. As the company explains, it cannot afford to deal in novelties. The life of the car is so great that everything it invents and adopts, even to accessories, must first be proven in exacting tests both in the factory testing laboratories and on the car itself at the company's $1,000,000 proving grounds.

In the belief that people now are spending more of their time in their motor cars and that there has been a big return of the use of the automobile for pleasure, Packard has endeavored to work more individuality and greater comfort and convenience adjustable to the individual owner into the car. Many features of the new models, both added convenience and standard operating units, can be adjusted to the desires of the owner.

Inspection of the new Packards makes quite apparent that there has been a dominance of the feminine influence in many features of their design. First of course there is the beauty of appearance of the whole car. Then there are the great many features incorporated into the cars which reduce the conscious efforts of driving to the minimum. Added to these points are the adjustable features to suit operation of each car as well to the dainty miss as the six foot man.

As indicating how far Packard has carried the individualizing of its bodies, there are small hand-made silk nets fastened to the heavily upholstered arm rests in the De Luxe enclosed cars. These cars also have a deep plush robe for the rear compartment floor covering. Solid black walnut is used effectively in the interior trim of the cars. The inclosed types have unusual vanity and smoking sets, those in the standard eight being worked into the heavily upholstered arm rests. There are broad carpeted foot rests, unusual hand holds, effective broad lace trim and beading and a great many other effective little personal touches to add beauty to the interior.

Even the bottoms of the auxiliary seats in the seven-passenger standard eight sedan are finished with heavily pleated upholstery to match the rest of the car interior.

Each line has four different open car types, the roadster, seven-passenger touring, phaeton and sport phaeton. All of the open cars are even more rakish and sleek in appearance than ever and have many features of upholstering and fitting to add to their attractiveness.

Knobs at each side of the instrument boards on all models open doors and discolse compartments or lockers built into heretofore waste space on most motor cars. On one side ample space is offered for gloves or purse, while on the other is room for tobacco, pipes or other small articles.

An ivory-like material is used for choke and spark pull rods, for the light and throttle switches on the steering wheel and a decorative effect is obtained in the steering wheel hub by a ring of the same maetrial and a larger horn button. Another ivory knob on the instrument board when pulled out discloses a reading lamp for the driver's seat.

From the ceiling of the front compartment of all enclosed cars shades lower to guard the eyes when driving into the sun or glaring lights. They can be set at any angle or flicked back up flat against the top. Both the drivers' seats and the steering wheels are adjustable.

Unusual vision is given in the front compartment by a front body pillar that has been made just as narrow as possible, yet preserving the same body strength.

Another safety feature lies in the fact that windshields and windows are of non-shatterable glass, methods now having been discovered for making it of a quality which will meet the standards fixed by Packard for its plate glass. As a part of these new methods the glass is laminated in washed air and with both humidity and temperature of the air rigidly controlled.

A four-speed transmission has been designed and built by Packard for the new models. It retains the same practically wear-proof nickel steel gears, with all gear teeth ground and is no more complicated than a three-speed transmission. It has low, second, third and direct speeds which provide easy, quick and quiet gear shifting.

Each spring is covered with graphite grease and then wrapped in canvas. A flexible metal cover around the spring. This permanent spring lubrication and deeper seat cushions make a big addition to the comfort and ease obtained with the Packard shock absorbing system introduced a year ago. The left front spring trunnion bracket which forms an important part of the shock absorbing sysem and which eliminated "shimmy" and wheel "whip" is retained.

With its instant chassis lubricator Packard severel years paraparaphrased the adage that "a stitch in time saves 'nine" and proved that "a drop of oil today is worth a gallon next month." The chassis lubricating system has been extended to include 48 points on the chassis which are oiled every day with no greater effort than that required to wind a watch.

The straight eight motor, pioneered by Packard in this country and now adopted for a great many cars both in America and Europe, is, of course, found in the new models. As developed by Packard this type of power plant is so simple as to defy any radical improvements but a number of refinements are seen in the engine.

A new carburetor has been developed by Packard. It is said to have many advantages in smoothness of operation, acceleration, speed, quietness, economy and easy startink. Steel backed bearings and several other features found by Packard to be of advantage in building airplane motors are incorporated into the new engines. There also is a new soft lift cam shaft. The sturdy crankshaft, rigidly held in nine main bearings, is said to be, if possible, even smoother in operation. The entire power plant is declared to be even quieter, smoother and more powerful.

As in previous Packards, the pistons are automatically lubricated when the choke rod of the motor is pulled out, an arrangement which pumps oil onto the cylinder walls at the time it is most needed. This system is asserted to have reduced cylinder wear greatly and to have added much to the life of the engine.

Packard has gone to such lengths in reducing conscious driving efforts and in safeguarding the car against any possible unconscious or forgetful neglect that there is now even an automatic control of current from the generator. With this device there is no necessity in long cross country trips for the car lights to be burned through the day as a preventive against overcharging the battery or burning out the other electrical equipment.

Packard sums up its new cars, in its announcement, with a friendly challenge for the public to ride in the new cars, drive them and then to mention something it would like and cannot find in them.

Record Auto Keys.

Now that each car has its individual set of keys it is more important than ever that the owner follow that old but wise counsel to make a record of key numbers. On some lines it means the replacement of locks when the keys are lost.

Two of the New Packards at the Berry Motor Co.

Equally graceful and modish is the 740 sport phaeton for five.

Pennzoil Used By Pikes Peak Race Winners

For the third consecutive year Pennzoil-lubricated stock cars made a clean sweep of the eleventh annual Pike's Peak hill climb—the greatest test of hill climbing known to motors. First place was won by Glen Shultz in the Studebaker President eight, who covered the 11 9-10 miles in 21 minutes 43 4-10 seconds — the fastest time ever made by a stock car over this course. Second place was won by Ab Jenkins in a Studebaker President, third place by Ralph Hepburn in a Studebaker Commander, and both of these cars were also lubricated with Pennzoil motor oil and Pennzoil gear case oil.

Phil H. Brockman Again in Business As Peerless Agent

Col. Phil H. Brockman, former head of the St. Louis police commissioners, one-time president of the St. Louis Auto Dealers' Association, and head of the dissolved DeLuxe Automobile Co., announces that he has re-entered the automobile business, at the head of the Phil H. Brockman Automobile Co.

He will again handle the Peerless line as the local distributer.

Col. Brockman has taken oxer the building at 5033-37 Delmar boulevard, which was formerly occupied by the Kohler Motor Co., and is completely remodeling and redecorating the interior. Floor space is 66x175 feet.

Personnel of the new company is the same as that of the old DeLuxe Automobile Co., consisting of Brockman as president; George Willett, general manager; William P. Murphy, retail and used car manager; Harry Dulle, service manager, and S. H. Good, parts and purchases department.

Flying Auto Planned.

An Italian aviator and automobile mechanic, now living in Havana, has invented and perfected what he calls an airplane-automobile—a vehicle which can run on land and fly in the air. It has the appearance of a regular two-seated roadster, but the inventor says it can be converted into a monoplane within a few minutes.

Reliability of Willys-Knight Shown on Trip

The outstanding reliability, comfort and economical operation of the Willys-Knight 70-B under every type of road and weather condition in long and sustained trips were demonstrated in a journey of 3684 miles from Los Angeles, Cal., to Colby, Kan., and return. The car, which was a coach model, was driven by E. A. Phillips, Los Angeles Deputy Sheriff, and carried four passengers besides the driver.

The entire journey, Phillips reported, disclosed the exceptional riding qualities of the Willys-Knight coach, even where the roads are deeply rutted. At one point in the journey a 10-mile stretch of mud was encountered, requiring nearly four hours to plow through it. Despite this grueling test, the engine responded to every demand of the driver and brought the party through safely and comfortably.

Illinois to Improve Road Intersections

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 14.—Route intersections of Illinois' hard road system are to be changed from unkempt plots to beauty spots, according to plans of Rodney Brandon, state director of Public Welfare, and Harry H. Cleaveland, director of the State Department of Public Works and Buildings. Markers are to be placed at these intersections and shrubbery and trees are to be planted. State institutions nearby are to aid in the work of beautifying the intersections, state institutions also to manufacture the markers.

Cities Service Has Record Earnings

Net earnings of the Cities Service Co. for the year ending July 31 totaled $37,961,996, with earnings for July reaching $3,423,683, the company reports. This is a new high record for the company's earnings, which have steadily increased over the last 15 years.

Improved 1930 Cadillacs and La Salles Here

Mechanical Advances, Safety Features Embodied on Latest Models.

For its twenty-eighth annual presentation of new models, the Cadillac Motor Car Co. announces a new line of Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods. These new models are newly styled throughout, are faster, roomier and more comfortable than ever before; are powered by enlarged and refined V-type eight-cylinder engines, and are vastly improved in flexility, handling ease and security.

A complete selection of the new cars was placed on display at the Oliver Cadillac Co., 4100 Laclede avenue, St. Louis distributer, yesterday.

Lawrence P. Fisher, president and general manager, in a statement issued in connction with the announcemet, says:

"The traditional excellence of Cadillac is in these new cars in fuller measure than ever before. It is an excellence brought fully up to the minute, improved in every detail of styling, powering, luxury and control. These are the finest cars Cadillac has ever built, modern cars, measuring fully up to the exacting expectations of the most critical buyers. Their inbuilt value is greater than any other cars we have ever produced in them. Cadillac has fully met its tremendous responsibility as the standard by which all other motor cars are judged."

Literally scores of body refinements have been included to make these the most luxurious and spacious cars Cadillac has ever produced. Their pleasing lines are the result of the work of trained artists of Fisher Body, Fleetwood and the General Motors art and color section, achieved by bringing a new and fresh viewpoint to the problem of body design.

Rear seats in all body models for the Cadillac chassis and in all open La Salles are wider, those for the former being four inches and for the open La Salles two. The bodies of the Cadillac seven-passenger sedan and seven-passenger imperial are longer by three inches.

The front compartment in all cars has been made more roomy by recessing the instrument panel into the cowl. The center of gravity is lower and the low-swung appearance is attained with even greater seating comfort and without diminishing the headroom. Front seats are easily adjustable to the requirements of the individual driver.

Several changes in body design will be noted. Visors are metal, of the smart cadet type. Windshields are inclined in order to deflect the glare from the headlights of cars approaching from the rear. Open models have cowl louvers. All metal parts throughout the entire body construction, including frame and other chassis parts, are separated by an anti-squeak material to eliminate squeaks and rattles. Special rubber shims are provided between the frame and body, forming a cushion which absorbs all noises. Body sills have been strengthened to provide additional stability.

Roofs are built from slats of selected wood two inches wide, placed 1½ inches apart. This construction forestalls all roof weaving and results in greater quietness. To eliminate all possible noise the slats are set on friction tape where they join the cross bars and are held permanently in place at the front by strips of band iron. Side and quarter panels of the roof are covered with metal, giving a pleasing effect and adding greatly to the body rigidity. The central roof section is covered by a waterproof fabric.

Upholstery designs for the enlarged interiors are offered in new mohair, broadcloths or whipcords. Metalware in each group of cars is from the special designs of master silversmiths. Lighting fixtures are of new design never before utilized in automobile coachcraft.

Even more numerous are the chassis improvements. Both engines are more powerful, remarkably responsive at low speeds and, in conjunction with the famous exclusive syncro-mesh transmission, introduced a year ago, provide a super-abundance of power with tremendous getaway for every emergency and road condition.

The simplicity and accessibility of the V-type eight-cylinder engine is more evident in the trim engine appearance of these cars than ever before. Greater protection from moisture and dirt is provided by the new distributor arrangement. The new spark plug covers and metal conduits afford further protection from the elements.

Both cars include still further factors of safety than even the previous models, in steering, braking, deeper frame, and new duadraulic shock absorbers. They are easier handling. To drive them at sustained high speeds over uneven roads involves no discomfort or fatigue. Parking is simpler. Maneuvering them through traffic is a matter of deft directing, never of pulling the car about. Windshields, doors and all windows are equipped with security plate, non-shattering glass.

Starting is easier than ever before. The new double reduction starter turns the engine faster with the same expenditure of current, thereby placing less strain on the battery, giving longer life and easier starting in cold weather.

The more powerful engines have also a new design of combustion chamber which raises the power output to a greater degree. Pistons, of special formula annealed cast nickel iron, have four rings, one-

Improved 1930 Cadillacs and La Salles Here

Mechanical Advances, Safety Features Embodied on Latest Models.

For its twenty-eighth annual presentation of new models, the Cadillac Motor Car Co. announces a new line of Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods. These new models are newly styled throughout, are faster, roomier and more comfortable than ever before; are powered by enlarged and refined V-type eight-cylinder engines, and are vastly improved in flexibility, handling ease and security.

A complete selection of the new cars was placed on display at the Oliver Cadillac Co., 4100 Laclede avenue, St. Louis distributer, yesterday.

Lawrence P. Fisher, president and general manager, in a statement issued in connction with the announcemet, says:

"The traditional excellence of Cadillac is in these new cars in fuller measure than ever before. It is an excellence brought fully up to the minute, improved in every detail of styling, powering, luxury and control. These are the finest cars Cadillac has ever built, modern cars, measuring fully up to the exacting expectations of the most critical buyers. Their inbuilt value is greater than any other cars we have ever produced in them. Cadillac has fully met its tremendous responsibility as the standard by which all other motor cars are judged."

Literally scores of body refinements have been included to make these the most luxurious and spacious cars Cadillac has ever produced. Their pleasing lines are the result of the work of trained artists of Fisher Body, Fleetwood and the General Motors art and color section, achieved by bringing a new and fresh viewpoint to the problem of body design.

Rear seats in all body models for the Cadillac chassis and in all open La Salles are wider, those for the former being four inches and for the open La Salles two. The bodies of the Cadillac seven-passenger sedan and seven-passenger Imperial are longer by three inches.

The front compartment in all cars has been made more roomy by recessing the instrument panel into the cowl. The center of gravity is lower and the low-swung appearance is attained with even greater seating comfort and without diminishing the headroom. Front seats are easily adjustable to the requirements of the individual driver.

Several changes in body design will be noted. Visors are metal, of the smart cadet type. Windshields are inclined in order to deflect the glare from the headlights of cars approaching from the rear. Open models have cowl louvers. All metal parts throughout the entire body construction, including frame and other chassis parts, are separated by an anti-squeak material to eliminate squeaks and rattles. Special rubber shims are provided between the frame and body, forming a cushion which absorbs all noises. Body sills have been strengthened to provide additional stability.

Roofs are built from slats of selected wood two inches wide, placed 1½ inches apart. This construction forestalls all roof weaving and results in greater quietness. To eliminate all possible noise the slats are set on friction tape where they join the cross bars and are held permanently in place at the front by strips of band iron. Side and quarter panels of the roof are covered with metal, giving a pleasing effect and adding greatly to the body rigidity. The central roof section is covered by a waterproof fabric.

Upholstery designs for the enlarged interiors are offered in new mohair, broadcloths or whipcords. Metalware in each group of cars is from the special designs of master silversmiths. Lighting fixtures are of new design never before utilized in automobile coachcraft.

Even more numerous are the chassis improvements. Both engines are more powerful, remarkably responsive at low speeds and, in conjunction with the famous exclusive syncro-mesh transmission, introduced a year ago, provide a super-abundance of power with tremendous getaway for every emergency and road condition.

The simplicity and accessibility of the V-type eight-cylinder engine is more evident in the trim engine appearance of these cars than ever before. Greater protection from moisture and dirt is provided by the new distributor arrangement. The new spark plug covers and metal conduits afford further protection from the elements.

Both cars include still further factors of safety than even the previous models, in steering, braking, deeper frame, and new duadraulic shock absorbers. They are easier handling. To drive them at sustained high speeds over uneven roads involves no discomfort or fatigue. Parking is simpler. Maneuvering them through traffic is a matter of deft directiing, never of pulling the car about. Windshields, doors and all windows are equipped with security plate, non-shattering glass.

Starting is easier than ever before. The new double reduction starter turns the engine faster with the same expenditure of current, thereby placing less strain on the battery, giving longer life and easier starting in cold weather.

The more powerful engines have also a new design of combustion chamber which raises the power output to a greater degree. Pistons, of special formula annealed cast nickel iron, have four rings, one more than heretofore. Three compression rings are above the wrist pin, with a special oil regulating ring below.

Larger valves, both intake and exhaust, have been still further improved by eliminating all interference to the passage of gasses into and from the combustion chamber, affording higher operating efficiency. The mechanisms are enclosed, with stems automatically lubricated. Intake valves are of tungsten steel, exhaust of silico-chrome steel.

The carburetor for each car is wholly of Cadillac design and manufacture. It insures uniform distribution of the gas vapor with maximum efficiency and economy. It has three thermostats which make seasonal adjustment unnecessary. An automatic throttle prevents "surging" and "fluttering" of the air valve during rapid acceleration.

A heat control valve in the left exhaust manifold is automatically operated. When closed it deflects the exhaust gasses back from the left cylinders through the intake header jacket to the right exhaust manifold, thus giving maximum heat for the carburetor almost immediately after starting. This eliminates the carburetor control on the dash and frees the owner from worry as to whether his adjustment is proper.

The quietness of the V-type engine is augmented by a new silicon aluminum alloy special treated crankcase, with a strength-to-weight ratio of more than twice that of an iron casting. Coupled with its non-resonant quality, its extreme rigidity in both the horizontal and vertical planes gives freedom from rumbles and vibrations. Its walls are adequately reinforced by ribbing and support the crankshaft and camshaft bearings.

One of the important new safety factors is the completely harmonized steering system. A special steering modulator at the forward end of the left front spring, consisting of a flexible shackle held by four coil springs cancels the effect of front wheel "shimmy" and "tramp" at high speeds and on any type of road surface. This enables the cars to travel at high speeds under all conditions without driver fatigue or effort. Ball bearings are used throughout to lessen friction. Long life of the steering sector is assured by the use of a new metal, nitraloy, one of the hardest metals known to science.

The safety-mechanical four-wheel braking system also provides a wider margin of safety. Each brake consists of a pair of articulated shoes operated by a floating cam. The shoes are cast from aluminum alloy, insuring remarkable rigidity, and have exceptional depth of web. The brake lining gives unusually long life since the cams operating the shoes are not stationary and can center themselves accordingly to compensate for unequal wear.

The articulated shoe construction eliminates so-called "toe" or "heel" contact. Wrapping action either in forward or reverse is so uniformly distributed that brake seizure is an impossibility. The shoe also has one other great advantage. The whole braking area is effective at all times. As a consequence the brakes will not overheat. Soft lead tips on the long shoes pick up and absorb any particles which might score the drums.

Fifteen roller bearings in each brake transmit foot pressure exerted on the brake pedal direct to the system without minimizing it through friction loss, thus insuring easy braking action.

The brakes' remarkable efficiency is augmented by their being wholly enclosed within the drums, thus avoiding the usual troubles caused by mud or water. Adjustment, required only infrequently, is made by a single nut on each wheel, easily accessible from the outside.

Virginia Simplifies Problem of Tourists Seeing Historic Points

Brent, secretary to Lord Baltimore, the first woman in America to demand a vote, patented land here in 1663. Augustine Washington lived here from 1734 to 1739 and here George Washington passed most of his infancy."

For the man interested in religion this marker should have peculiar interest: "Founder of Presbyterianism. Five miles west was the home of the Rev. Francis Makemie; established in Maryland the first Presbyterian church; later moved to Accomac and married. He died here in 1706."

For the motorist whose time, or urge, necessitates his speeding across Virginia too rapidly to read at ease the wording on the historic markers, the Commonwealth has prepared a booklet, giving all the inscriptions in full, and it can be obtained by applying either to the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce or the State Conservation and Development Commission of Virginia. In this way the traveler can catch with his eye the number of the marker he is passing and read at his ease the inscription from the booklet which he will be carrying. These booklets are being furnished the American Automobile Association and can be obtained at almost any hotel in Washington or the State of Virginia and in many other places.

Virginia, having brought history to her highways, and having improved these thoroughfares until today they compare favorably with those of most states in the Union, now seeks to bring visitors to her domain. During the last 10 years wonderful progress has been made in her hotel accommodations, her tourist camps are models, and State inspection of water supplies has given the visitor protection against infection. This year Virginia is entertaining almost twice as many visitors as ever before, and they are thoroughly enjoying the new emphasis on their historic surroundings furnished by the markers. Other states are inquiring about the Virginia system and soon the motorist may be able to take a whole course in history from the window of his sedan.

Virginia, "first in the heart of the nation," mother of Presidents and from whose broad domain half a dozen states have been carved, is a delightful adjunct to a visit to Washington.

Keep Cups Full.

In spite of the modernization of chassis lubrication systems generally the rear wheel bearings, which do a lot of hard work, still are greased through old-fashioned grease cups in a great many cases. It is easy to forget the cups when lubricating the car. In the old days when all points were so lubricated these were among the first thoughts of the car owner.

Grebe Motor Co. Moves Into New Sales Quarters

Formal opening of the quarters of the Grebe Motor Co., 3600 South Kingshighway boulevard, was held yesterday, with more than 2000 persons passing through the showrooms and shops. A representative showing of Oldsmobile six and Viking eight cars, handled by the company, was made in connection with the opening.

The new building occupies a commanding position and houses 7500 square feet of space, of which the new car showroom has 2060. The remainder is used for the service, parts and maintenance departments. The showroom has been beautifully decorated, with special attention paid to the lighting effects. The maintenance and service department has been designed for efficiency, equipment including metal work benches, tool racks, compressed air and electrical outlets and all the special tools used in repairing Oldsmobiles and Vikings.

The company, composed of W. C., O. H., August and Edmund Grebe, brothers, has handled Oldsmobile for several years and the Viking since its recent introduction. Business of the company has been expanding steadily.

To Ban Trucks on Week-Ends.

In an effort to relieve week-end traffic jams, a resolution has been approved by the County Board to bar slow-moving milk trucks, moving vans and other low-speed vehicles from Cook County and Chicago highways on Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

Clutch Not Changed.

Clutches may have undergone several changes in recent times, but none of them have eliminated the dangers of riding the clutch pedal.

Handsome Home of Grebe Motor Co.

Formal opening of the new quarters at 3600 South Kingshighway boulevard, was held yesterday, with more than 2000 persons visiting the new building.

Le Baron Stutz Fleet to Toledo, O.

Impressive evidence of the growing demand among fine car buyers for individualized body designs was seen here as a caravan comprised entirely of LeBaron custom-built models left the Stutz Motor Car Co. plant en route to P. E. Bundy, State distributer in Toledo, O. A few years ago LeBaron's ultra smart creations were rarely seen outside of the New York salons. This year a large proportion of the entire LeBaron output is being mounted on the Stutz chassis for delivery in all parts of the world.

Boys Guide Traffic.

Boy Scouts, selected for their sturdiness and intelligence, have been placed on the corners of all busy thoroughfares in Warsaw to guide pedestrians through the street traffic.

Roosevelt Wins Light Car Class On Pikes Peak

The superiority of eight-cylinder performance again was demonstrated in the annual Pike's Peak hill climb on Labor day, when a Marmon-built Roosevelt straight eight won the first prize in the light stock car class. This class is open to all cars with a factory list price of less than $1000.

Entered independent of factory co-operation by the Marmon dealer in Colorado Springs, the Roosevelt was driven by William P. Bentrup, Marmon-Roosevelt service manager in Colorado Springs, a veteran mountain driver and winner of the Pike's Peak event in 1927.

The time made by the Roosevelt over the 12-mile race course was 26 minutes 56.2 seconds.

September Auto Production to Exceed August's

Observer Predicts More Than 5,000,000 Output in 1929.

By FRED KINGSBURY,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 14.—Automobile factories so far this month have been on a level of activity that undoubtedly will show a total production for the entire month which will equal, if not exceed the output for August. Demand for motor cars especially from the New England states and the Far West and Southwest is exceptionally heavy at the present time, according to factory sales officials.

For several years past demand has been heavier following the summer vacation period. This has shown a rather sharp advance this year and optimistic reports are constantly being received from dealers in all sections of the United States.

Production of automobiles in the United States and Canada for the first seven months of the year was 3,929,545. Automobile makers of Detroit seem to be confident that the close of the year will see a production mark in excess of 5,000,000 units. Some even go so far as to predict a total of 5,500,000.

At the present time orders from the great wheat belts of the United States and Canada are growing heavier. Not only are passenger cars in the ascendency, but there is a heavy demand for trucks, tractors and other farm machinery powered with gasoline engines.

One well-known manufacturer in Detroit says that the farms of the United States are becoming more motorized every year, as agriculturists realize how much time and labor can be saved by the gasoline engine.

Farm paper during the past year have been calling attention to the great purchasing power of the farmer. They all desire motor power, and they are coming into the market in large numbers to make their purchases.

Automobile manufacturers in Detroit are not paying any attention to reports that are being received from time to time regarding the manufacture in the United States of small cars of 60 and 65-inch wheelbase.

Inquiry at several of the plants during the week brought forth the fact that the majority of the American manufacturers are not particularly interested in these small automobiles. They invariably call attention to the trend towards shorter wheelbases a few years ago and to the fact that the majority of manufacturers have been lengthening the wheelbases of the cars they make during the last two years. They say this has been done to satisfy the bulk of motor car purchasers throughout the world.

These manufacturers further say that the American motoring public, especially, has its decided likes and dislikes, as far as automobiles are concerned and that they are doing their utmost to give the buying public just what it wants. That, they said, is their big job, and they are not planning any innovations in the near future.

The trend in automobile manufacturing at the present time seems to be in the direction of four speed transmissions. Seven or eight manufacturers are making this type and several more are expected to announced these transmissions before the end of the year.

The latest to install a four-speed transmission is Packard, which announced its new line of models this week. Cadillac, which also makes its announcement, continues with its three synchro-mesh transmission which it has been developing for a period of years, and several refinements have been made in its 1930 cars.

The early objection to four-speed transmissions was that they were noisy. This difficulty, however, has been fully overcome and manufacturers who are using them are calling particular attention to the lowered engine revolutions at high speeds, therefore less wear.

Auto Registrations In Missouri to Date Exceed 1928 Total

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 14.—Automobile registration in Missouri for the first seven months of 1929 has exceeded the total figures for 1928, figures announced by the Missouri Registration Department indicate. A total of 714,602 machines have been licensed this year.

Collections for this year by the department total $9,116,000, or an increase of $401,000 over the total fees collected in 1928. The money is used for maintenance of the State road system.

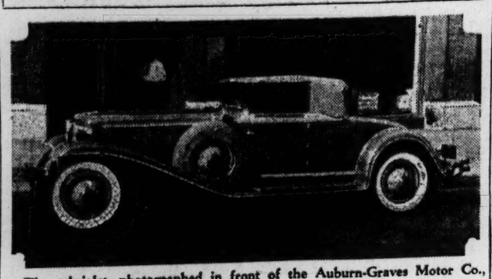
From Feb. 1 the opening of the license year, until Sept. 1, the department issued 636,956 owners' license plates and 77,106 truck plates. Registrations also included 2658 dealers' plates, 25,614 chauffeurs' and 1649 motor cycles.

St. Louis headed the list with a registration of 155,943 machines, compared to 147,021 at the same date a year ago. Kansas City reported 85,845, compared to 81,737 Sept. 1 a year ago.

Plenty of Service.

Iowa Falls, Ia., claims to give motorists better service than any other town of its size. On Oak street, nine service stations are found within four blocks.

First Sale of Cord Front Drive Here



The cabriolet, photographed in front of the Auburn-Graves Motor Co., Inc., Auburn and Cord distributer, was purchased by Charles A. Niekamp.

Auburn-Graves Shows Complete Line of Cords

A complete line of the four models of the new Cord front drive is being displayed by the Auburn-Graves Co., Inc., newly appointed Auburn and Cord distributer, 2309-11 Locust boulevard.

The models shown include a cabriolet in blue, a phaeton sedan in gray, with blue moulding, a standard five-passenger sedan in ceylon blue and a brougham in maroon. The closed cars are upholstered in English broadcloth, with seats of whipcord. All of the hardware is silver finished and plating is chromium over nickel.

The first three Cords cars to be delivered were a cabriolet to Charles A. Niekamp, a brougham to Scott Ford and a phaeton sedan to King Parker.

According to C. E. Graves, president of the company, the problem is not to obtain new orders, but to obtain delivery to fill orders that have already been secured.

Other St. Louisans who have ordered Cords are Mason Scudder, Ray C Bolin, H. W. Gildehaus, Edgar M. Jennings and Ben G. Brinkman.

Studebaker Has 11½-Acre Foundry At South Bend, Ind.

In Studebaker's 11½-acre foundry at South Bend, Ind., one of the largest grey iron foundries in the world, scores of skilled workmen may be seen daily making "sand pies" or cores for the 500 or more castings which go into the Studebaker engine, according to Sam Lurie of the Lurie Motor Car Co., Studebaker-Erskine distributer here.

"The sight never fails to arouse unusual interest among the hundreds of visitors who make the trip through Studebaker plants," Lurie said. "The operation of turning out these cores looks about as easy as the mud pie making of childhood days, yet the job is one which requires a high degree of skill and accuracy.

"Most casting calls for a sand 'core' and sand 'mould.' The 'core' and 'mould' may be likened to the core and skin of an apple, the 'core' representing the hollow portions of the finished casting, the 'mould' the outer husk or covering.

"Several types of sand are used in their making. An especially fine grade fre efrom clay for the 'core,' a coarser, darker clay bonded quality for the 'mould.' Huge quantities of this sand are stored in giant bins with a capacity of 325 carloads, the sand being routed to the various 'core' and 'mould' tables through wide funnels. Core sand is mixed with an oil and resin compound to give it the necessary consistency for baking. Mould sand is mixed with water and clay and does not have to be baked. The 'core' maker fills a core box with the sand, firmly presses it down with his hands, then inverts the box and removes it."

Viking Engineers Discuss Trend Toward Eights

As automotive engineering has progressed, there has been a tendency on the part of the motoring public toward multiple cylinder engines. Today there is a growing number who are showing a preference for the eight cylinder automobile engine, particularly the V-type.

Manifestly, the greater number of cylinders must present some advantage. This advantage is smoothness of operation brought about by a continuous flow of power, according to the engineers who designed the new Viking, the eight-cylinder companion car to the Oldsmobile six.

"Automobile engines have four cycle operation," the Oldsmobile-Viking engineers said. "This means that each piston makes two round trips in the cylinder for each power stroke. As a result in a four-cylinder engine there are but two power strokes to a revolution of the crankshaft. One power stroke is ending as the other starts, thus causing a slight hiatus between the power impulses.

"In a six-cylinder engine there are three power strokes per crankshaft revolution. This provides a smoother operation inasmuch as there is an overlapping of impulses. The second power stroke starts when the first is two-thirds finished and the third power stroke picks up as the second has still a third of its stroke to complete.

"In a 90-degree, V-type eight cylinder engine, such as the Viking, there are four perfectly spaced power impulses to each revolution. Therefore, there always are two pistons giving impetus to the crankshaft."

Hudson Continues To Break Shipping Records in 1929

Shipments of Hudson and Essex cars up to Sept. 1 of this year are announced as 267,341, as against 230,019 in the same period of 1928, a gain of 16.2 per cent. This is the best record Hudson ever has known, leaving less than 15,000 Hudson and Essex cars to equal the shipping record of 282,204 for all of 1928.

To assure a steady seasonal reduction of car stocks in the hands of its distributing organization, Hudson is shipping at the rate of about 85 per cent of present retail sales as reported weekly to the factory by distributers and dealers. On this basis August shipments were 17,309.

Chrysler Down-Draft Carburetion Gives Greater Power

Downdraft carburetion is one of the features of the new Chrysler line which has just been announced. It was adopted after extensive experiments and developments in the engineering laboratories of this company. These experiments and tests have brought out some important facts regarding automobile engine carburetion. Reports have already been received that this new move of Chrysler's may mark the beginning of a thorough overhauling of current carburetor practice.

There is nothing secret or mysterious about what downdraft carburetion does and how it accomplished it. Expressed in a word it measurably increases the volumetric efficiency of the engine. To an engineer this tells the whole story. To a layman the story will be much clearer when it is understood that volumetric efficiency is a measure of the completeness of filling of the combustion chamber on the intake stroke. The more mixture that is drawn in on this stroke the greater the intensiyt of the explosion and the greater the power developed per explosion.

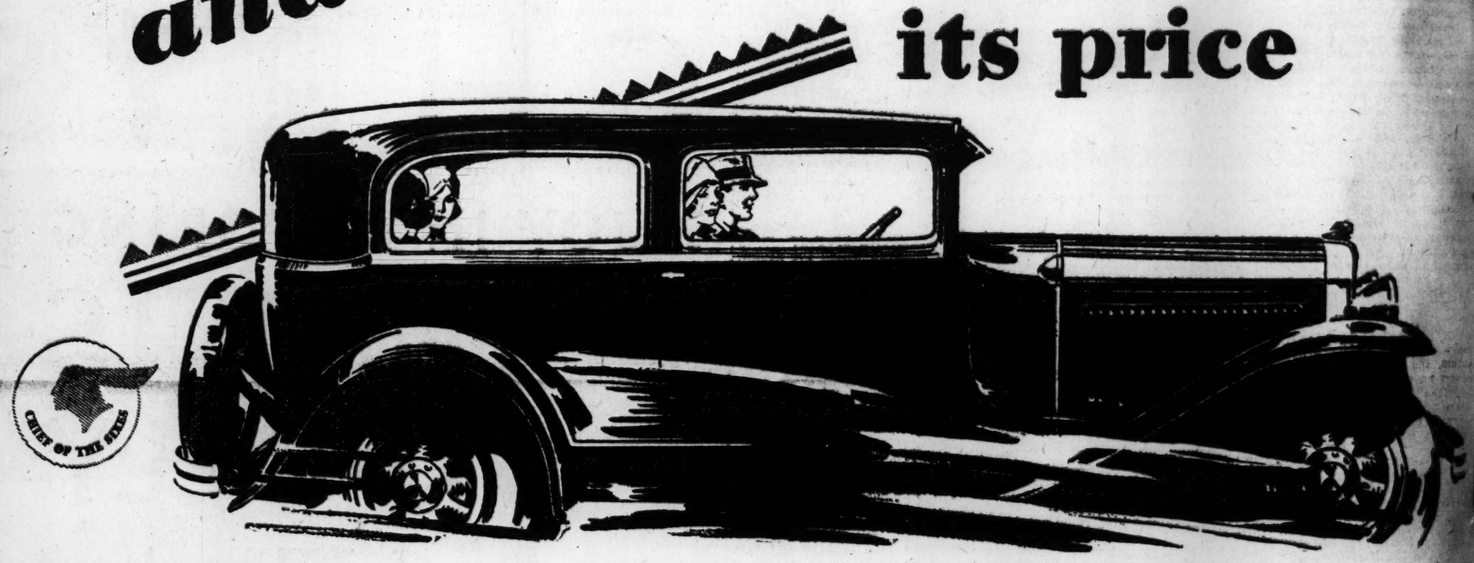
For Speed, Power and Pickup—a Six without a rival at its price



PONTIAC BIG SIX at $745

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan
Five-Passenger 2-Door Sedan
Body by Fisher

Without a single exception, the Pontiac Big Six is the fastest, most powerful six of its price offered to the motoring public today. Its sturdy, 200 cubic inch L-head engine develops 60 brake horsepower at the moderate engine speed of 3000 r.p.m. Its top speed is the highest to be found in any low-priced six, according to the "fifth wheel"—most accurate speed measuring device known to automotive engineers. The same instrument proves it to be the fastest accelerating six in its entire price group. And, furthermore, it offers the incomparable smoothness and the unrivaled reliability which follow the use of such features as the Harmonic Balancer to counteract torsional vibration in the crankshaft, crankcase ventilation to maintain the quality of engine oil, and airplane-type, interchangeable, bronze-backed main bearings. Unquestionably, today's Pontiac Big Six is the performance leader of its price field—

If you are interested in a car costing anywhere near Pontiac's price, your own interests demand that you see and drive today's Pontiac Big Six. And when you come in, bring your present car for our appraisal. Its value will probably cover the down payment, leaving only a few dollars per month to pay. And, as you pay, you will be enjoying the finest car of its price the market affords.

With these qualities in addition, to assure you greater value

Greater STYLE

Specially designed bodies by Fisher with the exclusive concave belt moulding. A variety of the season's smartest color combinations in lustrous, long-wearing Duco. A distinctive radiator design. Flaring fenders, 70 inches across. All bright metal finished in gleaming, stainless chrome plate.

Assured by such features as Pontiac's full pressure lubricating system which supplies the engine with correct lubrication for any speed—the crankcase ventilating system—special moulded non-squeak brake linings which often operate for more than 30,000 miles without replacement—sturdy hardwood and steel body construction—and dozens of others of equal importance.

Greater CONVENIENCE

Driver's seat adjustable as you drive. Easily regulated VV-type windshield. Foot-controlled headlights. Cross-flow radiator with automatic temperature control—no hand operated shutters to bother with. Coincidental lock—one turn of the key locks both ignition and transmission.

Greater ECONOMY

Proved by the records of a large public utilities corporation, which operated 996 automobiles of 33 different makes during 1928. Pontiac actually costs one cent less per mile to operate than any other low-priced six.

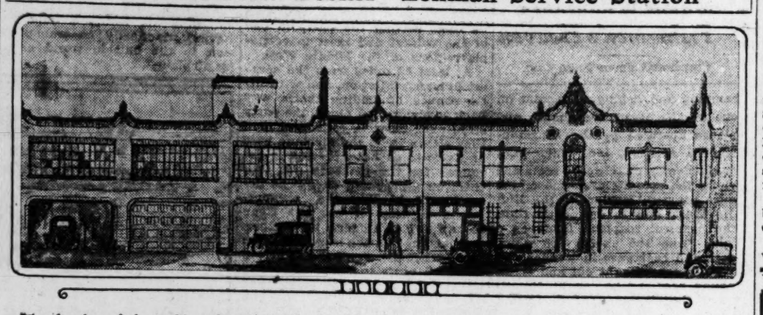
View of the New Becker-Lehmann Service Station



The drawing of the architect Russell A. Conzelman, gives some idea of the attractive appearance of the new super service tire station, the Becker-Lehmann Sales Co., Inc., Ajax distributer, is erecting at Cardinal and Olive streets. Note the roomy entrances and exits.

Becker-Lehmann Building New Service Station

Ground has been broken for the new home of the Becker-Lehman Sales Co., Inc., at Cardinal and Olive streets, it is announced by Frank P. Becker. On completion early in December, the new tire service station will be one of the most modern in the Middle West.

Complete battery, washing, lubrication, tire repairing and vulcanizing facilities will be installed.

About 10,000 feet of floor space will be available. The building is being erected on a lot 60 by 125 feet in size.

The Becker-Lehman Co., of which Martin E. Lehmann is the other partner, is the exclusive distributer in the St. Louis area of Ajax tires. The company was organized in a small way six years ago, with quarters at 3441 Pine street. A year ago, larger quarters were found necessary and the company moved to its present location at 2711 Olive street.

In December, 1928, the company was made sole distributer of Ajax tires.

The second floor of the new building will be used as a tire warehouse. Curb service will be a feature of the new super service station.

Eddie Hearne, Race Driver, Joins Sales Staff of Gardner

Eddie Hearne

The appointment of Eddie Hearne, famour racing driver, as a special sales representative of the Gardner Motor Co., is announced by E. H. Rengers, sales manager.

In 1919 and 1923 Hearne captured the A. A. A. racing championship and, although retired from the racing game, his records still stand on a number of dirt tracks over the country.

Hoffman Magneto Moves to Larger Headquarters

The S. G. Hoffman Magneto Co., Inc., largest exclusive automobile electrical service company in the Middle West, will move to its enlarged location at 3134 Washington boulevard, tomorrow. Removal from the present quarters at 3872 Washington was dictated by the necessity for more space, according to J. M. Medart, president.

The new building—50 by 124 feet—will contain the latest battery charging and testing equipment, including the latest vertical synchronizing machine for timing ignition systems, the only one of its kind in the city. New steel bins and shelving will house the stock of electrical parts which, according to Medart, has increased seven fold in the four years since he bought the company from S. G. Hoffman.

The company will continue its exclusive distributership in Southwest Illinois and Eastern Missouri of Auto-Lite parts, Prest-O-Lite batteries, American Bosch, Apollo magnetos, Dyneto, De-Jon, Electrolock, Leece Neville, Monroe shock absorbers, Kingston vacuum tanks, Splitdorf magnetos, Tillotson carburetors, Webster magnetos, Wico magnetos, Waltham speedometers, and clocks, Jaeger clocks, Kellogg horns and Nagel ammeters.

New Gas-Electric Car of Col. Green Is Described

This car, on its trip from Chicopee, Mass., where it was built in the shops of Rauch & Lang, former builders of electric autos of the storage battery type, to Boston and thence over the road to South Dartmouth through Shrewsbury and Spencer, took the hills easily, some of them decidedly steep, at 30 to 35 miles an hour. Though only geared for 40 miles, it did better than that on fairly level roads, the additional speed being due to momentum, or to the product of its mass by its velocity. Its extreme limit under those conditions would probably be between 45 and 50 miles an hour. With a different gear ratio this could be increased.

After the car is brought up to speed, the engine need only turn over fast enough to generate sufficient energy to overcome road friction and windage. When coasting down hills the engine will always be at idling speed, thus economizing on gas, while on level roads, in many cases, the engine will be turning over at a lower speed than if it were coupled mechanically to the rear wheels. The new car for Col. Green's use in Florida will be of the open type, with a front seat wide enough to accommodate three people, while the driver's seat will be elevated at the rear. One feature of this car is its fast pickup after coming to a dead stop at a street intersection. Invariably it gets away in front of all the cars starting on the same line.

Believing that there is a demand for a gas-electric car of this type, the designers and builders are now working on six more besides the second for Col. Green.

Fenders and Wheels.

In these days of lacquered automobile bodies, it often is only the fenders and wheels that need repainting. They are enameled and this finish frequently does not stand the wear and tear that merely leaves the body in need of a washing and polishing.

New Blade in Order.

Windshield wiper blades, indifferent motor car owners to the contrary, will not last forever. They are made of rubber and rubber is susceptible to hardening in the sun. Once the life of the blade is thus exhausted, efficiency of the cleaner requires its replacement.

At St. Louis Airfields

LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS Field will be second to none in the United States when the present improvement program is carried out, in the opinion of Col. Lindbergh.

Lindbergh stopped here on his way to and from New Mexico last week and praised the work at the airport. A permanent concrete runway, the location of which was suggested by Col. Lindbergh during a visit last summer, was started Thursday. It is expected the runway will be completed before cold weather sets in.

Parks College Merger.

The merging of Parks Air College with the Detroit Aviation Corporation, details of which were announced last week, will be followed by the establishment of seven subsidiary Parks flying schools in various sections of the United States, according to Oliver Parks, general manager of the Parks organization.

In less than two years approximately 2000 pilots and mechanics have been trained at Parks Air College. Two years ago Parks and Clyde Brayton, now chief pilot for Parks College, were carrying passengers at Lambert Field in two Travel-air planes, which constituted the sole assets of the original Parks aeronautical venture. In the present merger the Parks Co. assets are valued at $1,100,000.

For 5-Cent Gasoline Tax.

In an effort to make Lambert-St. Louis Field self-supporting, the city administration is contemplating a gasoline tax of 5 cents a gallon, to be assessed against resident users. It has been roughly estimated that a revenue of $25,000 annually can be obtained in this manner. The tax will not be enforced against visiting pilots. In the event the gasoline tax proves inadequate a tax of 25 cents a passenger on sightseeing rides will be charged, the tax to be added to the present sightseeing fare, which is $3.

Jackson and O'Brine in Contest.

"Red" Jackson and Forest O'Brine will pilot Robins in the fifth national air tour for the Edsel Ford reliability trophy, starting from Ford Airport, Dearborn, Mich., Oct. 5.

Jackson will pilot a Challenger-Robin, while O'Brine will fly a Robin powered with a Wright J-6 Whirlwind. Other Curtiss entries in the tour will be a Carrier Pigeon II, a new mail plane secretly developed by Curtiss, a Thrush, a Gypsy Moth, and the Curtiss Condor, 18-passenger transport.

In addition to the trophy, $20,000 in cash prizes are offered. St. Louis is included in the route of the tour, as are Springfield and St. Joseph.

Less Wood in Ryan Planes.

The tendency to eliminate wood in the construction of airplanes is shown in Ryan planes, which, though weighing 2250 pounds, contains but 400 pounds of wood.

Flying Pullman Tested.

The first of the five 32-passenger Fokker transports ordered by the Universal Aviation Corporation has made a successful test flight.

The ship, powered with four Hornet engines, is reported to be speedier than the Fokker F-10 trimotored ship. The new Fokkers, which cost $100,000 each, have seats for 32 persons and sleeping accommodations for half that number when used at night. The first ship will be demonstrated here when completed.

Ends Demonstration Trip.

The St. Louis Aircraft Corporation reports orders for several Cardinal monoplanes from its west coast distributor. Jack McMillan, test pilot for the company, returned last week from a demonstration trip, which included Chicago, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, and the Cleveland air races.

New Train-Plane Schedule.

Southwest Air Fast Express, which operates between St. Louis and Dallas, Tex., has completed an arrangement with the Chicago & Alton Railroad whereby passengers may reach Los Angeles 44 hours after leaving Chicago. The service, to be begun next Wednesday, will be as follows: Chicago & Alton from Chicago to Kansas City; Southwest air fast express, Kansas City to Sweet Water, Tex.; Texas & Pacific Railroad to El Paso; Standard Air Lines to Los Angeles.

"Shorty" Chaffee Back at Job

"Shorty" Chaffee of the endurance flight refueling crew, is back at work at the Curtiss-Robertson airplane factory following a vacation, which "Shorty" found he needed after completing the triumphal tour of the endurance flight troupe.

Flying School Addition

Because of an unusually large enrollment the Von Hoffman Flying School will build an addition with accommodations for 60 persons to the present students' barracks on the south side of Lambert St. Louis Field. Capt. John Berry, noted balloonist, is custodian of the barracks.

The new hangar of the Von Hoffmann Co. on the west side of the field, has been completed and is in use for storing transient ships.

Condor Pays Second Visit

The Curtiss Condor, twin-motored transport with places for 18 passengers, was flown here for the second time Thursday. A feature of the giant ship, of interest to pilots, is its slow landing speed, resembling that of an old Standard. S. A. T. pilots, who expect to handle ships of this type in the future, made several practice landings with the Condor during its stay here.

Parachute Jumper's Feat.

Corp. Brennan of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service dropped approximately 4000 feet before opening his parachute in a jump at the National Guard exhibition last Sunday. Brennan was taken to an altitude of 8000 feet by Lieut Frank Dunn and did not pull the ring until about half way to the ground. The world's record drop before opening a parachute is 9600 feet.

Plane Plant Addition in Use.

The addition to the Curtiss-Robertson plant is under roof and is being used temporarily for the final assembly of Robins. The new plant will be used in the manufacture of the Curtiss Thrush.

Lambert Field Oiled.

With the 2000-foot concrete apron nearing completion at Lambert Field, Acting Field Manager Parks has oiled part of the field in front of the apron to eliminate dust. Other measures for the convenience of visitors are the construction of a comfort station, installation of drinking fountains and a proposal to erect seats for spectators at the southwest corner of the field.

Capt. Wimer Returns.

Capt. William Wimer, Thirty-fifth Division Air Service, has returned to St. Louis from Jefferson City, where he spent the summer getting a commercial aviation concern started.

Bomber Makes Direct Hit.

Walter Braznell, air mail pilot and First Lieutenant in the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service, scored a direct hit in the bombing demonstration last Sunday. The "hit" demolished the target, three large shipping boxes.

Rentz Back From Vacation.

Bob Rentz, assistant operations manager for the Universal System, returned to Lambert Field last week from a vacation trip to his home in Minnesota. Rentz made the trip from Minneapolis in a plane piloted by Trevor Williams of the Universal staff at Minneapolis.

Visiting Pilots.

Visiting pilots who stopped at local flying fields during the week are: W. S. Smith, Philadelphia; L. W. Brusse, Los Angeles; L. A. Austin, Roosevelt Field, L. I.; Roy Minor, Los Angeles; T. C. McCall, Chicago; Leslie O'Mille, Los Angeles; C. A. Burrows, Los Angeles; P. Davis, New Mexico; W. H. Fisher, Los Angeles; H. A. Speer, Marshall, Mo.; C. M. Cole, Carbondale, Ill.; Lieut. Mrs. Louise Thaden, winner of the recent women's air derby, and Miss Bobby Trout, a contestant in the event, stopped at Parks Airport on their way home from the Cleveland air races.

For Guatemala Line.

The Ryan Aircraft Corporation delivered the eighth Ryan brougham to the Pickwick Latin-American Airways Co. last week. The ships are operated on a daily schedule between Los Angeles and Guatemala City, via Mexico City.

Alaskan at Parks.

Ben McFarland of Fairbanks, Alaska, registered for a flying course at Parks Air College last week. The present student body includes residents of Peru, Mexico, Porto Rico, Malta, Colombia and the Philippines.

Von Hoffmann Sales.

The Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co. bought a Kinner Eaglerock for student training last week and sold an OX Eaglerock to Lawrence Merrill and Harold Michel, graduates of the Von Hoffmann School.

Use of Airplanes Makes Wilderness Fishermen's Heaven

camping and fishing equipment on one of the Ryan broughams airplanes operated by the Kingston-Rhodes Airways, Inc., sinks back in the deeply upholstered seats and views the scenery over one of the most beautiful sections in the Middle West, and in an hour's time, the graceful seaplane lands on a lake, from the shores of which deer and bear gaze in wonder.

Rods are brought out and eight-pound bass can be caught directly from the pontoons of the plane. The canoes are unshackled and the guide points the way to the best fishing spots. With a roar of the propeller the Ryan is off again for its base, leaving the party in one of the wildest and most inaccessible regions of the Middle West.

At least 50 miles from the nearest human habitation, and with little chance of finding their way back to civilization alone, the party stays until business calls, and then they either radio the airplane base at Eveleth, or have previously arranged for the plane to call for them on a specified day. The necessity of keeping the appointments on time causes the Ryan to be flown in all sorts of weather, and landings on the lakes are often made when the weather has driven all small boats to cover. It is not unusual for a party to bring back 40 or 50 trout and bass from a single day's fishing. Big game and fowl are also available in abundance.

Thus a little community is springing up, which is unique in having practically no transportation to the outside world except by airplane.

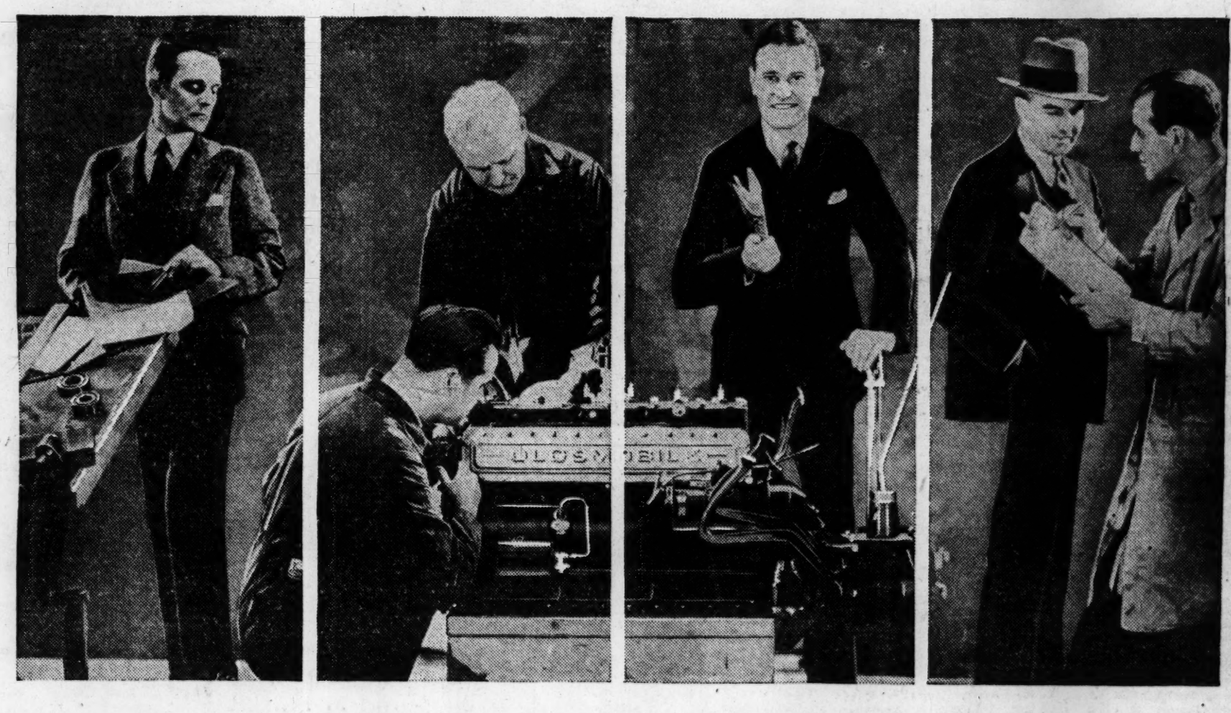
TO DESIGN PROGRESSIVELY — TO BUILD FAITHFULLY — TO SELL HONESTLY — TO SERVICE SINCERELY



OLDSMOBILE RECOGNIZES THESE RESPONSIBILITIES TO EVERY OWNER

The ever-increasing owner loyalty for Oldsmobile may be traced directly to Oldsmobile's fair-minded attitude toward those who purchase Oldsmobile cars. For Oldsmobile does not rest content merely with building a good car. Oldsmobile goes farther—and assumes this four-fold responsibility to every Oldsmobile owner: to design progressively . . . to build faithfully . . . to sell honestly and to service sincerely.

To insure sound, progressive engineering, Oldsmobile has brought together a staff of engineers whose joy lies in accomplishment and whose ambition is to contribute some new advancement to Oldsmobile and, through Oldsmobile, some progress to modern motoring. Changes in Oldsmobile design are always made for the sake of progress—never for the sake of change alone. Back of these men are the complete facilities of their own fine engineering laboratories and the vast resources of the General Motors Research Laboratories and General Motors Proving Ground.

Oldsmobile principles of manufacture are expressed by the pledge that every Oldsmobile worker follows, from the highest executive to the newest shop employee . . . "Anything short of my best is not acceptable." Faithfulness of manufacture results from allegiance to this ideal . . . faithfulness that means not only fine quality of materials and exacting limits of accuracy, but careful, precise workmanship and rigid inspection.

Oldsmobile firmly believes that absolute honesty in selling and in advertising is the only sure road to long continued public favor. The public is thoroughly capable of judging both quality and value. And the public has conferred upon Oldsmobile the highest reward of merit—constantly increasing buyer preference. Oldsmobile will not risk this priceless good-will by deviating, though it be ever so slightly, from the facts.

Oldsmobile has instituted a service policy that recognizes the equities not only of Oldsmobile owners, but of Oldsmobile dealers as well. Oldsmobile backs up its dealers by accepting responsibilities which are commonly left to the dealer, because Oldsmobile's interest in every sale goes far beyond the time of purchase. This policy is made possible by Oldsmobile's quality, dependability, and fine performance. And it contributes largely to the loyalty and enthusiasm of the mounting thousands of Oldsmobile owners.

To design progressively. To build faithfully. To sell honestly. To service sincerely. Four great responsibilities—recognized by Oldsmobile and willingly assumed in order that every Oldsmobile owner shall be a friend of Oldsmobile.

COURT OF HONOR PLANS OUTLINED

All Candidates Must File Their Applications by Tomorrow.

Tomorrow is the last day candidates for Star, Life, Eagle and Eagle Palm rank may file applications for these honors to be awarded at the City Court of Honor Sept. 30, Charles A. Mills, new activities director of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, announces. Filing of the applications at once is necessary in order that approval may be obtained and to enable preparations to be made to examine Eagle candidates before an Eagle board of review.

The applications must also be accompanied by four references, Mills said, these being persons who are in a position to know whether the candidate is living up to his scout oath and the scout law.

The City Court of Honor, the first to be held since early summer, will convene at the Scottish Rite Temple at 8 p. m. While it has not yet been decided what awards will be made, it is expected that badges will be presented to applicants for first-class scout and any of the merit badges, in addition to the higher honors mentioned before. Scoutmasters' training certificates may also be presented to leaders who successfully completed training courses last spring, and standard troop insignia will be awarded to troops qualifying before the date of the court.

The Eagle Board of Review, final judge of a scout's fitness for the highest rank in scouting, will examine candidates at local scout headquarters, 505 Chemical Building, Sept. 26 and 27, from 4 to 5 o'clock the afternoons of Sept. 26 and 27. All applicants for eagle rank must appear before this board, as without its certification no awards may be presented at the court.

Another board of review, for applicants for the camping and cooking merit badges, will be held at headquarters Sept. 23, 24 and 25. This board will also examine candidates for first-class scout.

Particular stress was placed by Mills on the fact that eagle candidates who are also applicants for cooking or camping merit badges must first appear before this minor board before they are eligible for examination by the eagle board.

Troops with numbers receiving awards at the court have been requested to have their American flag and a color bearer present as official representative in a color stand which will be parit of the opening ceremony.

Troop Notes

South District.

Twenty scouts of Troop 15, St. Luke's Church, and Troop 144, of Bethany Church, held a three-day joint camp at the Lion's Den Reservation, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Eggers of Troop 15 and Scoutmaster Heitzberg of Troop 144. The joint camp is an annual event with these two troops. Exploration hikes, ghost hikes, treasure hunts, tracking, nature study and scoutcraft filled the program. Scoutmaster Heitzberg led in a nature study game Sunday morning, while Sunday school services were conducted by Troop Committeeman Zimmerman of Troop 144 in the afternoon. A council fire, at which Scoutmaster Kelley and a troop from Kinloch, Mo., were guests, was held Sunday evening. Scoutmaster Eggers acted as master of ceremonies; Scoutmaster Kelley played the guitar, the officers' club of Troop 15 gave several stunts, and the entire group sang scout songs.

Scout Stewart Flanagan, who was adopted into the Blackfeet Indian tribe while on the Western rovir tour this summer, is planning to show motion pictures of the tour at the meeting of Troop 15 this week. He will also give a talk on his trip.

Francis A. Fillmore, formerly assistant scoutmaster of Troop 139, meeting at the Meramec School, has been commissioned scoutmaster of that troop. He is now working on a program of activities for the scouts for the coming winter.

Scout L. P. Harris was elected scribe of troop 77, of Tyler Place Church, at a reorganization meeting last week. Scouts Bernie Drumm, Montgomery Hackman, Bill Buch and Alfred Schoenig were selected as patrol leaders by a Nominating Committee, while Scout Bob George became quartermaster, Tom Lovett, librarian, and Gene Beare, treasurer. Senior Patrol Leader Richard Buch and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Hollis George were reappointed to their positions by Scoutmaster C. C. Hoke. The troop is holding an overnight hike to their cabin this week-end, and is also planning an inter-patrol contest to start this week.

An overnight hike to the Lions' Den Reservation was taken by the scouts of troop 107, of the Ebenezer Evangelical Church, last Saturday and Sunday. The chief event of the hike was a campfire, at which every scout was required to perform a stunt, sing a song, or give a recitation. After the stunts a "ghost hike" was held, and the program was concluded with a watermelon feast. Devotional services were conducted Sunday morning by Scout Klemsch, after

After the stunts a "ghost hike" was held, and the program was concluded with a watermelon feast. Devotional services were conducted Sunday morning by Scout Klemsch, after which the scouts gathered willow branches to use in miniature pioneering work. The afternoon was spent playing games, swimming, and passing tests. The fathers of Scouts Dreker, Doering, and Weis provided automobiles to transport the scouts to and from the camp.

Troop 224, of the Nazereth Evangelical Church, is being reorganized under the leadership of Scoutmaster Arthur Schwartz and Assistant Scoutmaster Phillip Finger. A campaign for new members is also being conducted.

A new troop, Troop 174, has been organized at Zion Methodist Church. An investiture ceremony, during which the scouts were formally taken into scouting, was conducted by Scoutmaster Pollack and the scouts of Troop 155 at the church service last Sunday evening. The address of welcome was made by South District Commissioner Frank M. Underwood. Arthur Rettig is scoutmaster of the new troop, which will meet at the church every Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

William R. Vickers, former scoutmaster of Troop 104, has returned to scouting after an absence of two years, and has been appointed scoutmaster of Troop 217, meeting at the Southampton Presbyterian Church.

North District.

Scout Louis Thompson arranged and conducted the program at the meeting of Troop 3 at Grace Holy Cross Church last week. Each week a scout is appointed by Scoutmaster Simons to take charge of the coming meeting, to gain experience in leadership. Although not so planned, the meeting became a visitors' night, the scouts acting as hosts to members of Troop 206, the troop committee of Troop 3, and the Mothers' Club. Scoutmaster Simons gave a talk on "Sportsmanship," and Assistant Scoutmaster Hunt spoke on "Patrol Spirit," as their weekly talks to the troop.

The Drum and Bugle Corps of Troop 124, followed last Wednesday in the funeral cortege of Deputy Commissioner William B. Minor, who died last Sunday. Other members of the troop were among the escort of scouts and scoutmasters from 20 troops who accompanied the casket from the church to the cemetery.

Fifty-four scouts and scout mothers and fathers attended a dinner given to Troop 206, of Ames School, by the troop committee at the meeting Monday evening. During the dinner an investiture ceremony was held, to accept Principal W. Wilcox of the school into the troop as a Tenderfoot Scout. Announcement was also made that Scoutmaster Herzog had appointed Scout Russell Lehr to act as troop reporter for the remainder of the year. The troop visited Troop 3 at Grace Holy Cross Church Tuesday evening, and won three out of four scout games played. The troop committee now has 11 troop committeemen.

West District.

Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., was reorganized Thursday evening into six patrols of 10 scouts each. All of the former patrol leaders and assistant patrol leaders were reelected to head the new patrols, except in the case of Melvin Hertzman, who was recently appointed senior patrol leader of the troop, leaving his place as a patrol leader vacant. Arnold Singer was elected to fill the vacancy. The patrols each chose the name of an Indian tribe, instead of the animal names, such as Wolf, Eagle, or Bear, commonly chosen. An overnight hike is being planned by the scouts, to be held whenever the weather permits.

The newly elected officers of Troop 87, meeting at the United Hebrew Temple, officially took over their duties at the meeting of the troop Wednesday evening. Scout Carl Fixman is the new senior patrol leader, scout Maurice Cohen is scribe, and scouts Leon Stein, Preston Green, Manual Goldman, and Harry Rosenbloom are the patrol leaders. Each of the patrol leaders heads a newly formed patrol, organized two weeks ago.

Patrol Leader Eugene Hahnel of the Beaver Patrol was made junior assistant scoutmaster of Troop 113, meeting at Church of Messiah Friday. Assistant Patrol Leader Dave Williams was promoted to patrol leader, to take Hahnel's place, and Scout Sam Schwartzberg was raised to assistant patrol leader. The posts were formally awarded by Scoutmaster Rebore in an investiture ceremony. Plans were also made for a Parents' Night to be held the latter part of November. The Tiger patrol will give a demonstration in signaling by different methods, the Silver Foxes will demonstrate uses of the neckerchief, and the Beavers will exhibit pioneering activities.

Senior Patrol Leader Bob Miller won first in the back-stroke swimming event at the Police Water Carnival at the Coliseum a week ago yesterday. He also entered the breast-stroke and free-style races, while Scout Sam Schwartzberg entered the latter.

MEDITERRANEAN LEVEL FALLS

Boats Grounded at Agde, France, Without Warning.

AGDE, France, Sept. 14.—Suddenly, without previous warning, the level of the Mediterranean fell here. In the harbor, in front of the City Hall, the water dropped to such an extent that vessels which were moored in a fair depth of water went aground. Large sandbanks have appeared between the end of the pier and the lighthouse.

The phenomena are supposed to be due to some minor subterranean upheaval.

SCOUTS MAKE PLANS FOR WEEK-END ROVING

Tours to Include Visits to State Parks, Capitol and to Lincoln's Tomb.

Week-end roving camps—an entirely new idea in Boy Scout Council activities—will be inaugurated by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council this fall, Charles A. Mills, activities director has announced.

Using the busses and equipment of the Eastern and Western Roving Camp tours, the week-end roving campers will visit State Parks, Lincoln's tomb, and the Missouri State capitol. Leaving St. Louis Saturday mornings and returning Sunday nights. Camp will be made at tourist camp grounds, the scouts sleeping under tents for the one night away from home.

The first tour will be made to the Meramec State Park near Sullivan Sept. 21 and 22, while others have been scheduled as follows: Onodaga Cave, Leasburg, Sept. 28 and 29; Lincoln's tomb, Springfield, Ill., Oct. 5 and 6; State Capitol, Jefferson City, Oct. 12 and 13. The final tour will be made to Columbia Oct. 19 and 20, to see the football game between the University of Missouri and Drake.

About 90 boys, the capacity of the two busses, can be accommodated on each trip.

The St. Louis Council was also first to introduce the Regular Roving Camps to Scouting, having conducted the first one to Washington as an experiment two years ago. The tour proved a success, the council bought two new busses and has since conducted two trips to Yellowstone Park in addition to several to the East.

Several o the larger councils adopted the Roving Camp plan, and conducted tours this summer. None, however, have the elaborate program used by St. Louis, calling for two trips to Washington and New York, one trip to Yellowstone Park, and several shorter trips from Irondale each summer.

If the week-end Roving Camps prove a success they will probably be made part of the yearly program.

CLEANING CANCELED STAMPS A CHINESE COOLIE INDUSTRY

Resale at Half of Face Value Provides Many With Necessaries of Life.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, Sept. 14.—Of the diverse occupations emanating from the fertile brain of the Chinese coolie who finds himself temporarily without the common necessaries of life, there is perhaps none so remunerative as the sale of washed, used postage stamps.

The practice is to collect lightly canceled stamps from waste baskets and to obliterate the cancellation ink by a thorough washing. The stamps are then re-gummed and the Chinese coolie sells them openly along the main thoroughfares for half their face value.

He often makes more money by these illicit sales than he would at hard labor.

Milstrand Co. To Expand Its Service Plant

Plans are under way by the Milstrand Motor Co., successors to the Tate Motor Co., Inc., Dodge Brothers dealers in St. Louis, to increase its service facilities.

"It is our intention to operate the finest service station west of the Mississippi just as soon as it is physically possible," said Milton B. Strauss, president, in discussing his plans.

"During my many years as an automobile dealer, and that of my associates, it has been our policy to build our business on the foundation of satisfied owners. In the operation of the Milstrand Motor Co., this will continue to be the case.

"We are confident that in Dodge Brothers motor cars, trucks, buses and motor coaches we are offering the people of St. Louis the finest products and greatest values in the history of the corporation. This we are going to back with the finest of service.

"Dodge Brothers Corporation has always been proud of its world-wide dealer and service organization and the Milstrand Motor Co. will do everything possible to uphold this trust. Back of our organization here in St. Louis is the factory service parts division that stands ready to supply replacements for every Dodge car, regardless of age or model. It is this type of service, backed by the manufacturer's reputation for dependability that insures satisfied owners of motor cars.

"Officials in charge of the eight-story service parts plant of Dodge Brothers estimate that more than half of the models built in 1915 and 1916 are still running. Orders are received nearly every day for minor parts, used in these early Dodge cars. Every part has a number so orders can be promptly and accurately filled.

"More than 25,000 separate parts are kept in stock, and to make sure of complete service, the service parts plant maintains a miniature factory where odd parts not on hand can be machined or built. Even cushions that match the upholstery of cars of years ago can be supplied. Rarely does an order balk this small factory specializing in parts long out of production."

Truck Drivers Careful.

Results of tests taken by the Massachusetts Motor Vehicle Department show that motor truck drivers are more careful and responsible than the average driver of passenger cars.

Franklin Proves Speed, Stamina On Pikes Peak

With altitude conditions prevailing comparable only to an airplane in full flight, an air-cooled Franklin special proved its power, speed and stamina on Labor day when it was driven up the difficult Pikes Peak course at Colorado Springs, Colo., in 19 minutes, 12 and 4-5 seconds by "Cannon Ball" Baker.

Charging up the 12 1-3 miles climb in an impressive exhibition of boundless power, this air-cooled car showed its ability to master any altitude or climate, even when the temperatures changed almost every minute of the ascent, and finished within 50 seconds of the winner.

Temperatures encountered ranged from 85 at the starting point at Crystal Creek, 9150 feet above sea level to almost freezing at the finish at Pikes Peak summit, 14,109 feet above sea level.

Cook County Roads.

Forty-five miles an hour is now the maximum speed limit in Illinois, but because of the narrow roads in Cook County, motor travel on any Sunday evening is comparable to the progress of a snail. From 30 to 50 minutes may be consumed in going three miles.

Many Uses Found For Low Gear on Graham-Paiges

Special advantages enjoyed by owners of four-speed cars, and unusual conditions under which the four-speed drive has proved its versatility, form the subjects of numerous letters received by the Graham-Paige factory and its dealers.

Now nearing its third anniversary as standard equipment, the Graham-Paige internal-geared four-speed drive has been used and proved under every conceivable its basic advantages—reduced engine speed, easy gear changing, exceptional acceleration and quiet operation—are well known, but owners have discovered many others in unusual circumstances.

Special advantages of the powerful first gear, lower than the first or reverse of three-speed cars, have been discovered by many drivers. In regular practice, the car is started in second, which gives exceptionally fast acceleration. But the first gear, which pulls like a tractor, is of value not only in emergencies, but in normal driving.

For instance, one Graham-Paige owner wrote that he had his four-speed car a year before it occurred to him that an extremely low-geared first speed offers the quickest and most efficient method of getting a car under way on cold mornings.

"Instead of the usual wait for the engine to warm up," he writes, "I engage first gear and roll out of my garage almost as soon as the engine starts, because first gear is so low that it imposes very little load on the cold engine, and does not require the engine speed to be greatly reduced for starting. After driving half a block or so, I shift to second and go on my way."

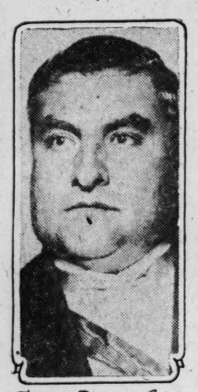
MEXICO CITY, Sept. 14.

THE reconstruction of Mexico has in my opinion some striking phases. But in order to express concretely its fundamental concepts I wish to group under two heads the efforts of the Government since 1920 in undertaking this reconstruction. These two aspects are: The spiritual and the material.

In considering the purely spiritual or idealistic aspect, I do not desire to indicate that this should be separated from the second phase. But being the most interesting I believe it would impress itself as of greater importance if I referred to it in the first part.



EMILIO PORTES GIL

The actual state of affairs in Mexico as a consequence of the tremendous social and political convulsion which has been under way in the country since 1910 indicates clearly that there is already a definite orientation and more or less clear road which we are following. This primary phase of the reconstruction of Mexico includes the solution of ancient problems which the various revolutionary governments with great foresight undertook to settle in ways they believed would be of greatest benefit to the nation.

We can regard as fundamental the inclusion of the educational problem in the spiritual aspect of Mexican reconstruction. The question is to my way of thinking one of the most important in Mexico.

The Indian Problem.

It is generally known that our population is composed of an immense majority of Indian tribes, many of whom speak their own dialects and who are completely ignorant of the Spanish language. This tremendous indigenous people lived in a lamentable and forgotten state during the period prior to 1910.

In the decade from 1910 to 1920 the agitation of the conflicts during the intervals between revolutionary governments and the necessity of attending to matters of urgent resolution impeded the efforts due the Indians. And although all of the revolutionary plans and movements noted always the necessity of attending to the education of the masses, it was not possible to inaugurate this work with full intensity until the beginning of the year 1920 when the reconstructive stage of the revolution was initiated.

With the formation of the government of Gen. Alvaro Obregon there was born the basic need of imparting to the indigenous races and to the proletarian population in general the education which would enable them to absorb civilization. To this end, the administration proposed a constitutional reform by virtue of which the government could carry on its educational efforts throughout the country.

The effect of this step was the inauguration of a veritable crusade through the foundation of a great number of rural schools both for children and adults. Traveling cultural missions composed of self-sacrificing teachers carried the government's educational message even to the remotest communities.

Alphabet Campaign.

This campaign, which might be described as one waged with the alphabet, was intensified during President Calles' term and has continued with increasing success during the present provisional administration. The statistics for the year, 1928, the last year of General Calles' period, shows that the number of rural schools was 3392. During my provisional term this number has mounted to 6073.

In other words, within a few years, we will have won our battle against ignorance and we will have a real knowledge of the factors that will make us truly national.

It is interesting to study the changes which have taken place among the workers and peons as a result of this educational program. The effect has been that among our people those who were formerly abandoned, who were incurable victims of the disease of ignorance and who didn't believe in the government because nobody gave them a thought, are now the most ardent defenders of the government. They are convinced that now the public authorities of Mexico are complying with their duties which are chiefly to benefit the people.

Thus it is that the idea of nationality and unity of race which before 1910 existed only in the books of hired authors, now forms a very integral part of our traditions. And it is most satisfactory to see that this unity and national spirit exists not only among the mestizos (those of mixed Spanish and Indian blood) but also among the varied Indian tribes — the ones who during the last revolution gave such extraordinary aid to all movements for social betterment.

Three Great Problems

Looking now at the material and economic phase of the reconstruction, one can say that it involves three great problems—(a) agrarian, (b) labor, (c) financial.

I will take up these subjects in my series in the order named.

The Agrarian Problem. Fundamentally, this problem of the land is not new in Mexico; it began with the conquest as the result of the fact that the first Spaniards who came to Mexico seized the possessions of the Indians. Everyone knows that the Spanish Crown through decrees had guaranteed that the lands should remain in the possession of the natives, but the evil conquistadores nullified the effects of these decrees in such a way that little by little the people were dispossessed of their property.

This dispossession continued and even after the war of independence when the Mexican people had won their liberty, they were still unable to regain their lands. During the Diaz administration the rich proprietors, not satisfied with what they had already acquired, continued their seizures, until by the year 1900 very few towns of the republic had retained the public lands to which they had originally been entitled.

The urgent need of the masses for farm lands at the beginning of this century was every day more apparent and it was this fact undoubtedly that determined the motive of the revolution of 1910, although it seemed then that the rebellion was entirely of a political character.

Realization of the desperate necessity of the Indians for land brought about the passage of the Law of the Sixth of January 1915, which was included as a part of the revamped Constitution of 1917. However, this law was not actually in effect until the beginning of 1920, when we began a thorough re-solution of the question.

Land Owners Incompetent.

The reason, then, that the settlement of the land question in Mexico had to take the form of expropriation which had, to many persons (although it was not true) the appearance of confiscation, was owing to the thoroughly unfortunate agrarian organization of the country. As an example of what I mean, it should be realized that the great land-owners of Mexico did not know how to manage their own domains. They did not know how to exploit their lands properly—even sufficiently to raise enough for the country's own necessities.

The wages these land owners paid to their workers were not enough to keep them from the edge of misery. The landed estate should have realized, if no one else, that it was responsible for the armed rebellions. This class could have through lawful means allotted sufficient land to the peons to have created a situation in favor of the Indian farmers who as laborers on the great haciendas had received in many cases only 10 cents (American) daily for a working day of more than 12 hours.

In compliance with the laws which are now in existence the government has given lands to 2353 towns or an area of 4,845,402 hectares (13,048,142.94 acres) up to the year 1927. And although the figures are not yet compiled for the years 1928 and 1929, approximately 1,500,000 hectares have been allotted in that period, making a total of 6,345,402 hectares, representing 3.17 per cent of the total lands of the republic.

Agricultural Studies.

The consesquences of this policy can be felt already and should lead us to the frankest optimism. The chief agricultural products have greatly increased in volume

Donald R. Richberg, Noted Authority on Regulation of Public Utilities, Advises St. Louis To Grant No Franchise If It Wants Home Rule

Counsel for National Conference on Valuation of Railroads Makes Clear the Vital Difference Between Vested Rights Which Franchises Confer and Mere Revocable Privileges Which Are All That Permits Grant.

DONALD R. RICHBERG

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—Donald R. Richberg is the noted expert on the valuation and regulation of public utilities. After explaining the street car situation in St. Louis, the correspondent made three specific requests: First, that Mr. Richberg define franchises and permits; second, that he explain the difference between these two forms of grants in terms which the general public could understand; and third, that he outline the course which the city should pursue in order to obtain home rule. The following interview was the result. In the interest of accuracy, a proof of it was submitted to Mr. Richberg and was approved by him in advance of publication.

"THE problem of St. Louis is one common to most American cities. The public is told that unless a long term franchise, or what amounts to a perpetual franchise, is given to a public utility, the utility cannot finance the necessary maintenance, extension and improvement of public service. But the grant of a franchise confers a vested right upon the public utility corporation, as distinct from a revocable privilege or license, which a permit confers. The power to grant a permit includes the power to withdraw the same; but a vested right once legally given cannot be taken away from the holder.

"A franchise, in effect, destroys the future power of the city to protect the interest of its inhabitants. The only protective power the city possesses is given away when a franchise is awarded to a private company. When the private corporation obtains, in this way, a vested right in the streets, the result is that all the constitutional guarantees for the protection of private property, as interpreted by the courts, immediately arise to surround it like a wall against any interference or diminishment through the action of public officials seeking to protect public rights. Any effort to regulate the use of the property, or the rates to be charged for service, will be met with the claim that a private property right of the utility corporation is being destroyed, even though that right is in the public highways. These property rights, as interpreted in the courts, will include the right to have both the tangible and intangible values of the street railway system appraised on the basis of what it would cost to reproduce them new. Thus, year by year, as the city grows and as price levels rise, the valuation of the company's property mounts higher and higher. Some of these intangibles are flagrant examples of "padding." The courts have held that a public utility must be permitted to earn the going rate of interest on the theorctical cost of reproducing its property. In this reproduction "cost" is included not only the "cost" of reproducing outworn and obsolete facilities, but also the "cost" of reproducing the business, which is called the "going value" of the property, and may amount to anything from 5 to 50 per cent of the physical value. This is in spite of the fact that the public creates the "going value" of the utility by furnishing it with business the moment it is ready to operate—often giving it a monopoly.

"To the argument that public regulation by a State Commission should protect the car riders, the answer is that today one of the most conspicuous failures in government has been the effort to regulate public utility corporations by State Commissions. The political weakness of the State Commissions is not the sole reason for their failures. The courts through the development of theories of property values, through their excessive zeal to protect the private investor, rather than the public user, have done their share to destroy effective regulation. In addition, the modern development of holding companies—the interrelation of electric companies, street railways, gas plants and other utilities under one financial control—has raised formidable obstacles to any effective regulation. All this is common knowledge throughout the country and the difficulties in St. Louis are like those met everywhere.

"But it is commonly overlooked that the cities strip themselves of power and destroy their capacity to protect their citizens only when they grant franchises. So long as a street car company operates at the pleasure of the local government, it will remain subject to reasonable regulation in the interest of the community. There is no good reason why a city should strip itself of its power to protect the car riders by transforming the public rights in the public streets into a vested right of a private corporation.

"It is easy to claim that money will not be available for investment in new facilities in extensions and improvements unless the public utility is given a franchise. The investor and the investment banker naturally demand all the protection they can possibly get, and they would rather have a mortgage upon the streets than a mere privilege to use them. But utilities are financed and do operate successfully upon a revocable permit, and so long as a necessary public service is being furnished at a fair rate, what public official would attempt to terminate a permit and leave the community without a necessary service? It could only happen when the public had been rendered desperate by prolonged and flagrant abuses. Obviously, a company which would not behave itself under a revocable permit should not be trusted with an irrevocable franchise. As a matter of fact, with their solicitude to protect private investment and every sort of property right, the courts can be relied upon by investors to prevent any arbitrary or unfair use of public power.

"There may be another answer to the claim that it would be difficult to finance extensions and improvements upon a mere permit to operate. It is entirely possible that the City of St. Louis may be able, through the use of its bonding power, itself to provide the necessary funds to furnish facilities or to build extensions, and to lease them for a fair return upon the actual investment, and to provide, through amortization, for the eventual retirement of the public investment. There may be also available the power to support the credit of the company by the public credit through provision in permits for reimbursement of the company's capital expenditures in the event its permit is revoked, as was done by the City of Detroit.

"These things, at least, are clear: The furnishing of public transportation upon the public highways is primarily a public job. The responsibility for its performance rests primarily upon the local government. If that government is to grant to a private corporation the authority to render this public service, and give with that authority the right to make a private profit, it is plainly the first duty of the city to provide insurance to its inhabitants that good public service will be rendered at a reasonable cost. It is plainly the duty of the city not to take any course which will simply turn over the use of the public streets to a private corporation to be exploited for private profit without any further power of revocation or regulation by the city. So long as either through defect in the law, or through unwillingness of a private corporation to acknowledge and yield to city control, it is impossible for the city to grant a franchise without granting away its regulatory power and thus losing every vestige of home rule, it seems plainly the duty of city officials to decline to do more than to grant a permit under which the street car corporation will be permitted to furnish public service during good behavior, and no longer."

Richberg Represented the Public in "the Greatest Lawsuit in History"

SINCE the elevation of Louis D. Brandeis to the United States Supreme Court, Donald R. Richberg has been recognized as the foremost exponent of the "prudent investment" theory of public utility valuation. As special counsel for the City of Chicago, he successfully opposed the efforts of the Insull-owned gas company to increase the valuation on which rates were based, and obtained from the courts an order commanding the company to refund to its customers $10,000,000 which it had already collected. Appearing as the lone representative of the public before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the greatest valuation test case in history—the O'Fallon railway case—Richberg succeeded in having his view adopted by the Commission, thus achieving a single-handed victory over the most imposing array of legal talent ever assembled in a valuation case. Subsequently, the Commission's decision was overturned by the United States Supreme Court, which insisted that consideration must be given to the cost of "reproduction new." In addition to these labors, Richberg has participated in other celebrated cases, and is the author of four volumes. As counsel for the railway brotherhoods, he opposed the Daugherty injunctions in the railroad shopmen's strike, and obtained from the Supreme Court a unanimous opinion upholding the defendants' right to jury trials in contempt cases. He is counsel for the National Conference on Valuation of Railroads, of which Senator Norris of Nebraska is chairman.

WHAT IT MEANS TO BE PRESIDENT

First of a Series of Articles by Calvin Coolidge.

Listened to Cabinet Members as They Discussed Problems but Made Decisions Himself Without Aid of Their Vote—Intimate Details of His Personal Life in the White House.

By CALVIN COOLIDGE

AS I recall the mounting events of the years I spent in Washington I appreciate how impossible it is to convey an adequate realization of the office of President. A few short paragraphs in the Constitution of the United States describes all his fundamental duties. Various laws passed over a period of nearly a century and a half have supplemented his authority. All of his actions can be analyzed. All of his goings and comings can be recited. The details of his daily life can be made known. The effect of his policies on his own country and on the world at large can be estimated. His methods of work, his associates, his place of abode, can all be described. But the relationship created by all these and more, which constitute the magnitude of the office, does not yield to definition. Like the glory of a morning sunrise, it can only be experienced—it cannot be told.

In the discharge of the duties of the office there is one rule of action more important than all others. It consists in never doing anything that someone else can do for you. Like many other good rules, it is proven by its exceptions. But it indicates a course that should be very strictly followed in order to prevent being so entirely devoted to trifling details that there will be little opportunity to give the necessary consideration to policies of larger importance.

More Power Than a King.

Like some other rules, this one has an important corollary which must be carefully observed in order to secure success. It is not sufficient to entrust details to someone else. They must be entrusted to someone who is competent. The presidency is primarily an executive office. It is placed at the apex of our system of government. It is a place of last resort to which all questions are brought that others have not been able to answer. The ideal way for it to function is to assign to the various positions men of sufficient ability so that they can solve all the problems that arise under their jurisdiction. If there is a troublesome situation in Nicaragua, a General McCoy can manage it. If we have differences with Mexico, a Morrow can compose them. If there is unrest in the Philippines a Stimson can quiet them. About a dozen able, courageous, reliable, and experienced men in the House and the Senate can reduce the problems of legislation almost to a vanishing point.

While it is wise for the President to get all the competent advice possible, final judgments are necessarily his own. No one can share with him the responsibility for them. No one can make his decisions for him. He stands at the center of things where no one else can stand. If others make mistakes, they can be relieved, and oftentimes a remedy can be provided. But he cannot retire. His decisions are final and usually irreparable. This constitutes the appalling burden of his office. Not only the welfare of 120,000,000 of his countrymen, but oftentimes the peaceful relations of the world are intrusted to his keeping. At the turn of his hand the guns of an enormous fleet would go into action anywhere in the world, carrying the iron might of death and destruction. His appointment confers the power to administer justice, inflict criminal penalties, declare acts of state legislatures and of the Congress void, and sit in judgment over the very life of the nation. Practically all the civil and military authorities of the Government, except the Congress and the courts, hold their office at his discretion. He appoints, and he can remove. The billions of dollars of government revenue are collected and expended under his direction. The Congress makes the laws, but it is the President who causes them to be executed. A power so vast in its implications has never been conferred upon any ruling sovereign.

Theory and Practice.

Yet the President exercises his authority in accordance with the Constitution and the law. He is truly the agent of the people, performing such functions as they have instrusted to him. Some Presidents have seemed to interpret that as an authorization to take any action which the Constitution, or perhaps the law, does not specifically prohibit. Others have considered that their powers extended only to such acts as were specifically authorized by the Constitution and the statutes. This has always seemed to me to be a hypothetical question, which it would be idle to attempt to determine in advance. It would appear to be the better practice to wait to decide each question on its merits as it arises. Jefferson is said to have entertained the opinion that there was no constitutional warrant for enlarging the territory of the United States, but when the actual facts confronted him he did not hesitate to negotiate the Louisiana Purchase. For all ordinary occasions the specific powers assigned to the President will be found sufficient to provide for the welfare of the country. That is all he needs.

All situations that arise are likely to be simplified, and many of them completely solved, by an application of the Constitution and the law. If what they require to be done, is done, there is no opportunity for criticism and it would be seldom that anything better could be devised. A Commission once came to me with a proposal for adopting rules to regulate the conduct of its members. As they were evenly divided, each side wished me to decide against the other. They did this because, while it is always the nature of a Commissioner to claim that he is entirely independent of the President, he would usually welcome presidential interference with any other Commissioner who does not agree with him. In this case it occurred to me that the Department of Justice should ascertain what the statute setting up this Commission required under the circumstances. A reference to the law disclosed that the Congress had specified the qualifications of the members of the Commission and that they could not by the rule either enlarge or diminish the power of their individual members. So their problem was solved like many others by simply finding out what the law required.

Every Day a Busy One.

Every day of the presidential life is crowded with activities. When people not accustomed to Washington came to the office, or when I met them on some special occasion, they often remarked that it seemed to be my busy day, to which my stock reply came to be that all days were busy and there was little difference among them.

Why Discuss Prisoners of War?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

GENEVA committees have recently been kept busy discussing the status and proper treatment of prisoners of war. The Kellogg pact and the Briand proposal for the realization of Victor Hugo's plan for the United States of Europe led one to suppose that the hideous anachronism of war was definitely outlawed by all civilized peoples.

An American President had previously publicly declared: "It is for the generation that saw and survived the World War to devise measures of prevention. If we fail in this we shall deserve all the disaster which will surely be visited on us because of our failure." A British leader had also assured us that "wars are precipitated by motives which the statesmen responsible for them dare not openly avow. A public discussion would drag those motives in their nudity into the open, where they would die of exposure to the withering contempt of humanity."

More powerful and convincing than the words of either is the advent of the airplane, laden with tons of more and more powerful explosives, and more and more deadly poison gases, such as diphenyl chloroarsine and others, against which no masks efficiently protect.

Recent records tell of a mad speed of 355 miles per hour by a British plane.

No very vivid imagination is needed to convince any Senator, Congressman or M. P. that, with whole cities wiped out and countries desolated, there will be little need to discuss prisoners of war.

There will not be any such animals!

Had not we all better stand by President Hoover and Premier MacDonald in their efforts to make peace prospects real by progressive disarmament, and so save civilization?

A Farmer's View.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR editorial, "Trade and War," and the cartoon by Mr. Fitzpatrick, "The Farm Block," combine to make the Post-Dispatch of the Sept. 5 issue very illuminating. I have been a reader of your paper for more than 40 years and consider it the most outstanding exponent of right in governmental affairs that it has been my fortune to read.

I am of the opinion that the groups opposed to the Hawley-Smoot high tariff bill ought simply to get out of the way, offer no obstruction to its passage, and permit the high tariff barons represented by Watson of Indiana, Reed of Pennsylvania and Moses of New Hampshire, to trample the farming interests deeper in the mire. It cannot be denied that the farmers voted in the 1928 election to be still further taxed and oppressed; with such an expression they surely invite the bill in its present form. They ought to be trampled deeper and deeper into the mud and mire; it may be at some time in the future they will come to their senses, if any they have, crawl out of the mire, wash their countenances, and seek relief from the only source that it can be obtained.

AN OPPRESSED FARMER.

Police Activities Outside St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I SEE by a news item that Chief Gerk has been granted a ruling that permits his men to make arrests, pursue criminals, etc., outside the St. Louis city limits.

This would be very good, indeed, if his men would just stop when they have done this. But when officers from the St. Louis Police Department go out into the county, as they did in Franklin County on Aug. 18, 1929, just at daybreak and yank people out of bed and proceed to beat and abuse law-abiding citizens, some who have never been arrested or accused of crime, in my opinion it is better that they get some local officer to help them separate the law-abiding citizens from the criminal element.

The affair to which I refer took place in Pacific, Mo., and was done by three of the crack officers of the St. Louis force, assisted by a Negro "stool." At a preliminary hearing on Sept. 6 this "stool" was bound over for trial for "assault with intent to kill" and will be tried in the Franklin County Circuit Court in November.

If this is a sample of the work they intend to do in the county, I say, "Stay where you can do things of this sort and get by with it, for they cannot be done in the country."

HICK.

The Farmer's Consolation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR cartoon the other day showing farmer about to get his head cut off by the new tariff bill was very good. It doesn't require much imagination to appreciate Mr. Fitzpatrick's cartoons.

But the farmer should not be downhearted. He has the eighteenth amendment. Surely that is something. He can keep his cellar full of hard cider and wine legally.

ANGLO-AMERICAN NAVIES.

Announcement of agreement between the United States and England on naval disarmament is an augury without precedent in modern times.

These two great English-speaking nations constitute a power on the seas beside which all others are negligible. That is, there are but five maritime nations of any importance, and after the Anglo-American countries only one of these has any considerable strength. This is Japan, which agreed to a 5-5-3 battleship ratio at the Washington disarmament conference in 1921. Neither France nor Italy has or is likely to have a considerable navy. They chiefly arm against each other in the Mediterranean. Upon the other hand, England, the United States and Japan control the seven seas.

President Hoover and Premier MacDonald have brought about the Anglo-American agreement. They have sensibly resolved that for these two great nations to engage in competitive warship building is nonsense. Yet three years ago this competition dominated the thought of both countries. Our then Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Wilbur, lent his indorsement to a naval program which would have cost the American people three-quarters of a billion dollars. The British were equally active. Mr. Coolidge appreciated the danger of such a rivalry and invited England to a conference at Geneva in 1927. The conference was a failure. We have just learned what part the great warship building concerns of the United States played in that failure. Nevertheless, public opinion in the United States against the folly of Mr. Wilbur's big navy program became so powerful that Mr. Coolidge's Government abandoned it. It contented itself with a project to build 15 new cruisers, and there remained enough of the rivalry which reached its height two years before to put the cruiser program through the last Congress.

Then came Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald. They determined to stop the race in warship building. By mutual candor and confidence they have brought their negotiations to a complete agreement. There will be a conference of all the principal maritime powers next winter, and England and America will set the good example of agreement not to have any greater navies than common sense requires. This is a far cry from the bellicosity in both countries a few years ago. It is so far distant from the belligerency of our own country during the regime of Secretary Wilbur as to tax belief.

The effect of the Anglo-American agreement will be felt around the world. Only our 15-cruiser program, which will presumably be abandoned, projects more cruisers for Japan. If we do not build them, Japan is only too glad not to build more for herself. If Japan is not to increase her navy, Australia will not be compelled to ask for more British warships in the Pacific. So goes the circle, as vicious in the old order as it is beneficent in the new. None of these nations except ourselves can afford naval competition. Every one of them would like to be relieved from the necessity to keep on building. The necessity to keep on building can originate only in the Anglo-American nations. That is why the agreement which Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald have made is significant. It is a tremendous contribution to the peace of the world, a promise that nothing must be permitted to overcast.

A ROOSTER-POWER LIGHT SWITCH.

A little town in North Carolina has a Superintendent of Public Works who has studied two systems of engineering: electrical and Rube Goldberg. This all-round technical education has enabled him to rig up one of the most ingenious systems extant for turning street lights on and off, with the aid of an old rooster. The regular habits of Napoleon, the rooster, impressed the superintendent, and he has put them to work. Napoleon did not watch the clock for time to retire, but kept a shrewd eye on the sky. When dusk arrived, at its regular time or earlier because of cloudy weather, he mounted his roost. Similarly, at the crack of dawn he hopped off, flapped his wings and greeted the new day.

The engineer designed a perch along true Goldbergian lines. The perch is balanced so that the rooster's weight depresses it just enough to close the circuit and turn on the street lights. In the morning, when the refreshed Napoleon leaps from his roost, the circuit is opened and the lights go out. It works perfectly, and is reputed to be the only system not depending on a fallible human observer.

Thus we are impressed again with the virtue of keeping regular hours. Napoleon is healthy, happy and wise because he never fails in his schedule. Had he been a Bohemian, roistering rooster, pursuing his pleasures far into the night, he would have landed in chicken fricassee long ago.

THE FOOT-SLIPPING ALIBI.

Near Ashland, Ala., Deputy Sheriff Cecil Guthrie shot and killed Clarence Bailey, 18-year-old high school student and star of the football team. He explained that he saw young Bailey pick up a gallon jug of whisky and run across a pasture. He pursued, fired two shots into the air, and then his foot slipped causing him to stumble and discharge a third shot, which killed Bailey. That is his story and he will probably stick to it.

We do not know whether Deputy Sheriff Guthrie is lying or telling the truth, and we do not believe that he was justified in firing any shots, in the air or anywhere else, in the pursuit of Bailey. But we do know of at least two dozen cases in the last five years in which sheriffs and Federal prohibition officers have testified that their killings were accidental because they stumbled or their foot slipped. It seems as if the aim of a prohibition officer is deadly perfect when he is off his balance. Perhaps the best way to stop prohibition killings is to put all enforcement officers in kiddie-cars or go-carts.

This foot-slipping alibi is getting to be a joke—and an atrocious one, too.

THE FARM OF THE FUTURE.

Fifty years from now, if our prophets may be credited, it will be difficult to find a farmer on the farm. The down-looking aviator will see manless plows, cultivators and harvesters prowling around the fields. Occasionally the owner will step out of his house and transfer one of the machines to another field, or bring a different machine out of the garage and start it to work. Then he will step in his airplane and hop to town for the day.

This idyll is based on the predictions and experiments of an able agricultural engineer, C. R. F. Smith of Iowa State College. He points out that the manless plow has already been put into successful operation, and that other automatic machines will follow. Most difficult of all will be a machine to kill weeds. Writing in the Farm Journal, Mr. Smith says: "The agricultural progress of the past 50 years will be little when compared with the revolution that will take place in the next 50 years."

In fact, the revolution has already been started by Thomas D. Campbell, the biggest farmer in the United States. He operates a farm of 95,000 acres in Montana, producing wheat and flax. He employs only skilled labor, using 52 tractors, which work in three shifts, both night and day. In short, Mr. Campbell has put farming on an industrial or mass production basis.

MAINE'S POWER FIGHT.

Once again the Insull interests have been checkmated in their effort to get a stranglehold on the State of Maine. The latest episode in the long and bitter struggle is the defeat, by a vote of 62,248 to 54,294, of a referendum measure which would have permitted export of surplus hydro-electric power. For 20 years, ever since the Fernald law was passed, Maine has opposed the export of power. Ex-Gov. Brewster, who, as a member of the State Legislature, fathered the Fernald law, made a vigorous campaign against the referendum measure and added another victory over the power interests to his long list.

To understand the fight, it is necessary to know that hydro-electric power is the chief natural resource of Maine and, in the words of Brewster, "whoever controls the water power controls the industrial life of the State." Since nearly all the good power sites have been gobbled up, Maine conceives its only remaining safeguard to be the Fernald law, which makes it necessary to use Maine's hydro-electric power in Maine industry. The State's fear is now, and always has been, that, if permitted to do so, the power companies would run the power out of the State to develop industries in other states, principally New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts.

Last fall, after numerous assaults on the Fernald law had been repulsed, a flank attack was made by the power interests, backed by most of the newspapers in Maine (with the outstanding exception of the Portland Evening News), the Republican Old Guard and other influential groups. It took the form of an effort to repeal the direct primary law and substitute the old-fashioned convention system of selecting candidates. The proposal was beaten at the polls by a 2-to-1 vote. If it had been successful, again to quote Brewster, "Maine would be governed by a group of men you could put within the boundaries of this carpet. Those men would represent the Insull power companies, the Fidelity Trust Co. of Portland and the Gannett newspapers. They would see to it that the Fernald law was repealed."

It is estimated that Insull has an investment in Maine of between $60,000,000 and $75,000,000, including industries which have valuable power sites. Brewster thinks that, if it were possible to export power from the State, Insull would promptly turn the industries into hydro-electric generators and sell the power elsewhere. This is denied by one of Insull's spokesmen, who quotes Insull as saying he is interested primarily in the development of Maine industry.

Yet the Insull interests continue their fight against the Fernald law, indicating they have a huge stake in its repeal, while Brewster and the people of Maine just as steadfastly resist what they believe would be a death blow to the State. How much longer the people will be able to hold out against the immensely powerful Insull crowd would be difficult to say. Up to the present, however, the people have stood their ground with true New England pertinacity. More power, literally and figuratively, to them.

PASSING OF THE STRAP.

A strap is a piece of leather, sometimes used to spank children. That is not done very much nowadays, partly because straps are becoming scarce around the house, what with the advent of safety razors and zippers. To grown-ups a strap is another form of punishment, when it is looped and attached to the ceiling of a street car. As such it has become a national symbol for the street car. Now a St. Louis trolley official has made an investigation of the subject and reported that "current styles in women's wear make it inadvisable for a woman to lift her arm above her head, since the garments hang from the shoulder, and the skirt, already short enough, is unduly elevated in such a posture." He noticed also that the men seemed to prefer other means of steadying themselves, and that the straps were unsightly anyway. As a result of this investigation, straps are omitted from the equipment of 25 new St. Louis street cars, and may soon be shorn from the old cars.

Undoubtedly, another and practical reason for the removal of straps is the steady decrease in the number of passengers. Fewer passengers mean fewer straphangers, and there are no straps in service cars and busses. The passing of the symbol may be an omen of the passing of the street car itself.

WHO FOOTS THE TARIFF BILL?

With the Senate Finance Committee about to check up on the profits and other business affairs of the firms which are scheduled to benefit by the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, it might be well to look at the other side of the picture and see who will pay the levies to be imposed by the measure.

Families of average means and less are the ones who will foot the higher bills made necessary under the proposed schedules. Day-by-day living costs would be increased, with sugar the conspicuous example of the exorbitant levies. An authority on dietetics assails the bill as "the anti-vitamin tariff," pointing out that its effect will be particularly severe in winter, when fresh vegetables are a most desirable addition to the family menu. Sickness, a growing bugaboo to those of moderate means because of mounting hospital and medical costs, will become more so, for rates on surgical instruments and medicines are greatly increased. Education and research also are penalized, with higher duties on laboratory equipment and books. The rates on building materials have been modified over the first draft, but even so the cost of a new home will be greatly increased; for one thing because of the high rate on cement. This part of the schedule also will add to the cost of highway construction.

The moderate of means seemingly are singled out by other increases. There are advances ranging up to a rate of 1000 per cent in the tariff on pearl buttons, imitation pearls and similar cheap accessories of dress. Yet the levies on genuine pearls and on diamonds have been greatly reduced or eliminated, to the benefit of the wealthy.

So it goes, all the way down the list. It is a tariff schedule for and by big business, and the average householder will pay for it.

WHAT POLITICS IS ABOUT IN THE STATE OF MAINE.

What Force Shall Veto War?

Proposal is made to have three great sea powers enforce peace by blockading belligerents, but they could do this only if agreed on all points; plan for negotiation by business men, not governments, based on false conception of modern political scheme; League of Nations represents united opinion so is best fitted to function.

James T. Shotwell in the New Republic.

THE problems of peace are as definitely localized as those of war. Peace is not a vast repository of good intentions; it is a geographic as well as a political fact. It rests upon the solution of a multitude of little things and although it extends over more territory than the most far-flung battle front, it is none the less a theater of action in which each nation plays its own part in its own way. Universal peace is the sum total of peace here and there throughout the world, peace in the Balkans, in the Caribbean, in Asia, Europe or Africa. It means that some definite frontier still stands intact; some possible encounters did not take place. The problems of peace are as specific as the issues that threaten it, and they call for a study of the appropriate means for settling them when and where they occur. The problems of international peace are those of practical politics in its most practical form. If war is the concentration of controversy, peace, as the veto upon war, must be as capable of concentration and application in given areas as between given disputants.

Richard Washburn Child, ex-Ambassador to Italy, asserts in a recent magazine article that in the specific cases when the League is called upon to act, it is not only impotent itself but positively harmful in that it keeps the nations which compose it from taking the one effective way to outlaw war, namely, to make their combinations against a specific outbreak of war. The only generalization that he considers necessary is to have the three great sea powers join together and put their veto against war anywhere in the world; with their control of the seas they will be able to block others and with their agreement among themselves they will be able to maintain peace upon the seas. This, he implies, is the direct and effective way, as opposed to the roundabout measures of the League. That it would be effective—for a while—is beyond denial. As things stand now, Great Britain, the United States and Japan could control the shipment overseas of most of the necessary raw materials, supplies and munitions of war, without which no belligerent could long survive in the industrial war of today. If the great naval powers agree to do so, says our critic of the League, they can stop any major war between civilized nations.

At first sight this seems to be a common sense statement of a practical solution, but when we begin to examine it we find difficulties from the very start. If the great naval powers agree to stop a war they must agree upon the direction of their action, which means that they must all be willing to place responsibility upon the same nation and be equally willing to take the consequences of joint measures against the aggressor or joint help to the victim. If one thinks of these sea powers as acting like trustees of the Paris peace pact, we should not forget Mr. Kellogg's insistence that there is no such undertaking envisaged in the pact itself. On the contrary, he insisted in the strongest terms that each signatory was to judge for itself whether or not the pact was violated by the act of others and what it should do about it when the event happened. A veto upon war by the three sea powers could not therefore be carried out in the terms of the treaty itself, for if each one was free at any moment to decide against the judgment of the others either for or against imposing a veto—that is to say using embargo or blockade or some such means against another nation—then the whole proposal would break down.

It is obvious that with or without a League of Nations there must be agreement among the great powers, or the international action to prevent war is definitely impossible. Geneva seeks to establish this through political action in the Council of the League; the proposal now before us would substitute unofficial negotiations in the world of business and finance. Bankers and chambers of commerce would meet to insure the continuance of the peace-time relations of the world of business, and their guarantee of peace would hold so long as the "politicians" could be kept out of these matters of international business. Governments, he claims, should step aside to allow the realistic forces of peace to work "peacefully and constructively; and so there would be an end to intrigue in the dawn of fair dealing by those who are directly interested in seeing the right thing done.

Now whatever reservations there may be in public opinion about the organization at Geneva, they are slight indeed compared with the chances of having a scheme like this accepted. The day has passed, so far as this country is concerned, when international affairs can be abstracted from the responsibilities of government. We may make mistakes in the art of government, but we are not going to lessen its authority on that account and, more especially, we are not likely to lessen it in such fundamental problems as those of war and peace. As a matter of fact, the scope of government both at home and abroad is being steadily enlarged with the development of the electorate, and the pessimist who thinks that we are managing our affairs worse on that account should study the history of this or any other country to see how great has been the advance in capacity, paralleling the extension of the field. In any case, the argument against too much interference of government in domestic affairs has never been seriously applied to foreign policy. There the aims are those which interest the common man more and more, and the only safety lies in an enlarged intelligence which comes through political education. There is no safety in Fascism, even of the business type, and, the problems of war and peace will eternally revert to the sphere of politics and within it to the action of responsible governments.

BUT DO THEY COME WHEN CALLED?

From Judge.

NOT that it makes any difference, but the new $1000 bills are so much smaller than the old ones they're calling them baby grands.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.

BITS of gossip picked up from Capitol Hill to the White House:

No one can live in the capital of the United States through the coming and going of succeeding administrations without having it brought home forcefully that fame is fleeting.

Take, for example, C. Bascom Slemp, one-time secretary to President Coolidge and for many years a power in the councils of the Republican party.

Slemp was at a tea party in Washington the other day. It so chanced that almost every guest was a Democrat. The guest of honor was a woman from Ohio, a life-long Republican.

In presenting Slemp the tactful hostess remarked:

"And now, when you meet this gentleman, you won't feel so lonesome among all us Democrats."

The guest of honor smiled sweetly, held out her hand and exclaimed:

"Oh, I'm so glad to meet you, Mr. Slemp. Are you a Republican?"

FOR years employes of the Post Office Department have addressed the Postmaster-General as "General." When Walter F. Brown came to head the department his subordinates continued the practice, but not for long. He soon let it be known he didn't like it. And it was dropped.

A far different view is taken down in the Navy Department by Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary. In New Orleans, his home city, he is called "Commodore" by every one. He likes the title—even encourages it. It is meaningless in so far as carrying any suggestion of rank, for "Commodore" is no longer a part of the navy's nomenclature.

Jahncke is an enthusiastic member of President Hoover's medicine ball cabinet. During its sessions, and with all he gets for the name "Commodore."

VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS still owns 160 acres of homestead property valued at $8000 by virtue of the fact that he is a member of the Kaw Indian tribe.

He is still listed at the Department of Interior as "an incompetent Indian," which means that he can't dispose of it without Government sanction. And the designation is by his request. Gladly would the Government erase it.

But the Vice President insists that in letting it remain he is setting a good example for his people.

SANDWICHES are preferred as food by members of the House of Representatives. Or at least so it seems.

On complaint of the House restaurant in the Capitol that it was losing money, Representative Charles L. Underhill, chairman of the committee on accounts, moved to close the sandwich shop adjacent to the restaurant.

But such a cry arose that he was forced to permit it to reopen. And in addition a regular "pie shop" was opened.

The greatest loser is Nick Longworth. He had to sacrifice the Speaker's private dining room in the shuffle.

What It Means to Be President

It was my custom to be out of bed about 6:30, except in the darkest mornings of winter. One of the doormen at the White House was an excellent barber, but I always preferred to shave myself with old-fashioned razors which I knew how to keep in good condition. It was my intention to take a short walk before breakfast, which Mrs. Coolidge and I ate together in our rooms. For me there was fruit and about one-half cup of coffee, with a home-made cereal obtained from boiling together two parts of unground wheat with one part rye. To this was added a roll and a strip of bacon, which went mostly to the dogs.

A Handshaking Record.

Soon after eight round me dictating in the White House Library in preparation for some public utterance. This would go on for more than an hour, after which I began to receive callers at the office. Most of these came by appointment, but in addition to the average of six to eight who were listed, there would be about as many more from my Cabinet and the Congress, to whom I was always accessible. Each one came to me with a different problem requiring my decision, which was usually made at once. About 12:15 those began to be brought in who were to be somewhat formally presented. At 12:30 the doors were opened and a long line passed by who wished merely to shake hands with the President. On one occasion I shook hands with 1900 in 34 minutes, which is probably my record. Instead of a burden, it was a pleasure and a relief to meet people in that way and listen to their greeting, which was often a benediction. It was at this same hour that the numerous groups assembled in the south grounds, where I joined them for the photographs used for news purposes and permanent mementoes of their White House visit.

Lunch came at 1 o'clock, at which we usually had guests. It made an opportunity for giving our friends a little more attention than could be extended through a mere handshake. About an hour was devoted to rest before returning to the office, where the afternoon was reserved for attention to the immense number of documents which pass over the desk of the President. These were all cleaned up each day. Before dinner another walk was in order, followed by exercise on some of the vibrating machines kept in my room. We gathered at the dinner table at 7 o'clock, and within three-quarters of an hour work would be resumed with my stenographer, to continue until about 10 o'clock. Of course, there were many variations, but this was the usual routine.

No Vote in Cabinet.

The White House offices are under the direction of the secretary to the President. They are the center of activities which are world-wide. Reports come in daily from heads of departments, from distant possessions, and from foreign diplomats and consular agents scattered all over the earth. A mass of correspondence, from the Congress, the officials of the states, and the general public, is constantly being received. All of this often reaches 2000 pieces in a day. Very much of it is sent at once to the department to which it refers, from which an answer is sent direct to the writer. Other parts are sent to different members of the office staff, and some is laid before the President. While I signed my letters, I did not dictate many. After indicating the nature of the reply, it was usually put into form by some of the secretaries. A great many photographs were sent in to be inscribed, and a constant stream of autographs went to all who wrote for them.

At 10:30 on Tuesdays and Fridays the Cabinet meetings were held. These were always very informal. Each member was asked if he had any problem he wished to lay before the President. When I first attended with President Harding at the beginning of a new administration, these were rather numerous. Later, they decreased, as each member felt better able to solve his own problems. After entire freedom of discussion, but always without a vote of any kind, was accustomed to announce what the decision would be.

There never ought to be and never were marked differences of opinion in my Cabinet. As their duties were not to advise each other, but to advise the President, they could not disagree among themselves. I rarely failed to accept their recommendations. Sometimes they wished for larger appropriations that the state of the Treasury warranted, but they all co-operated most sincerely in the policy of economy and were content with such funds as I could assign to them.

CHURCH CORNERSTONE LAYING

Ceremonies Today at St. Martin's, High Ridge, Mo.

Cornerstone laying ceremonies will be held for the St. Martin's Evangelical Church, High Ridge, Mo., 25 miles southwest of St. Louis on United States Highway No. 30, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. H. T. Bahnsen of St. Louis will deliver the address.

The new building supplants a frame church built in 1910. Up to that time the congregation had worshipped in a log-built church constructed in 1868.

Trotzky Tells of Negotiating German Peace Treaty With Two Antagonistic Diplomats

Gen. Von Hoffmann at One Stage Declares, "I Don't Represent the Government But the High Command!"

By LEON TROTZKY.

THE decision to make peace was adopted by the Congress of Soviets on Oct. 26 (Nov. 8 by Western calendar) at a time when Petrograd alone was in our hands. On Nov. 7 I launched a general appeal by wireless to the Entente and Central powers, inviting them to make peace.

The reply of the Allies, sent through their agents to Gen. Dukhonin, the commander-in-chief, was that any further steps in the direction of a separate peace "would entail the gravest consequences."

To this threat I replied by a manifesto to all soldiers, workers and peasants. The purport of my appeal was perfectly clear; if we had felled OUR bourgeoisie it was not to shed the blood of our people in the cause of a FOREIGN bourgeoisie.

On Nov. 22, 1917, we signed an agreement to suspend warlike operations on the entire front from the Baltic to the Black Sea. We once more communicated with the Allies, proposing that they should conduct peace negotiations along with us.

We received no reply, but this time we received no threats either.

Peace Negotiations Begun.

Peace negotiations began on Dec. 9, six weeks after the peace resolution had been adopted. At the very outset our delegation issued a declaration outlining the terms of a democratic peace. The other side asked for an adjournment of the conference.

Postponement followed postponement—the delegates of the Quadruple Alliance were obviously having great difficulty in framing a reply to our declaration. Their reply finally was presented on Dec. 25: the delegation of the Quadruple Alliance "heartily indorsed" the democratic proposals that we had made—no annexations and no indemnities, and self-determination for all peoples.

On Dec. 28 there was a gigantic demonstration in Petrograd in favor of a democratic peace. The masses, though not deluded by the Prussian reply, regarded it nevertheless as a great moral victory. Next morning our delegation arrived from Brest-Litovsk bearing the text of the plundering demands of Kuhlmann (Richard von Kuhlmann, then Foreign Minister of Germany), made on behalf of the Central Powers.

Sent to Brest-Litovsk.

On the insistence of Lenin and of the Central Committee as a whole I went to Brest-Litovsk. I went with all the enthusiasm of a man entering the torture chamber. Going into any assembly of hostile strangers had always been torture enough for me—but Brest-Litovsk!

The first Soviet delegation, led by Joffe, had been subjected to the most insidious intrigues at Brest-Litovsk. Prince Leopold of Bavaria received them "as his guests." All the delegations dined and supped together. Germans sat next to each of our men and endeavored to worm out of them all the information they required.

As the new chairman of the Russian delegation I determined to put an immediate end to the familiarities which somehow had crept into relations between the two delegations during the first session of the conference.

Avoids Personal Meeting.

I sent an intimation through our military attaches that I did not desire to be presented personally to the Bavarian Prince. I also requested that the delegations dine and sup separately, arguing that we had to confer during meals. These requests were silently accepted. A strictly dry and official attitude replaced the former familiarity.

Kuhlmann was head and shoulders above Count Czernin (Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister) and also above the other diplomats that I have met since. He was clearly a man of character, with a practical intelligence above the average, and a sufficient stock of bad temper, which he used not only against us—where it met its match—but also against his dear allies.

When we came to the point of territories under enemy occupation, Kuhlmann pushed out his chest and raised his voice to declare that "our German soil, thank God, has never been held by an enemy." Czernin's face went green and his stature shrank by inches. Of course, Kuhlmann said it merely to annoy Czernin. Their mutual relations were by no means idyllic.

Impression of Meeting.

It was my first contact with men of these exalted strata of society. I need not say that I cherished no illusions about them. My impressions of the first meeting might be summed up thus: Men hold others cheap, and themselves not so very dear.

Brest-Litovsk no longer existed, save for a few buildings outside the town limits, which were now occupied by the German staff. The town itself had been burned by the retreating Czarist troops as a gesture of weak and helpless spite.

This was the reason Gen. von Hoffmann (Field Marshal Otto von Hoffmann of the German general staff) selected this site, for here he could hold his staff more easily in hand. The whole surroundings, not to speak of the fare, were of the utmost simplicity. German soldiers acted as waiters. To them we were messengers of peace, and they looked upon us with eyes of hope.

The negotiations dragged on.

Seizure "Self Determination."

Kuhlmann was anxious to prove that the seizure by Germany of Poland, Lithuania, the Baltic states and Finland was nothing but a form of "self-determination" of these peoples, since their will to be German had been declared through "national" organisms created—by the German occupation authorities.

This proposition was not easy to prove. But Kuhlmann would not give up.

At the first glance it may seem incomprehensible that the Germans took such pains to expound their democratic theories, only to come out in the open two or three days later with their wolfish appetites. It was certainly risky, to say the least, for the German Government to keep up these theoretical discussions, yet they were kept up on the broadest lines, mainly upon Kuhlmann's own initiative. That the Hohenzollerns had no laurels to win on such a battlefield must have been clear to themselves from the outset.

Kuhlmann's Firm Conviction.

But the secret of this attitude on the part of German diplomacy was to be sought in Kuhlmann's obvious firm convictions that we should be ready to play his game, like a four-hand piece on the piano.

Kuhlmann's illusions were undoubtedly fostered by our Liberals, Mensheviks and Populists, who from the beginning described the Brest negotiations as a comedy, with the parts distributed beforehand.

Gen. Von Hoffmann contributed a refreshing note to the negotiations. With no respect for diplomatic finesse or etiquette, he more than once placed his heavy military boot on the table around which the negotiations wended their tortuous way. I did not doubt for a moment that the general's boot, and nothing else, was the factor of reality in the negotiations.

His Own Peculiar Way.

Sometimes, too, the general would make an interruption into purely political conversations. But he did it in his own peculiar way. Weary of long disquisitions of the right of self-determination of peoples, the general burst in one day with a portfolio full of Russian newspapers, mainly of the social-revolutionary tendency.

Gen. Von Hoffmann could read Russian fluently. In short, staccato sentences, as if barking at somebody or giving orders to subordinates, he accused the Bolsheviks of suppressing free speech and assembly, and of other breaches of democratic principles. He reproached us with great indignation for the fact that our Government maintained itself by force and violence.

That sounded truly overwhelming. I replied to Von Hoffmann that in a class society every government maintained itself by force. The only difference was that whereas Gen. Von Hoffmann's government applied repression to protect the great land owners, we applied it to protect the toilers. For a few minutes the peace conference became a beginners' class in Marxism. Von Hoffman's face grew livid.

Titled Gentlemen Bewildered.

These discussions of the true nature of revolutionary violence had a flavor of incomparable piquancy in that assembly of Hohenzollern, Hapsburg, Sultanic and Coburg diplomatists. Some of the titled and bemedaled gentlemen around the table listened with the utmost perplexity, turning their glances from Kuhlmann to Czernin and from Czernin to Kuhlmann. They wished that someone would tell them what it all meant.

Kuhlmann had doubtless told them behind the scenes that the existence of our government was only a matter of weeks, which must be utilized to make a "German" peace, the burden of which would be borne by the Bolsheviks' successors.

Upon the plane of discussions of principle my position was much stronger than Kuhlmann's, just as Von Hoffmann's was much stronger than mine on the plane of military facts. That is why the general was so anxious to bring matters down to the correlation of forces. That was quite comprehensible.

But Kuhlmann was trying to make a peace based on the military map look like a peace based on democratic principles. It was an impossible task, and explains why the experienced diplomatist was caught on the horns of a dilemma at every turn.

I recall particularly the intonation of his voice when he declared that Germany was making a sincere effort toward restoration of friendly relations with her powerful Eastern neighbor. The word "powerful" was uttered with such provocative insolence that everybody, even our opponents, winced.

Czernin was mortally afraid lest that jibe should break up the conference. I took up the gauntlet and answered that while I did not in the least contest the importance of material force, yet every force ought to be measured by its probable consequences. In other words, we must look ahead to what tomorrow might bring forth.

Cites Speech a Year Later.

Less than a year later—on Oct. 3, 1918—speaking at a meeting of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, and mentioning the challenge thrown down at Brest-Litovsk by Kuhlmann, I said: "Not one of us feels any malicious joy over Germany's colossal misfortune." Yet it is idle today to present proofs that a great part of that misfortune was due to the attitude adopted by German diplomacy at Brest-Litovsk.

The more clearly we expressed our questions the more Von Hoffmann took the ascendency over Kuhlmann. They no longer concealed their mutual antagonism, especially the General. When, in reply to one of Hoffmann's periodical attacks, I mentioned the German Government—without any notion of offending him—Hoffmann angrily interrupted me: "I don't represent the German Government, but the German High Command!"

Like Crash of Glass.

It was like a crash of broken glass. Kuhlmann, with twisted face, looked under the table. Czernin presented a picture of mixed emotions — embarrassment struggling with pleasure at his colleague's discomfiture.

I replied that I did not consider myself qualified to judge of the relationship between the Government of the German Empire and its High Command, but that I had been authorized to conduct negotiations with the Government only. Kuhlmann knashed his teeth, took note of my statement, and obviously shared my sentiments.

The principal trump in Kuhlmann's hand during the latter stages of the conference was the attitude of the Kiev, Ukrainian Rada, or council, toward Moscow. The Kiev nationalist politicians were an Ukrainian variety of Kerenskyism. They differed little from their Great-Russian prototype, save in that they were more provincial.

Dupes of Diplomats.

The delegates at the Rada at Brest-Litovsk had been specially created by nature herself to be the dupes of capitalistic diplomats. Not only Kuhlmann, but even Czernin, engaged in that pastime with condescending contempt and entire success. Those democratic simpletons were beside themselves with joy when they saw the substantial firms of Hohenzollern and Hapsburg taking them seriously.

Meanwhile, a detachment of revolutionary soldiers was successfully advancing through the Ukraine, fighting its way toward the Dnieper River. And on the very day when the abscess came to a head and it became clear that Golubovitch was negotiating the sale of the Ukraine to Kuhlmann and Czernin, the Ukrainian capital, Kiev, was occupied by soviet troops.

I told Kuhlmann and Czernin at our next meeting that they were negotiating with representatives of a government whose whole territory was bounded by the city limits of Brest-Litovsk. (Under the agreement that city was to become part of the Ukraine). But the German Government—or more exactly the German high command—had by that time decided to occupy the Ukraine with its troops. The diplomacy of the Central Empires was merely trying to obtain a kind of laisser-passer for their armed forces. Ludendorff was working with all his might to dig the grave of the Hohenzollern army.

Portes Gil Tells Of Reconstruction Policy in Mexico

as is shown from the following table of comparative tonnage in agricultural production:

	1921	1927.
	Tons.	Tons.
Beane oil	3,000	12,325
Cotton	23,000	35,822
Alfalfa	123,000	1,702,889
Rice	30,000	75,729
Peanuts	3,000	5,118
Sweet potatoes	20,000	29,229
Sugar cane ..	2,000	6,310,284
Barley	65,000	97,982

On these and other statistics the Government of Mexico bases its present hope regarding its agrarian policy. It is our belief that by continuing the land reform policy to its logical end we shall not only establish an advanced system of agriculture which will be of immense benefit to the farmers, but also to the population of the country as a whole.

In my next article I intend to discuss the labor and financial questions.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CALENDAR REFERENDUM

Trade Bodies in Nearby Cities to Be Canvassed by Local Association.

A referendum on the calendar reform program of the United States Chamber of Commerce will be taken among the membership of the local Chamber of Commerce, member organizations of the General Council on Civic Needs and trade bodies in nearby cities and towns, it was announced yesterday by Erastus Wells, chairman of the board. The ballots will be mailed out in a few days.

The national body does not recommend any one of the various reforms agitated but think the calendar should be revised because of inconveniences in business accounting arising from the fact that months, quarters and half years are unequal in length.

ESSEX SUPER SIX

GREATEST IN PERFORMANCE . . .

SPEED—faster than any car ever built in its price class—Not just a fine drawn shade of advantage but a smashing big superiority that easily distances anything in this field. Its supremacy is not based on theoretical horsepower and specially adapted test devices. Essex speed is a real and usable quality—established on the road—established in records at better than 70 miles an hour, all over the country—established by stop-watch timing over measured distances—established by owners who know and constantly demonstrate that nothing can touch it at the price.

GETAWAY—here again the proofs are actual, from 5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds—from 10 to 70 in 19.2 seconds. But more important is the value of Essex getaway in daily service. Its ability is so well known that everyone expects it to be first away at the signal "Go."

SMOOTHNESS—exclusive to the patented Super-Six principle, which no other maker can copy.

ECONOMY—never approached with like performance. You may expect 18 miles to the gallon and upward—many get more—in your Essex the Challenger. Important taxicab companies have chosen Essex the Challenger as exclusive equipment because its total of all operating expenses was the lowest in the whole motor world. To every buyer there is assured fuel and oil economy, durability, tire wear and low maintenance expense.

RELIABILITY—official tests, as well as the experience of 200,000 owners, with the lowest actual records of service cost, establish Essex the Challenger as the "Reliability Car of the Year." Two Essex entries with perfect scores, won the Grand Prize of the famous "Tour de France" reliability classic, against a large field of costlier American and European cars. No other car of whatever price level equalled the perfect record scored by both Essex entries.

GREATEST IN VALUE . . .

Combined with its supreme qualities of performance and reliability Essex the Challenger gives a completeness and a wealth of detail heretofore associated only with costly cars. You may select from a wide choice of color at no extra cost. Its riding ease is enhanced by 4 hydraulic shock absorbers. Double-action 4-wheel brakes give smooth, positive braking control. All weather control of motor heat is provided by smart, lacquered vertical radiator shutters. Air-cleaner, electric gauge for fuel and oil, starter on dash, safety lock and chromium-plated bright parts are further "extras" which Essex the Challenger gives at no extra cost. To add these features in a car of the Essex price class would cost above $100. IN ESSEX YOU PAY NOT ONE CENT EXTRA.

5-DAY WEEK VOTED BY UNION LATHERS

About Half of the 17,000 Members Already Working on This Schedule.

All of the 17,000 union lathers in the United States will work but five days a week effective next July 1, under a resolution adopted Friday by delegates to the convention of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union, which closed at Hotel Jefferson yesterday.

The resolution was adopted on a showing that approximately half the lathers in the country now work but five days a week, including those in St. Louis. The proposal conforms with the expressed policy of the American Federation of Labor, which at this time is conducting a campaign for the five-day week generally.

St. Louis lathers, along with other local building workers, were among the first to establish the shortened working week. In connection with the American Federation of Labor plan, local unions have been requested to report on the effects of the five-day week, which was established over the protest of employers. Under the reduced working week employment is provided for more men, labor leaders contend, while employers base their objections on the ground that considerable time is lost in building construction regularly through weather conditions and a further reduction of the working period will increase building costs.

William J. McSorley, president of the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, was elected international president of the lathers' union at an election here yesterday, which marked the closing of the meeting. McSorley, who was first vice president of the lathers' organization, announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election as head of the Building Trades Department when the American Federation of Labor meets next month. The salary of the president of the lathers' organization was increased from $6000 to $10,000 at the convention and that of secretary from $5000 to $7500. McSorley succeeds John R. Bell who completed a three-year term in office. Both are from Cleveland.

Other officers elected were: George Moore, first vice president; E. N. Kelly, second vice president; William Murphy, third vice president; R. B. Jeffries, fourth vice president; C. J. Hagerty, fifth vice president; Joseph Duty, sixth vice president; Edward McKnight, seventh vice president; H. J. Hagen and Charles Case, delegates to the American Federation of Labor.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH DEDICATION AT FERGUSON

Building Is Memorial to Mrs. Eliza Cowan Atwood; Services at 10:30 a. m. Today.

The dedication of the new $40,000 First Presbyterian Church in Ferguson, provided as a memorial to the late Mrs. Eliza Cowan Atwood by her children, will be held at 10:30 a. m. today with the Rev. R. Calvin Dobson of St. Louis preaching the sermon.

Mrs. Atwood organized the church at the old site, Clay avenue near Church street, more than 50 years ago and the first Sunday school session was in her home. Provision of the building fund in May, 1928, followed a gift of the new site, Darst road and Clay avenue, made several months earlier by John C. Atwood, one of the family.

Other donors are the Misses Helen and Annie Atwood and Le Grand Atwood of Ferguson; Tom Atwood of San Angelo, Tex., and William Atwood of Boston, Mass.

The Rev. M. V. P. Yeaman, the pastor of the church, and the Rev. Baxter P. Fullerton of St. Louis will also give addresses today.

CONTRACTS GRANTED FOR NEW $236,000 BARRACKS HOSPITAL

William McDonald Construction Co. Designated as Builders by Veterans' Bureau.

Contracts for the construction of a new $236,000 hospital building with separate medical officers' quarters at Jefferson Barracks within the next 160 days were granted Friday by the Veterans' Bureau to the William MacDonald Construction Co., in the Syndicate Trust Building, according to word received from Washington yesterday by Congressman John J. Cochran.

The main building will be a three-story structure, providing 57 beds for the care of mentally disabled veterans and is so designed that additional wings may be added at any period for further expansion. A separate home for the medical officer in charge of the hospital and two duplexes for doctors engaged in clinical work will be built in the stated period before March 2, 1930, making possible the release of space, now used by them, for other purposes.

Congressman Cochran stated yesterday that he believed that construction of additional wings to the hospital would be accomplished in a reasonable time after the completion of the main building.

MUSICAL ARTS BUILDING FIGURES IN WEEK'S DEALS

Ralph Coale Acquires Property for Which Professionals Have Long Been Angling.

5671-75 DELMAR CHANGES HANDS

Scott Stores, Kroger's and Lucy Lockett Factory Occupy Building Bought by G. Vivianni.

By Berry Moore.

Olive street and Delmar boulevard furnished the noteworthy features of the week in realty, with developments reflecting renewed interest in holdings on both thoroughfares on the part of speculators as well as investors.

The most important deals involved the southwest corner of Olive street and Boyle avenue, occupied by the Musical Arts Building, and a recently constructed building at the corner of Delmar boulevard and Cabanne way, known as 5671-73-75 Delmar boulevard. Ralph Coale, through Cornet & Zeibig, acquired the Olive street and Boyle avenue corner, and G. Vivianni purchased the Delmar boulevard building through the realty firm of Weinberg & Weinberg and the Jack Rosenblat Realty Co.

The Olive street corner was acquired on a basis of $300,000 in a trade involving a building 100x100 feet at 2024 Walnut street, given in part payment. Reported consideration for the Delmar property was $200,000, but these figures were not verified by the Post-Dispatch.

Regarded as a Prize.

The Musical Arts Building is three stories, comprising 40 offices or studios and eight stores. It has a frontage of 75 feet on Olive with a depth of 155 feet on Boyle. Annual rentals approximate $25,000. The corner is one of the most prominent on this section of Olive street, being at the point where the Maryland avenue cars turn south, and is also on the Delmar and University car lines. It has been a prize for which professionals have been reaching for a long time.

The Delmar boulevard building is a two-story structure occupying a site 75 by 147 feet. It has two stores on the first floor, occupied by Scott Stores, Inc., a subsidiary of Butler Brothers, and the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co., both under long leases. The entire second floor is tenanted by Lucy Lockett, Inc., manufacturer of juvenile frocks. Annual rentals were not disclosed. It was built by the Weinberg Construction Co.

This building adjoins Moll's Grocery Store and commands De Baliviere avenue.

Several months ago Salvatori Vivianni purchased the lot, 150 by 140 feet, on the east side of De Baliviere avenue, 100 feet south of Delmar boulevard, occupied by a two-story building, for a reported consideration of $150,000. This was at the rate of $1000 a foot on De Baliviere avenue. This price, while not verified, is in line with prevailing prices on this thoroughfare. W. H. Whooten handled this transaction.

Offer for New Building.

Nearing completion at the southeast corner of Delmar boulevard and De Baliviere avenue, is the new business and apartment building of the Corner Investment Co., of which Sam Hamburg Jr. is president. It occupies a lot 100 by 150 feet. The building has nine stores. The corner store has been leased to the Walgreen Drug Co. for a long term. Negotiations for the acquisition of this building have been reported several times recently. A very flattering offer, it is understood, has been made for it within the last week.

Opposite the De Baliviere avenue car sheds of the Public Service Co., the Delmar and De Baliviere properties have speculative possibilities. The probable construction of a viaduct over the Wabash tracks at the present De Baliviere avenue grade crossing near Forest Park is another feature interesting investors in this entire district.

Another recent purchase in this district was that by Bernard Loedeke of the Beltmar Building at the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Belt avenue, with a frontage of 100 feet on De Baliviere by a depth of 110 feet on Belt, owned by Grant Seeley, through the Bottorff Realty Co. In connection with the Hauschulte Realty Co., for $100,000.

MUSICAL ARTS BUILDING FIGURES IN WEEK'S DEALS

Ralph Coale Acquires Property for Which Professionals Have Long Been Angling.

5671-75 DELMAR CHANGES HANDS

Scott Stores, Kroger's and Lucy Lockett Factory Occupy Building Bought by G. Vivianni.

By Berry Moore.

Olive street and Delmar boulevard furnished the noteworthy features of the week in realty, with developments reflecting renewed interest in holdings on both thoroughfares on the part of speculators as well as investors.

The most important deals involved the southwest corner of Olive street and Boyle avenue, occupied by the Musical Arts Building, and a recently constructed building at the corner of Delmar boulevard and Cabanne way, known as 5671-73-75 Delmar boulevard. Ralph Coale, through Corbet & Zeibig, acquired the Olive street and Boyle avenue corner, and G. Vivianni purchased the Delmar boulevard building through the realty firm of Weinberg & Weinberg and the Jack Rosenblat Realty Co.

The Olive street corner was acquired on a basis of $300,000 in a trade involving a building 100x100 feet at 2024 Walnut street, given in part payment. Reported consideration for the Delmar property was $200,000, but these figures were not verified by the Post-Dispatch.

Regarded as a Prize.

The Musical Arts Building is three stories, comprising 40 offices or studios and eight stores. It has a frontage of 75 feet on Olive with a depth of 155 feet on Boyle. Annual rentals approximate $25,000. The corner is one of the most prominent on this section of Olive street, being at the point where the Maryland avenue cars turn south, and is also on the Delmar and University car lines. It has been a prize for which professionals have been reaching for a long time.

This was at the rate of $1000 a foot on De Baliviere avenue. This price, while not verified, is in line with prevailing prices on this thoroughfare. W. H. Whooten handled this transaction.

BEVERLY JONES' HOME IN HUNTLEIGH VILLAGE

Residence on 10-Acre Tract to Be Built in Virginia Mansion Style.

Ground will be broken soon for a large country home in Huntleigh Village for Beverly Jones, former merchandise manager of the International Shoe Co. The house will be built on a 10-acre tract in the center of this unique village, built up largely by persons interested in the sports of country life.

The land for the Jones' home was purchased through the Le-Grand Jones Realty Co. by Edward L. Bakewell and overlooks the Bridlespur Club. The house will be known as Beverly Hall and has been planned along the lines of mansions on the banks of the James River in Virginia.

The plans drawn by Study and Farrar, architects, call for a large colonnade, similar to the colonnade at Mount Vernon. This will be flanked by wings in the form of pavilions, the east wing being the guest pavilion, while the west wing will contain the servants' quarters. The house will be built of brick, painted white, and will set close to the ground. The roof will be of green slate and the blinds and shutters will be painted green.

The house will contain a large entrance hall leading through from the front door directly to the colonnade and terrace to the northeast. The main rooms on the first floor will be paneled in white and will be enriched with much classic detail.

$400,000 EXPENDITURE ON PASADENA HILLS

Carter Realty Co. Manager Says Improvements Are Year Ahead of Plans.

W. C. Philbrook, subdivision manager of the Carter Realty Co., reports that Pasadena Hills, on the market 17 months, now is nearly one year ahead of the improvement program. The company has expended more than $400,000 for improvements, according to Philbrook.

Pasadena Hills comprises 129 acres, divided into three sections. The first section has been almost completely improved and sold out. The second has been approximately two-thirds sold, with improvements practically completed. The third has been on the market about three weeks. The sewers have been installed and about six blocks of paving already laid. Grading will be completed this fall and installation of water mains will start within the next 10 days or two weeks, as contract has been let.

Considerable money has been spent in landscaping Roland boulevard and other points, but most of this has been temporary. Large orders have been placed with nurseries and permanent planting will start early in November. Roland boulevard, which leads out from Natural Bridge, will be replanted this fall. Trees will be placed along all streets and boulevard and in parks. Hundreds of evergreens, pine and under shrubs will be planted.

Contract has been let for a fountain which will be placed at the top of the hill on Roland boulevard.

Ten homes are under construction, six of which are nearly completed. Contracts have been let for three more.

Philbrook stated that this subdivision has been under big demand, because the company set aside approximately 10 per cent of the entire acreage for parks, broad drives and parkways in streets; also seven acres for a school site.

SHARP DECLINE IN BUILDING CONTRACTS IN AUGUST

25 Per Cent Under July and 5 Per Cent Below Previous Year—Central West Also Reports Decline.

The August contract record in the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains showed a somewhat pronounced decline following the favorable record established during the preceding month, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. The month's volume amounted to $458,882,400, a decline of 25 per cent when compared with the July total and a decline of 5 per cent when compared with August of last year.

Of the eight districts, two showed increases over the preceding month and three showed increases over August of last year. In the volume of new work reported as contemplated, however, every district except one showed increases over July, 1929, and all except three districts showed increases over August, 1928.

According to major classes, the August construction contract record showed the following totals: $146,088,200, or 30 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $119,287,800, or 24 per cent, for public works and utilities; $75,265,000, or slightly more than 15 per cent, for industrial buildings; $71,955,400, or slightly less than 15 per cent, for commercial buildings; and $32,349,400, or 7 per cent, for educational buildings.

Contracts awarded during the first eight months of this year in the 37 states amounted to $4,156,865,300, as compared with $4,545,270,100 for the corresponding period of last year, a decrease of 9 per cent.

New work reported as contemplated during August amounted to $657,832,000. This total showed an increase of 37 per cent over the preceding month and an increase of 7 per cent over the corresponding month of last year.

The Central West (Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Southern Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska) had $153,170,800 in contracts awarded for new building and engineering work during the past month. This amount was 4 per cent less than the total for the preceding month and 8 per cent less than the total for August of last year.

The important classes in the construction record for this district were: $44,775,100, or 29 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $40,107,600, or 26 per cent, for public works and utilities; $22,741,900, or 15 per cent, for industrial buildings; $21,499,000, or 14 per cent, for commercial buildings, and $10,259,900, or 7 per cent, for educational buildings.

New construction started in the Central West since the first of the year amounted to $1,225,572,900, as compared with $1,384,057,900 for the corresponding period of last year, a decrease of 11 per cent.

New work reported as contemplated during the month amounted to $149,318,800. This total represents an increase of 4 per cent over the July total, but a decrease of 13 per cent when compared with the total for August, 1928.

LESS CONSTRUCTION IN 577 CITIES

Indications of a slowing down in building construction are found in the reports made to S. W. Straus & Co. of plans filed or permits issued in 577 cities and towns in the United States.

These 577 cities, doing a volume of $256,720,837 in construction in August, showed a loss of 18 per cent from August a year ago and 11 per cent from July of this year. The volume for these cities in August last year was $314,551,218 and for July, 1929, the volume in these cities was $287,497,821.

For the fourth consecutive month the Straus survey shows losses in building volume for the cities covered in its reports. The loss over the same month a year ago was for July, 13 per cent; for June 2 per cent, and for May, 19 per cent.

Building in the 25 principal building centers in the United showed a loss of 20 per cent as against August last year and a loss of 27 per cent as against August, 1927, as well as a 10 per cent loss against July this year. New York City had a loss of 42 per cent in August this year as against the same month a year ago, while Chicago showed an August gain of 21 per cent and Boston a gain of 84 per cent. Gains were also indicated in Cincinnati, O., Baltimore, Md., Camden, N. J., Toledo, O., San Francisco, Cal., Newark, N. J., Kansas City, Mo., East Orange, N. J., Houston, Tex., Oklahoma City, Ok., Providence, R. I., and San Diego, Cal.

Indices of building material prices recorded a decline in August due primarily to the weakness in the cement situation and to a lesser extent to declines in brick and hollow tile prices. The outstanding event was the cut of from 10 cents to 30 cents a barrel at a number the cement mills. Lumber prices have been maintained by curtailment of production; fluctuations in prices have been local and on specified items rather than general. In spite of the decline in building permits, the type of construction has been such as not to affect the demand for structural steel and prices have remained rather steady.

MARK TWAIN HOTEL ON PINE STREET OPENS

River Note Carried Out in the Decorations and Appointments.

With decorations and appointments designed on the theme of old Mississippi River days, the Mark Twain Hotel, named for the great Missouri humorist, opened its doors yesterday at Eighth and Pine streets. It is 16 stories high and has 300 rooms, all with bath. It is operated by the company which also owns and operates the Claridge Hotels here and in Memphis.

The Mark Twain suggestion is seen outcropping at intervals all the way from the coffee shop in the basement to the roof. In the first floor lobby, which is small in accordance with latest hotel style, the visitor is greeted by a life-sized portrait of the author done by Frederico Aquadro, a St. Louisan, from old prints. Back of it are two stained glass windows, one depicting Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer and the other showing Twain lounging on a steamer deck.

On the mezzanine floor is a larger lobby with ladies' and men's lounges, a writing room, barber shop, beauty parlor and five private dining rooms. Four of these dining rooms are named for steamboats which Mark Twain piloted and one for Horace Bixby, the man who taught Mark Twain how to pilot. There is also a public dining room on the first floor large enough to accommodate 150 persons.

The river days theme is carried farthest in the coffee shop, which is modeled to represent the deck of an old steamboat. Above the entrance appears the name, "Str. Mark Twain," and bordering the marble floor is a white wooden rail with life preservers here and there. Electric lighting fixtures are modeled after old steamer lamps and river scenes are painted on the walls.

CRITERION REALTY CO. LEASES NEW QUARTERS

About Oct. 10 Will Move Its Offices to Second Floor of Star Building.

Isaac T. Cook Co. announces the closing of a lease with Criterion Realty Co., one of the largest subdivision operators within the St. Louis district, for the second floor of the Star Building, northwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Olive street.

The Criterion Co. now maintains offices, both in the International Life and the Arcade Buildings, and this move was made necessary by reason of the expansion of the business as a result of its success in the marketing of the sub-divisions known as Hill Top View near Webster Groves, and Northdale on the north side near Spanish Lake. Recently the company has purchased 5000 acres in the Ozarks, which is adapted to peach growing for the handling of which requiring approximately seven years, the company has organized the Criterion Colonization Co.

In order to facilitate the financing of purchasers of lots in its sub-divisions, the company also controls the Criterion Finance & Mortgage Co.

The entire sales organization and general executive offices, together with 100 employes, will move to the new location about Oct. 10. F. R. DeVille is president of the company, and L. M. Booker, treasurer.

BOYD-GIBSON REALTY FIRM MOVES INTO NEW QUARTERS

The recently organized real estate firm of Boyd Gibson Realty Corporation has moved into its permanent quarters on Bellefontaine road, St. Louis County. In reviewing the policies of this firm, Ernest Boyd, president, stated: "Our purpose is to develop a strictly high-grade and carefully protected property. It is our belief that the surest way to acquire public confidence in an enterprise is to evidence confidence in it ourselves; and so, to facilitate our operations, we have built a permanent office building to accommodate our needs."

This building is located at the entrance of the new residence district known as "Green Acres." This property represents a development in a protected and thoughtfully planned home section. The tract being developed is a part of the estate of Dr. John W. Gibson, in a region rich in romance and history. "Green Acres" lies just off of Bellefontaine road in Bellefontaine Neighborhood, known as such ever since the founding of St. Louis and getting its name from the earliest Spanish "Fort Bellefontaine."

FOR LEASE
In a Smokeless District
5-Room Apartments at Hanley Road and Shirley Drive
2 Blocks North of Wydown Boul.

Six more beautiful apartment buildings of this type, just north of Country Club Court, and east of Polo Drive, having the same attractive evergreen landscaping, were started early this spring. Of these, three have been completed and leased. One more is now ready for occupancy, and is open for inspection. The last two will be completed and ready for occupancy within the very near future.

Some of the apartments not completed are already leased and we suggest you make your selection early as this new district is proving very popular and the number of apartments left for leasing is limited.

These apartments are furnished with incinerators, ventilating fans, gas stoves, electric refrigerators, every convenience to make them the final word in comfort, efficiency and beauty. Oil heat, garage, hot water and janitor service furnished. Floors with marble effect. Something new.

And He who bids our tears to flow
Will all our sorrows heal.

She meekly bore her earthly cross
And gently laid it down,
And while we deeply mourn our loss,
She wears her heavenly crown.

Then let us wipe our tears away,
Since she the prize has won,
And ask for strength that we may say
God's will, not ours, be done.

HER CHILDREN.

CRAPMAN—In loving memory of Charles E. Chapman, who died one year ago today, Sept. 15, 1928.

Death left a void no hours of pain.
To wait for cure but all in vain.
So God alone knew what was best,

Faithful and loving, a friend ever true.
We think of you often and will to the end
Gone and forgotten by some, you may be
But dear to our memory you will always be.

Sadly missed by

WIFE AND DAUGHTERS.

KNITTEL—In loving memory of Ferdinand L. G. Knittel, who departed this life on Sept. 13, 1926.

There is some one who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went;
There is some one who thinks of at rock-bottom, wholesale prices and a chance to pocket $15 a day besides! Just send me your name and I'll give you some money-making, money-saving facts that will amaze you. I'll show you how

A. L. Allen, of Illinois, quit a $23-a-week job, took hold of my proposition and shortly afterwards reported earnings of more than $100 a week. Gustav Kar-nath, of Minnesota—farm laborer—made
$20.35 the first 6 hours. And Mrs. B. L.
Hodges, of New York, says, "Making more money than ever before—from $18 to $20 a day."

No Experience Necessary

With your groceries at wholesale and $15 a day in your pocket, you'll have plenty of cash to pay your bills, to buy new clothes, a radio, housefurnishings or take pleasure trips. And this big money is easy to get. You don't need any capital. You don't need any experience. You don't have to take any course of training.
YOU CAN START RIGHT IN MAKING MONEY THE VERY FIRST DAY.

A Day Is Easy

All you do is act as my Representative in your locality and look after my interests there. This is very easy to do.
Your own home will be your headquarters. You set your own hours and work as you please. You will get a profit on orders for my Groceries and other Household necessities must go through your hands. I never sell through stores, so you alone get all the profits. In addition, I will supply you with Groceries,
Toilet Goods and Household Necessities at our LOWEST ROCK BOTTOM WHOLE-
SALE PRICES. Thus you will SAVE BIG MONEY as well as MAKE BIG MONEY.

Send No Money

You positively don't need any capital or experience. If you want to, you can keep your present job and start in spare time;
but many of my Representatives report $18 profit in 2½ hours' spare time. See the facts at once. YOU HAVE EVERY-THING TO GAIN. It costs nothing to investigate. In addition to your big profits cries at Wholesale and a chance to clear
$15 to $30 a day, I will also tell you how to get a new Ford Tudor Sedan SOLUTELY WITHOUT COST. Here's a chance you can't afford to miss. Mail coupon now for these amazing new facts.

ABLE-BODIED MEN Turned Into FAKE CRIPPLES

David Bernstein.

David Bernstein Did a Flourishing Business as Head of a Beggars' Syndicate Until He Sent His Young Son on the Streets Disguised as a Paralytic.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

THE disadvantage of letting your relatives have anything to do with your business is now quite apparent to Mr. David Bernstein, but his realization of that elemental principle has unfortunately come too late to do him any good. For months Mr. Bernstein was enjoying a profit of $100 a day in a business that required practically no capital and almost as little work. And then, in an effort to increase his profits, Mr. Bernstein made the mistake of employing his seven-year-old son, Solomon. It was a disastrous move, for it led directly to the wreck of his business and to Bernstein's retirement, under police supervision, to a quiet cell where he will have three years of leisure in which to brush up on his neglected study of business principles.

Whatever may have been Bernstein's shortcomings, one is compelled to admit that the business he established was a highly unusual one, for it was nothing less than a fake beggars' syndicate. Bernstein not only founded the business but he was its president, general manager and especially treasurer. His headquarters were at his home, No. 41 Essex street, in New York's lower East Side. And it was here that Bernstein, with an ingenuity that would arouse the envy of physicians, received perfectly healthy men and with the use of bandages, tapes, glue and a crutch or two turned them into such sorry-looking specimens of humanity that no passerby could see them without dropping perhaps a tear and most certainly a coin into the cup which was always conveniently near for just such an emergency. At the end of a day's "work" these poor cripples would return to Bernstein's establishment to be restored to full health. To some Bernstein would return a leg, to others an arm. He would then take his percentage of the harvest. Next day the metabolistic process would be repeated.

IT was a flourishing racket, and yet one should not be surprised at the skill with which Bernstein carried it on. For Bernstein, who is 45 years old, has during the last 10 years served 20 terms in New York and Philadelphia for begging, larceny and assault, so that it is plain he suffered an exacting and difficult enough apprenticeship to explain the ingenuity he displayed in the workings of his syndicate. From the profits he made out of the syndicate he was able to purchase three taxicabs, which brought him additional revenue. At the rate his business was growing it would have been only a matter of time before Bernstein could move to Riverside Drive, lay corner-stones and make inspirational speeches on success. But he was too concerned with immediate profits to consider the future, and so, with an eye to still further expansion, he turned to his young son, Solomon.

An invalid's wheel chair was purchased and Solomon was put in it. His leg was bandaged and propped up, so that it stuck out straight in front of him. His right arm was strapped to his body to give the appearance of partial paralysis. The boy was then taught to shake his hands as though afflicted with a nervous ailment. A tin box, with a slot in the top of it, was then placed on his lap. Solomon's most intimate boy friends would have been unable to recognize him in this get-up. The task of wheeling the invalid was assigned to one Harry Waters, a colored man with a scholastic record of two terms in the workhouse. For every five dollars collected in the tin box, Waters was to get two. In other words, the concession was let out to Waters at a rental of 60 per cent of the gross. For his share of the work young Solomon was given 30 cents every night for a trip to the movies, with the alternative of no work and a sound thrashing.

Bright and early every morning Waters would call at the Essex street address. He would wheel the poor invalid to some populous street, and there park. The passersby would do the rest. As soon as anyone approached Solomon would begin to vibrate pathetically. The box grew heavy with coins.

Then one morning the invalid was parked at Rutgers and Cherry streets, which happens to be part of the district patrolled by Officer Kircher of the Fourth Precinct. Now, begging on the streets of New York is prohibited, and even the beggars who obtain a peddler's license and a few pencils to comply with the law technically are not encouraged. But Officer Kircher somehow couldn't bring himself to deal sternly with the piteous and palsied invalid. Indeed, he felt inclined to sympathize with the lad, and engaged the pair in conversation.

HE asked Solomon his name and age, and where he lived and the nature of his misfortune, and to all these questions the boy responded as he had been coached to do so by his father, even to the extent of accounting for his invalidism by naming a comparatively recent attack of infantile paralysis.

But while this conversation was taking place Officer Kircher made an interesting discovery. He observed that the boy had become so interested in their conversation that he no longer twitched and his nervous tremors had ceased. At first the patrolman thought this condition might be due to the therapeutic powers of his friendly attention, but a few minutes later, when a kindly lady stepped near to drop a quarter in the box, Officer Kircher noticed that with her approach the twitching and the tremors promptly began again. Here was a first-class mystery and Officer Kircher, whom by now you have undoubtedly recognized as a man of superior perceptions, decided it would bear further study.

Without allowing himself to be noticed, the policeman watched the pair for several days and confirmed his suspicions. He followed them home one night to the Essex street address and then he returned to the Clinton Street Station to confide his discoveries to his superiors. The Essex street house was put under observation, and then it was that what had begun as a mystery began to assume the proportions of a miracle. In the mornings anywhere from six to a dozen healthy, though depraved-looking, specimens would enter No. 41, only to emerge later with their arms and legs conspicuously bandaged and limping as though in great pain.

All headed for Broadway, the midtown district of Harlem, where other detectives watched them soliciting alms, and then trailed them back to Bernstein's "hospital." Later they would emerge in sound condition and hike off toward the rendezvous for beggars in the Bowery to spend their "earnings."

Knowing that underworld characters do not talk fluently in the presence of the law, and wanting to make certain of a witness who might be cajoled into giving necessary testimony, the police decided to arrest Solomon and his attendant first. This was done, but evidently the procedure had been under observation, for by the time the police reached the Essex street address all incriminating evidence had disappeared. Not only that, but Mr. Bernstein himself, without any notification from the police, promptly appeared at the station to offer bail for his son and Waters.

THE police thereupon arrested Bernstein and held him where he could not communicate with the boy. When asked to explain why his son was able to use his limbs when the bandages were removed, Bernstein had absolutely nothing to say, nor could any amount of persuasion move Waters to venture an opinion. But little Solomon, apparently glad to be restored again to health, talked freely of his father's operations. He told of the men who came regularly to be fixed up as cripples before going out on the streets to beg. He explained that his father got $2 out of every $5 these men obtained and, with a trace of pride in his voice, added that "My father's got lots of money in the bank."

When, a few days later, Bernstein and Waters appeared before Judge Goodman in Special Sessions, young Solomon repeated his story and Bernstein and the Negro were promptly sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary. The boy was ordered placed in an institution.

Police hardly believe, however, that the newspaper publicity given the Bernstein case will discourage the public from the indiscriminate giving of alms to beggars, most of whom are crooks, says Detective William B. Kirk of the Mendicant Squad. And since Detective Kirk has had more than 20 years of service on the police force, his statements must be regarded as authoritative.

"New York," he says, "has always been a rich field for fake beggars and it will probably always remain so. The Mendicant Squad averages 50 arrests a day, but it is almost impossible to eliminate this pest. There is no such thing as a deserving beggar, for New York has numerous agencies that will care for unfortunates and keep them. But in most cases cripples can make so much money by capitalizing their infirmities in public that they much prefer begging. Some of them get around the law by obtaining a license to peddle pencils or shoestrings. These men make so much money that many bums and petty crooks are tempted to pose as cripples to get their share of the graft. Some of them show great ingenuity and are detected with difficulty."

THE irony of the situation lies in the fact that many of these beggars make more money than the sympathetic people who donate to them, and some of them have actually amassed fortunes by appealing to the sentiment of the public. The police records of the past year reveal an astonishing number of cases wherein beggars have been found to possess real estate and snug fortunes in the bank. Patrick Johnson, a beggar who was recently sentenced for the twelfth time, admitted collecting $150 a week as a mendicant. George McLeod, posing on the streets as a paralytic, was found to possess $79,000.

Perhaps the most astonishing case was that of Samuel Ansel, a youth of 23, who, when arrested, seemed to be twitching with palsy. His graft consisted of going through the subway crowds offering 10-cent penknives for sale, although his condition excited so much pity that alms-givers rarely took anything in return for a donation. He was picked up on a charge of vagrancy. He was found to have $1446 in the bank, and his deposits averaged $100 a day. Investigation further revealed that he owned $40,000 in first mortgages and also several newsstands in Brooklyn, not to mention the fact that he lived in great comfort, and actually employed a valet!

Barnum's ancient contention that people love to be imposed upon is amply confirmed by the police records on begging. And Mr. David Bernstein's ingenious attempt to get rich on that principle would very probably have been a complete success, if he had just stopped short of employing his seven-year-old son in the process.

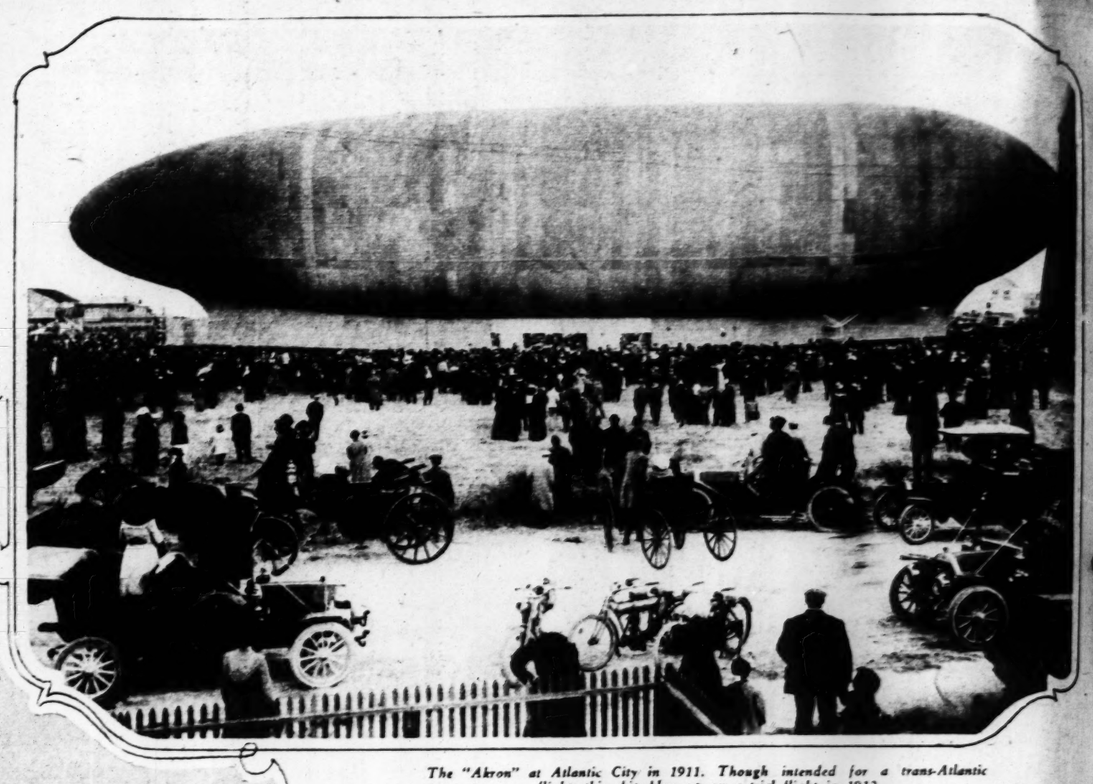
When Walter Wellman Tried to Cross the Atlantic in an Airship



The "Akron" at Atlantic City in 1911. Though intended for a trans-Atlantic flight, this ship blew up on a trial flight in 1912.

A. Louis Loud of Springfield, Illinois — Surviving Member of Wellman's Crew—Describes the Adventures That Befell Them on Both the North Pole and Trans-Oceanic Attempts.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SPRINGFIELD, Illinois.

THERE is one man in Illinois who has been noting the triumphs of the Graf Zeppelin with a special sort of interest. A. Louis Loud of Springfield has good cause to recall the thrill, danger and dramatic rescues he experienced as a mechanic aboard the astonishingly modern "Air Ship America" in which Walter Wellman, the New York journalist and author, tried in 1909 to discover the North Pole and in 1910 attempted the first trans-Atlantic flight in history.

With the exception of Wellman, who was born in 1858—and Loud has not heard from his quondam aerial "skipper" in years—Loud is the sole survivor of those expeditions.

While Loud, as a youth of 21, was still repairing the agricultural implements at his farm home near Virden, Illinois, his brother-in-law, Melvin Vaniman, a pioneer aerial photographer, was discussing the first Polar flight with Wellman in Paris, then the aeronautical capital of the world. Vaniman designed the "America." When the craft was finished and shipped to Spitzbergen, Mrs. Vaniman, Loud's sister, returned to Virden with glowing accounts of the expedition, which was financed by the old Chicago Record-Herald.

Enthused, Loud betook himself to Paris. The expedition of 1907, which Loud was too late to join, failed.

The "America" anchored at the edge of an ice pack, after the equilibrator broke in two. The Norwegian yacht "Farm" is at right and a small boat has just put out toward the "America" for the purpose of taking hold of its tow rope.

The America, a non-rigid dirigible 200 feet long and 60 feet thick at its maximum diameter, struck a blizzard which it vainly battled for several hours before returning to the base. Before repairs could be made, unfavorable weather descended and the expedition returned to Paris—deprived of the further support of the Chicago newspaper.

"WELLMAN was an energetic man of great ability," Loud said. "I'd hardly met him in Paris before he hurried back to the United States and spent the year 1908 raising, unassisted, $100,000. We established our base on Dane's Island in the Spitzbergen group in June, 1909. Although uninhabited at that time, Dane's Island didn't lack for unhappy memories of other unsuccessful Polar affairs. Across the inlet stood a marble monument erected by the Dutch Government commemorating its whaling colony of nearly three centuries before which perished in a severe winter.

"The cabin occupied by Prof. S. A. Andree in 1897 before he took off for the Pole in a balloon and was never heard from again—this shed was in our camp. We used it and tried to ignore its history and the pile of stones surmounted by a steel Swedish flag erected in memory of Andree.

"Our first task, of course, was to build the hangar—a series of huge wooden arches covered with canvas. We took our own iron filings and sulphuric acid for making the hydrogen gas.

"Shortly before we sailed in August we were visited by a group of Norwegian army officers who were on a vacation hunting trip and cruise on a steam yacht named the Farm. We passed over without sighting it, although—luckily for us—they saw the America and decided to follow us as far as the ice would allow.

"Wellman was captain of the airship. My brother-in-law and myself were the mechanics and a Russian, Nicholas Popoff, was our navigator. We carried ten huskies and two sledges, rifles, ammunition and 30 days' rations in the cabin. Slung underneath, and serving as an equilibrator, was a 150-foot sock-like affair covered with steel scales for protection against the ice and rocks as it dragged. It held gasoline and food enough to last us a year and a half.

"The equilibrator was Vaniman's idea and represented a sound theory in airship handling in those days when varying temperatures and embryonic elevating rudders made consistent altitudes difficult to maintain. The theory was that as we lightened the equilibrator by consuming its contents the air would grow colder as we progressed and reduce the lifting power of our hydrogen so that the compensation would keep the ship at a fairly uniform height—150 feet.

"The equilibrator broke in the middle just after we crossed from the open sea to the ice pack extending from the Pole. Relieved of the weight of its contents, the America shot up, our instruments registering 7000 feet. While we were releasing hydrogen to descend to the previous level, a strong wind sprang up from the South. We had been in the air eleven hours and had traveled about 150 miles.

"WELLMAN ordered Popoff to turn back, refusing to risk our lives by proceeding with only 30 days' rations left. But the wind became more violent and although at first our motor was able to carry us slowly into the teeth of the gale, we discovered after two hours and a half that we were standing still and likely to be blown to the Pole, whether we wanted to go or not.

"We turned off the motor and drifted, meanwhile tossing down a steel cable with a loop in the end. Luckily, the loop caught on an ice crag at the edge of the pack and we floated there like a wind vane, saved from anticipating the fate of Nobile and the Italia. After four hours of suspense, wondering when the cable would finally rip the cabin from the envelope, we sighted the smoke of the Farm.

"The Norwegians had witnessed the breaking of the equilibrator and realized that something was amiss when we shot up into the sky. They were in the nick of time. We transferred our valuable instruments, the dogs and the rifles to the Farm and returned to Dane's Island like a captive balloon made fast to the stern of the yacht.

"En route to Paris we stopped at Copenhagen and learned of the Peary-Cook controversy as to which of them had discovered the North Pole. Wellman believed Peary was telling the truth and abandoned our expedition.

A. Louis Loud.

"In Paris, Vaniman suggested to Wellman that we go to the United States and try a flight across the Atlantic. We were all enthusiastic. No one else had tried that—not even old Count Zeppelin, who was busy enough in those days. I don't remember that we were worried about money. Wellman always seemed to get it somewhere. This time he secured the backing of the London Daily Mail and the New York Times.

"We built our hangar on an inlet near Atlantic City. Although the previous expeditions had not claimed a great deal of publicity, this time the papers were full of our doings. Hundreds of people came from miles around by bicycle, carriage and in the queer automobiles of the day. Just like the crowds that flock to Lakehurst whenever the Graf Zeppelin visits this country.

"We rebuilt the entire cabin and enlarged the envelope to 300 feet and installed one more motor, thus giving the ship four propellers driven by a total of 205 horsepower. The car was made of drawn steel tubing and enclosed in rubberized cotton canvas. Electricity, supplied by a generator, lighted it and telephones connected the various compartments. A 27-foot lifeboat was suspended under the cabin and contained provisions sufficient for thirty days. Here, too, we cooked the food with a blow torch. The lifeboat contained a wireless outfit with Jack Irwin in charge so that the America was the first aircraft in history to send and receive wireless messages from the air.

"At 8 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, October 15, 1910, the America sailed from Atlantic City in a dense fog. Three minutes later she rose above the heads of the crowd on the beach and we quickly lost sight of everything but the fog. Four messages were sent back in the next half-hour—one for Wellman's and Vaniman's wives and three to the financing newspapers.

"We headed northeast to follow the steamer lanes, but at 9 o'clock Sunday night there was a 33-degree drop in temperature, which reduced the lifting power of our hydrogen. Next there was a 50-mile gale that blew us 450 miles south of our course in nine hours. It continued cold and we were in danger of descending into the sea. Naturally, we did not battle this wind and finally jettisoned everything we could possibly spare—the new supplementary motor, a keg of water, food supplies and gasoline. We kept our equilibrator containing other provisions, not knowing how soon we'd be rescued. By this time we had abandoned the idea of making the trip.

"Early Monday morning found us headed for the Azores, but another change of wind forced us toward Bermuda and we hoped to be able to land and save the ship, after all. All that day our one motor was idle. Everyone was strained and we looked vainly for ships. At 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning Wellman sighted the S. S. Trent, bound from Bermuda to New York. It was at least 15 miles away, but the night was wonderfully clear, with a full tropical moon.

ally, the mascot, a cat that had strayed into the hangar, in the lifeboat and then cut loose after releasing as much hydrogen as we dared. The boat fell some twelve feet and capsized but righted itself because of the air compartments in the bow and stern. By 8 o'clock, when we were hauled aboard the steamer, the America was a forlorn speck against the sky to the South—a heart-breaking situation, believe me."

When the America's crew were rescued they were 400 miles off Cape Hatteras and in traveling 1008 miles had made a world's record for distance covered in the air, as well as the record for time spent in the air in any kind of craft but a balloon. They were the first wrecked airmen to be rescued at sea.

By this time Wellman was advanced in years and abandoned the airship field to resume his writing. F. A. Sieberling, then president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, became associated with Vaniman and the trans-Atlantic venture was resumed with an airship on an even more ambitious scale.

It was named the Akron and assembled in the Atlantic City hangar. The Akron was 300 feet long and more slim than the America. Vaniman at that time perfected a device being installed on American dirigibles now under construction—the adjustable propellers which could be turned to force the ship up or down as well as forward. Two motors running four propellers provided 200 horsepower and a speed of 35 miles an hour.

A TRIAL flight in October, 1911, gave a hint of the disaster that later overtook it. Hundreds of people visited the hangar during the assembling of the ship, and because in cool weather the hydrogen contracted, leaving the envelope limp and wrinkled, a false air chamber was inserted inside the bottom to keep the bag taut and attractive. As there was an unnoticed leak in the false chamber, air invaded the hydrogen compartment and after the air chamber had been filled and emptied several times there was an insufficient amount of hydrogen left.

The ship rose, however, but an even keel could not be maintained. The crew, consisting of Vaniman, his brother, Calvin Vaniman, Loud and Tom Bottscher, the navigator, scampered up and down the catwalk carrying bags of sand.

"We'd get the prow down and the stern would fly up," Loud said. "Things looked bad because a landing was impossible. Several firms had tried to interest us in parachutes but they weren't very satisfactory at that stage. We had a stock answer for them all: 'If we ever do need them, we won't have time to use them.' Later events proved this to be true.

"Vaniman hit upon the idea of rigging up a ballast after the principle of those on sailing yachts. We lowered a cable fastened to each end of the cabin and hanging in a V shape with sandbags strung at the point. We all placed our weight in the middle of the cabin and the Akron righted itself.

"We descended in a swamp between Atlantic City and Philadelphia. Because it was low tide, the coast guard boats couldn't reach us and we rested lightly on quicksand from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until the tide came in at 5:30. We towed the Akron by sea—not far—to the beach in front of the hangar and then walked it in."

When repairs had been made it was too late in the year to make the flight

Leahy, from the time of Jesse Coggins' conviction, looked forward to the boy's rehabilitation, and he never stopped working for it.

Jesse Coggins had few friends. His father turned against him and aided the police and the prosecution in convicting him. An attorney, a relative of Leahy's, was appointed to defend Jesse. The attorney asked the aid of Leahy, an older and more experienced man, and that is how Leahy got into the case. It is due to Leahy that Jesse Coggins is paroled today.

JESSE was born in 1898. His mother, his father's second wife, died a few days after his birth. But before her death she sent for her parents. She asked them to take her boy to their home in a small Illinois town and care for him.

"She knew what my father was like," Jesse Coggins told me, "knew that he drank to excess, and she didn't trust me in his care.

y, the mascot, a cat that had strayed o the hangar, in the lifeboat and en cut loose after releasing as much drogen as we dared. The boat fell me twelve feet and capsized but hted itself because of the air com-rtments in the bow and stern. By o'clock, when we were hauled aboard e steamer, the America was a forlorn eck against the sky to the South—a art-breaking situation, believe me." When the America's crew were res-ed they were 400 miles off Cape tteras and in traveling 1008 miles d made a world's record for dis-nce covered in the air, as well as e record for time spent in the air any kind of craft but a balloon. ey were the first wrecked airmen be rescued at sea.

By this time Wellman was advanced years and abandoned the airship ld to resume his writing. F. A. Sie-rling, then president of the Good-ar Tire and Rubber Company, be-me associated with Vaniman and the ans-Atlantic venture was resumed th an airship on an even more am-ious scale.

It was named the Akron and as-mbled in the Atlantic City hangar. he Akron was 300 feet long and ore slim than the America. Vani-an at that time perfected a device ing installed on American dirigibles w under construction—the adjust-le propellers which could be turned force the ship up or down as well as rward. Two motors running four opellers provided 200 horsepower d a speed of 35 miles an hour.

A TRIAL flight in October, 1911, gave a hint of the disaster that later overtook it. Hundreds people visited the hangar dur-g the assembling of the ship, d because in cool weather the drogen contracted, leaving the en-lope limp and wrinkled, a false air amber was inserted inside the bot-m to keep the bag taut and attrac-re. As there was an unnoticed leak the false chamber, air invaded the drogen compartment and after the r chamber had been filled and emp-d several times there was an insuf-cient amount of hydrogen left.

The ship rose, however, but an even eel could not be maintained. The ew, consisting of Vaniman, his broth-, Calvin Vaniman, Loud and Tom ottscher, the navigator, scampered p and down the catwalk carrying gs of sand.

"We'd get the prow down and the ern would fly up," Loud said. Things looked bad because a landing as impossible. Several firms had led to interest us in parachutes but ey weren't very satisfactory at that age. We had a stock answer for em all: 'If we ever do need them, e won't have time to use them.' ater events proved this to be true.

"Vaniman hit upon the idea of rig-ng up a ballast after the principle of one on sailing yachts. We lowered cable fastened to each end of the bin and hanging in a V shape with ndbags strung at the point. We all aced our weight in the middle of the bin and the Akron righted itself.

"We descended in a swamp between lantic City and Philadelphia. Be-use it was low tide, the coast guard ats couldn't reach us and we rested htly on quicksand from 2 o'clock the afternoon until the tide came at 5:30. We towed the Akron by a—not far—to the beach in front the hangar and then walked it in." When repairs had been made it was o late in the year to make the flight

"THOSE Who Were PAROLED"

Said the Voice on the Radio

"Are JESSE COGGINS—"

Raised in Squalor and Ignorance and Convicted of Murder at Sixteen, This St. Louis Lifer Rehabilitated Himself in Prison and Now Starts Life Again as an Educated Man.

By JULIUS KLYMAN
Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

IT was noon and No. 17046, lifer at the penitentiary at Jefferson City, walked out of the Bureau of Identification, where he was stationed, and made his way to his cell. That was his custom, for, being a "trusty," he had the run of the prison, and he always went to his cell about this time to get the mail that had been distributed in the morning. He got to the cellhouse, entered his own particular cage, picked up his mail and, sitting down to read it, opened the switch on his radio.

Station WOS, at the capitol, was on the air. "This morning," said the voice that emanated from the radio, "Governor Caulfield paroled seven prisoners at the penitentiary." No. 17046 pricked up his ears. He wondered who was going to get out. He was, of course, curious. And, he thought, seven more sets of finger-prints to make. "Those who were paroled," the voice on WOS continued, "are Jesse Coggins, convicted in St. Louis, at the age of 16, of the murder of his stepmother, and sentenced to life imprisonment. . . ."

No. 17046 jumped to his feet. He waited to hear no more. He ran out of his cell, out of the cellhouse, straight for the warden's office. For he was Jesse Coggins who had come to this prison 14 years before, who during those years had tried to rehabilitate himself, who knew that friends were working for his release, who hoped for it himself—without any feeling that the parole would ever come.

JESSE COGGINS, who had entered the penitentiary under the most adverse circumstances, and with a boyhood lived under extreme conditions of squalor behind him, had won his way to freedom by educating himself from a state close to illiteracy, and by his exemplary conduct. He had earned his way to the outside world by poring over school books by candle light after his fellow prisoners had found their couches; he had struggled through to freedom by the route of the correspondence school and by his efforts to bring to his fellow inmates the literacy which so many of them had missed.

Mrs. Alfred Coggins was found choked to death in her home in North St. Louis on January 5, 1915. She had been strangled with a handkerchief. Her body was discovered by her husband, and a search was begun for her 16-year-old stepson, Jesse, who lived at a cheap Market street hotel. The boy was discovered, a few days later, near Little Rock, Arkansas. He was brought back to St. Louis and the police announced he had made a confession of the crime. He was tried, found guilty, and sentenced to life imprisonment. John P. Leahy, one of the attorneys associated in his defense, asked to have him sent to the reformatory. But the court sent him to the State prison.

Jesse Coggins.

But Leahy never forgot his client. The attorney, who had investigated the boy's background, believed that not the boy but his dismal environment was responsible for the crime. Leahy, from the time of Jesse Coggins' conviction, looked forward to the boy's rehabilitation, and he never stopped working for it.

Jesse Coggins had few friends. His father turned against him and aided the police and the prosecution in convicting him. An attorney, a relative of Leahy's, was appointed to defend Jesse. The attorney asked the aid of Leahy, an older and more experienced man, and that is how Leahy got into the case. It is due to Leahy that Jesse Coggins is paroled today.

JESSE was born in 1898. His mother, his father's second wife, died a few days after his birth. But before her death she sent for her parents. She asked them to take her boy to their home in a small Illinois town and care for him.

"She knew what my father was like," Jesse Coggins told me, "knew that he drank to excess, and she didn't trust me in his care.

"My grandparents took me away. After a time we moved to Des Moines. They were good to me, did all they could for me. But by the time I was nine, my grandfather found he could no longer keep me. He was growing old and he was a poor man.

"He communicated with my father, who was working as a stationary engineer in East St. Louis—my father had married for the third time—and one morning my grandfather took me to the railroad station. I remember it very well. 'Jesse, my boy,' he said, 'it breaks my heart to let you go. But I can't keep you any longer, and your father has never contributed a nickel to your support.'

"The first year I was in East St. Louis I went to school. I wasn't happy. My father was drunk a great part of the time, and used to beat me with a club. My only friend was my stepmother. When summer came my father put me to work in a glass plant. It was hard work for a small boy, terribly hot. At the end of the summer I thought I'd go back to school. But my father told me I'd stay at my work or he'd know the reason why. I did. I'd bring my money home every week and he'd give me a nickel or dime. He beat me and beat me.

"When I was 11 I ran away. I came to St. Louis and found a place to live in a Market street flop house. I got work in a factory. A few months after that my father and stepmother moved to St. Louis. Then my father got sick and my stepmother came to me and asked me to help them out. I went back home. It was the same old story of beatings and beatings, my father getting drunk, and my stepmother trying to protect me.

"Again I left home and went back to Market street. That was the only place I knew to go.

"It wasn't long before I began to drink. I was the only boy around the flop house and the men encouraged me to drink. I drank and I smoked. I suppose it would be hard to find a worse place for a growing boy. I thought I was a hard guy. I'd mix whisky and wine, get dead drunk. But I always worked. I had some good jobs for a boy.

"When I was 13 I went to Michigan with my aunt. She was a worker for the Volunteers of America and I went with them. I returned to Market street when I was about 14. One evening, at a revival meeting, I met a little girl about a year younger than I was. She was a good little girl and we liked each other. I used to call at her home and she tried to get me to move away from where I was. I decided I would. I had always wanted to go back to school and I thought I'd move to a respectable neighborhood, keep my job, and go to night school. But I didn't. I wanted whisky, and I knew I could get it from the people who knew me around the Market street saloons. I was afraid they wouldn't serve a kid at places where he wasn't known.

"Then I had a split-up with the nice little girl. She wouldn't have anything to do with me. I'd walk past her house, but she wouldn't notice me.

"I was in my sixteenth year when my trouble happened. I'd spent all one day drinking at a bar near the old Standard Theater. I went to my flop house drunk, so drunk that I didn't hear the alarm in the morning. I called up the place I worked, when I did wake up, and told them I was sick. I went back to the bar. I drank whisky and wine. I remember feeling shaky a little before noon and telling the proprietor I was going in the back room and lay down on a pool table.

"I DON'T remember a thing until early the next morning. Then the papers told of the murder of my stepmother and that I was suspected. I woke up in my father's clothes. I had some of my stepmother's trinkets in my possession. I got a train for my Aunt's home—she was then in Arkansas—and they caught me near Little Rock. They say I killed my stepmother. Why? I don't know. She was the one who was good to me. She always took my part. I was drunk when it happened, I was drunk after that. I do not know whether I did it. But I have always doubted it. I don't think I did.

"Well, I was tried and convicted. I was sentenced to the penitentiary for the rest of my life. Just before I was taken from St. Louis to Jefferson City, the little girl I had met at the revival meeting came to see me. She cried and she told me she'd always stand by me. She always has.

"When I first got to the prison they put me in the bakery. Then they had me tending the coffee urns. After that I waited on the guards' table. I hadn't been in there very long before I decided to try to learn something. I had always wanted to go to school; I wanted to keep on with it at the time my father made me stop and work. It wasn't that I had any idea of ever getting out. I never thought I would. I just forgot the world outside. But I thought if ever by any chance I did get my freedom, I could use any knowledge I had.

"I started with the prison library. It was a poor library, a good many of the books had pages missing. I studied these for several years. In the meantime I was transferred from the dining room to the shirt factory. I worked on a machine there for several years, then they made me an inspector."

It was not due to any external source that Coggins continued his studies. The books at the prison library were hardly inspirational; rather, they might have had quite the opposite effect on one less determined. An ancient speller here, a soiled grammar there, a volume, perhaps, on the transactions of the State Assembly. The prison library was hardly provocative.

"It was in 1923," Coggins continued, "that I decided to try to take a correspondence course. I wanted to find out if I really had taught myself anything. I asked the warden if I might take it. He said it was the first time he'd received such a request, but he would be glad to have me go ahead. I began to take the work, and I received permission to buy candles and burn them in my cell after the lights were turned out.

"In 1924 I was transferred to the Bureau of Identification at the prison.

"I STUDIED arithmetic, including commercial arithmetic, spelling, bookkeeping, grammar, some shorthand, and I learned to use the typewriter. I worked hard at penmanship. I never got a grade below 92 in my correspondence-school course. Most of my reading outside of my studies was in a business magazine and a geographic publication.

"All this time the little girl, who had cried just before I was taken to prison, kept her word. She wrote me nearly every day during all the years I was there, and she'd come up to Jefferson City as often as twice a month to see me when the weather wasn't too bad. She told me she'd wait for me, and she has."

(Mr. Coggins prefers not to have this young woman mentioned by name because he wishes to shield her from any embarrassment that might result from such publicity.)

"I became a teacher at the prison. They once had class rooms there, but the place became so crowded they didn't have space, and they had to give it up. I asked for permission to teach and it was granted. Six of us were appointed as teachers and we'd go from cell to cell teaching arithmetic and grammar and spelling. It is surprising how many illiterates there are in the institution. I really believe that many of the prisoners would never have gotten there if they had had a chance to go to school, to have learned something so they could find work.

"Not quite two years ago I was given the concession for selling newspapers, magazines and novelties in two of the halls. I made a little money out of that, but I gave most of it away to fellows who needed it worse than I did and had families.

"I could hardly believe it when my parole came. I knew Mr. Leahy was working for me. And he used to write me cheering letters. But I never quite expected it.

"I'm going away now. Mr. Leahy and Chief of Police Gerk and I talked it over. We think it's best that I go some place else to start. When I get there, I'll find a job. I may take a little more work in a business school, too. I've seen the girl who stood by me all these years a lot since I've been back in St. Louis. After I've gone away and gotten started she is going to join me. And we're going to be married."

FRANK O'MALLEY QUITS AMERICA in DISGUST
But RALPH BARTON COMES BACK to STAY

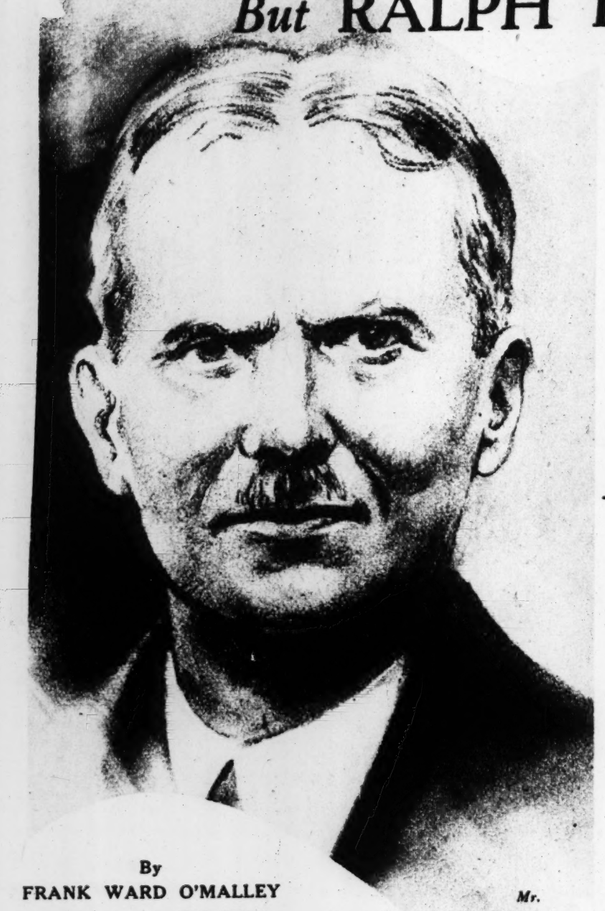
Both Explain Their Actions at Length and the Reasons They Give Form a Spirited Debate on the Question: "Is Civilized Life Possible in America?"

AT about the same time that Frank Ward O'Malley was putting the Gaelic curse on his native New Jersey and vowing that he would never again set foot in these "Prohibition-ridden, Babbit-bitten" United States, Ralph Barton, the noted caricaturist and Francophile, steamed into New York harbor on the Ile de France. He had come back to America to work, he said, since he had found it impossible to do so effectively in his beloved France. O'Malley's reasons for leaving and Barton's reasons for coming back are given herewith in full and serve as an effective pro and contra to a subject that frequently assaults the minds of sensitive American citizens. In other words, Messrs. Barton and O'Malley offer what amounts to a debate on the question: "Is civilized life possible in America?"

Frank O'Malley was one of the best of the old New York Sun reporters, and was once pronounced the best man that American journalism had ever produced.

Recently he has confined himself entirely to magazine writing. Ralph Barton is as famous as an artist and a satirist. He is the author of "God's Country," a volume that tried to destroy all the pet American traditions with sardonic laughter. At one time in his career he, too, announced that he was through with America and would thenceforth be a Frenchman in thought, word and deed.



Mr. O'Malley.

NEW YORK.

ARE you in the market for an attractive stone house, on a hill facing the sea and in the heart of the New Jersey Applejack Belt? You may have it at a fair price, as I want to go back to Europe with my wife and children and live there forever. Take it and I shall leave you with all your beloved America about you, together with five acres of pine trees and lawn all your own, an excellent bootlegger nearby, and the natural and necessary concomitant of the American bootlegger, a handsome, roomy cemetery, only a step away.

With the place goes a cabin cruiser that would make a swell little rum runner. In sight of our house is an ocean inlet where hooch is landed almost nightly. Our neighboring villages are alive with parading Kluxers, flannel-mouthed parsons and similar merrymakers of the American scene. As recently as last Sunday evening I saw four of our State Senators gloriously drunk at a local restaurant, waving their gin and supercharging the air about my wife and small son and daughter with vile oaths and obscenities.

We have the further advantage of being within only a few minutes' run of Asbury Park, where only three days ago an aged bank messenger was shot through the heart in broad daylight, and the killers escaped with the payroll—a typically American street thrill which we never have the opportunity of witnessing abroad. Less recently some of the godly among our local hundred-per-centers gave semi-public thanks when an estimable young lady was fired from her teaching job in our local school. So far as I could learn the chief fault of the young lady was that she attended no local Protestant church. Worse, it was learned just in time that her mother was a Roman Catholic. We are not the sort down here who will risk our children in the hands of people like that.

ALSO within the week we have had at least one good, old-fashioned United States burglary—also at Asbury Park—with the gentleman sticking up a lady with a revolver at midnight and escaping with the loot. He and the murderers of the bank messenger got safely away, and we have turned our attention again to our Rotary meetings, to searching unsuccessfully for car parking spaces, to progress and pep. We had just got over the shock of the arrest of the young son of a neighboring professional man and three of the lad's companions. In a playful spirit the boys had burned one residence and several barns to the ground when a nearby high school held a dance. Off we scampered to see parents and friends carry three of the boys and one of the girls out of the high school feet first, dead drunk.

I wanted to see my good and efficient friend, George Legg, our local Chief of Police, four nights ago, but at the moment he was raiding a residence half a mile down the hill. He haled before Justice of the Peace Stan Nichols 18 youths and girls after the raid, one of them a nurse in a Trenton hospital, and all of them boiling drunk, another thrill we miss in Europe. Let me hasten to tell prospective buyers of our house, however, that they and their boys and girls can still find many excellent speakeasies up and down the coast. With my house also goes the whispered address of a beautifully-equipped gambling place and two swagger ginmills, each boasting of busy mahogany bars worthy of the Knickerbocker Hotel's Forty-second Street Country Club, Shanley's or Jack's in the great days.

A lady who lives near me, a "cultured" lady, expressed surprise the other day when I told her that the Duke of Wellington was an Irishman. It was difficult for her to believe, she added, that there was such a thing as an Irish aristocrat; she thought all Irishmen were saloon keepers, I believe, and their daughters all servant girls. Our town also has the usual assortment of American children who have learned from their parents that all Italians are wop ditch diggers, all Hungarians day-laborer hunkies, all the French a race of funny, bibbling chefs who are highly immoral, and all Germans terrible.

In brief, our community, you see, is just a good, old-fashioned, semi-rural, typically hundred-per cent American community. It is no better and no worse than the thousands of similar towns and villages which abound in America as the result of a depraving philosophy of crass materialism, the political grip of the Methodist Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Public Blah, hypocrisy, crooked thinking, ignorant scoundrels in high office, unbelievable bigotry, appalling provincialism, national swelled-headedness, rainbow-chasing "progress," lax criminal procedure, insane legislation, a fanatical philosophy of Puritanism that stifles all gentle living and beauty—all that always happens when a highly organized, intolerant church rules the state.

I have been asked by a number of persons to elaborate a bit on the reasons I gave in an interview with the ships' news reporters recently regarding my intention to live permanently hereafter in Europe.

To give all the reasons would, I fear, fill a newspaper page. No red-blooded American wants to hear them anyway; we have given so many years to convincing ourselves, and to teaching our children, that intolerance is a positive and patriotic virtue that we resent all adverse criticism, even when founded on undeniable facts.

IN the last few days indignant letter writers—none of them, not one, had the guts to sign his or her name—have cluttered my mails with scurrilous blasts, the gist of their reproof being the highly intelligent retort: "If you don't like this country, get out." But I already had beaten you to that, fellow citizens. I did not say to the reporters that I despised America. I do think that, potentially, it is the greatest Nation the world has known. Just so long, however, as it continues to run along in its present state of hypocrisy, stupid materialism, bigotry, neuroticism, vulgarity, church-ridden legislation and criminal depravity I don't want to live and I don't want my family to live here. Therefore, we shall get out.

I stepped ashore into a Manhattan sweltering under a wilting humidity unknown in Europe. If I remain here during the winter I shall suffer, no doubt, from a vicious, damp cold that I can also escape abroad.

My anonymous letter-writing friends seem to think, as might be expected, that I want to live in Europe to get drunk. I freely admit that during many years of my newspaper life on Broadway I was a masterful, gifted, I might say a superb drinker. I still could master my old technic, I suppose, but recently my doctor strapped me high on the water wagon and forever. My daily eye-opener now is merely a small hypodermic shot of insulin. Besides, one gets drunk much more easily here than in wine and beer-drinking countries.

Throughout an entire season among the gayeties of the Riviera I saw only two Frenchmen slightly tipsy. Both were workmen singing their way homeward on a Saturday night. With the exception of a year and a month, I have lived continuously and variously in France, Switzerland, England and Italy since 1925. I have seen American trippers drunk on Montmartre and in London. I have seen a few Swiss holiday makers somewhat keyed up with wine. There were times in the past in Europe when I joined the American trippers in getting alcoholically primed. But with the exception of three or four Swiss picnickers

NEW YORK.

IF FRANK WARD O'MALLEY would care to trade his house in the New Jersey Applejack Belt for my charming villa on a point overlooking the beautiful and historic Bay of Toulon in the heart of the Provencal Bouillabaisse Belt, the deal can be arranged. I want to come back to America and live here forever.

My house is a remodeled bastide containing every known convenience in pipes and wires. With it go a tennis court, a swimming pool, a $9000 motor car, and a number of other such knicknacks. All around about is a clump of pine trees bearing the name of "The Sacred Wood," and beyond the trees, along the quiet roads, come and go goodhumored peasants with the mistral in their faces and with folk songs on their lips.

The little tile-roofed cottages in the property which adjoins mine are powder magazines, and in the bowels of the hill upon which my house is situated are tanks containing 60,000 liters of oil for the battleships. Airplanes swoop and sputter overhead, the guns on the cruisers belch and roar at dawn, at noon and at sunset, and a powerful searchlight 50 meters away plays into my bedroom windows during anti-aircraft practice of an evening. Forts line the shores of the bay and crown the summits of the handsome mountains behind Toulon.

Just beneath the window of my studio (which Mr. O'Malley would use as his workroom) is the house of the guardian of the fort in which, during the siege of Toulon, Napoleon Bonaparte first distinguished himself. The guardian has three small children, a wife and two dogs. The dogs leave off barking at 5 in the morning, when they are relieved by the children and the wife sing'ng folk songs or hits of the Parisian music halls of the "Valencia" epoch. The guardian himself neither barks nor sings. He stands against the storied walls of the fort—which make an excellent sounding-board—and bawls at his family in hair-curling, Old World vulgarisms to shut their filthy traps and give him peace.

It is all very quaint and picturesque.

MY town, La Seyne-sur-Mer, is just a good, old-fashioned, semi-rural, typically 100 per cent European community. Its youth gets drunk only on fete days and pay nights and never burns down schoolhouses merely for the fun of the thing. If there existed in La Seyne-sur-Mer any such colossal imbecility as a prohibition law, its youth would undoubtedly get itself quite as magnificently and as frequently boiled as do the youth and the Senators of New Jersey, for revolt against interference with his private affairs is in the nature of man, whatever his nationality. The present-day Scofflaws of France confine themselves to evading the income tax, but I refer Mr. O'Malley to what the French did in 1789 when stupid officialdom interfered with their bread supply. As for the wanton burning down of school houses: the very human and universal urge which prompts it is satisfied in the breast of European youth at least once in every generation by the burning down of whole countries full of school houses and the wholesale slaughter of all schoolmasters and scholars.

A few kilometers from my house is another property, also for sale. It belongs to a man of my trade—a caricaturist. He has had a long and brilliant career and is internationally known. There is no house on his property, no tennis court, no swimming pool, no $9000 motor car. He is a native of a country in which art is appreciated—but not paid for. Princes are proud to have him at their tables. Dukes boast of knowing him personally, the Third Republic has made him an Officer of the Legion of Honor—and he has never, during the 40 years of his career, earned more than $5000 per year. When I think of him and of his great genius, I blush for my own earnings.

Mr. O'Malley and I both speak in an offhand way of our motor cars and our houses. I am fortunate enough to know practically all of the great writers, artists and musicians in Western Europe. Those of them who own motor cars or houses earned them in America. Those who have never been in America, or whose works do not sell here, earn, with hardly a single exception, barely enough to live on, or are frankly kept by rich patrons. My money and that of Mr. O'Malley, the motor-owning artists of Europe, come from the uncultured American people. It strikes me that this is an evidence of appreciation and I am inclined to doubt the complete barbarity of a people which spends so much on us.

On the other side of the Burgundy wine country lies Paris—unquestionably the most civilized city on earth. It was in Paris that I performed the Noble Experiment into which Mr. O'Malley is just launching himself. I have lived there for the past several years, not as a tourist, or even as a foreigner, but as a Frenchman. It was in Paris that I learned the things which Mr. O'Malley is about to learn. It was there that I discovered the awful secret that what I had objected to, and what Mr. O'Malley objects to, in Americans is merely what we object to in Man. I was trying, as he is trying, to run away from the half-absurd, half-vicious nature of the beast, and I forgot, as he is forgetting, that we must find it wherever we go, for we carry it with us, being, as we are, men ourselves.

I cannot remember when living in France was not the dream of my life. And, like Mr. O'Malley, the more I loved France the more America annoyed me. The Congress in Washington, for example, had the power of making me snort with indignation and revolt, while I could no more have been annoyed with the Chambre des Deputes than a devout Christian could work up a blasphemous feeling against Buddha. The thorn in the other fellow's side hurt me not at all—until I went over and begged to be allowed to jab it in my own side. Now, I am a member in good standing of the Scofflaws of France. I have beefed and bellowed and evaded taxes with the best of them. I have felt the same contempt for a Depute with his mouth open that I feel for a Representative with the same affliction. Villainies and stupidities have fallen from both their mouths which affected me and my little mine.

MR. O'MALLEY'S case against America is all too obviously correct and just. Ignorance and swinishness are encouraged here, and civilized individuals are harassed and bullied by the barbarous majority as they are harassed and bullied in no other country. But civilized individuals exist here, as well as in Europe. A gentleman is a man who holds his liquor and talks sense, and there are very nearly as many specimens of the species to the square mile in Manhattan as in Paris, London, Berlin or Vienna.

If one is obliged to step over three or four prostrate drunks and elbow aside a fool or two in order to commune with a gentleman in Manhattan, it is still a little better than being ushered into his home by a polite and well-trained servant abroad, for each man is at his best in his own country.

The expatriate is faced with a choice of two modes of living, neither of which is thoroughly satisfactory. He may settle as a foreigner or he may cut all ties and enter into the life of the country of his adoption as a native. The first choice is evidently stupid. The American who lives as an American in Europe is completely cut off from the European civilization he had gone there to enjoy, or, at best, he

ELOPED

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

RICHLAND, Louisiana.

LOUISE STROTHER, who at the age of 17 has more than $2,500,000 waiting in trust for her, eloped from her guardian's big house on his plantation here the other day, with Felix Bunch, a boy of 20 working as a share cropper in the cotton fields, as an attendant at a filling station, or at any neighborhood odd job that came his way. When they caught the train for Bastrop, not far away, where they were married, Louise was wearing the latest thing in autumn frocks. She carried nothing with her. But Felix did. Felix had extra clothing—the boy who was running away with an heiress had his things packed in a suitcase he had just purchased for $1.25.

Louise Strother was not always a rich girl. She once lived in a St. Louis children's home.

She was the youngest of four children. Her father was a zinc miner. Louise, her two sisters and her brother lived with their parents at Alba, in Jasper County, Missouri. The father was killed in a mine cave-in. And their mother, unable to support them, asked for aid. The mother died a few years ago.

Louise's oldest sister was adopted by a family in Springfield, Missouri. Her other sister was adopted by people who then lived in Memphis. Louise and her brother were cared for by the Missouri Children's Home Society. The boy, Leon Warren, went to a farmer who later moved to Nebraska.

Louise was five years old when she was adopted. Her adopter was O. D. Strother, a St. Louisan who moved to Seminole, Oklahoma. Strother was with a St. Louis wholesale shoe house. He became interested in oil in the Oklahoma field. When he died, in March, 1926, his estate was estimated at $300,000. Later developments multiplied it until it now is considered worth more than $5,000,000. Under Strother's will, it was divided equally between Louise and a blood daughter of Strother's.

AFTER Strother's death, Louise went to live with Strother's sister, Mrs. H. P. Warden, and her husband, who is the girl's guardian. She is not to come into her money until she is 30. The Wardens live here in Richland, on a large plantation.

The Wardens set out to give her many advantages. They traveled with her to many interesting places in America. They took her to Europe, also, Africa. And they sent her to private schools for young women.

What Riches and Romance Have Made of the Short but Not so Simple Annals of Louise Strother.

Louise Strother Bunch.

Felix Bunch, the bridegroom.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

RICHLAND, Louisiana.

LOUISE STROTHER, who at the age of 17 has more than $2,500,000 waiting in trust for her, eloped from her guardian's big house on his plantation here the other day, with Felix Bunch, a boy of 20 working as a share cropper in the cotton fields, as an attendant at a filling station, or at any neighborhood odd job that came his way. When they caught the train for Bastrop, not far away, where they were married, Louise was wearing the latest thing in autumn frocks. She carried nothing with her. But Felix did. Felix had extra clothing—the boy who was running away with an heiress had his things packed in a suitcase he had just purchased for $1.25.

Louise Strother was not always a rich girl. She once lived in a St. Louis children's home.

She was the youngest of four children. Her father was a lead miner. Louise, her two sisters and her brother lived with their parents at Galena, in Jasper County, Missouri. The father was killed in a mine cave-in. And their mother, unable to support them, asked for aid. The mother died a few years ago.

Louise's oldest sister was adopted by a family in Springfield, Missouri. Her younger sister was adopted by people who then lived in Memphis. Louise and her brother were cared for by the Missouri Children's Home Society. The boy, Leon Warren, went to a farmer who later moved to Nebraska.

Louise was five years old when she was adopted. Her adopter was O. D. Strother, a St. Louisan who moved to Seminole, Oklahoma. Strother was with a St. Louis wholesale shoe house. He became interested in oil in the Oklahoma field. When he died, in March, 1926, his estate was estimated at $300,000. Later developments multiplied it until it now is considered worth more than $5,000,000. Under Strother's will, it was divided equally between Louise and a blood daughter of Strother's.

Leon Warren, Louise's brother.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Warden, Louise's guardians.

AFTER Strother's death, Louise went to live with Strother's sister, Mrs. H. P. Warden, and her husband, who is the girl's guardian. She is not to come into her money until she is 30. The Wardens live here in Richland, on a large plantation.

The Wardens set out to give her many advantages. They traveled with her to many interesting places in America. They took her to Europe, Asia, Africa. And they sent her to private schools for young women.

While Louise was partaking of these advantages, her brother, Leon, two years older than she, was shining shoes in the village barber shop at Alliance, Nebraska.

Early this year Louise and Leon learned of each other's whereabouts. Leon had written a letter to the head of the Missouri Children's Home Society. The boy told how he wished to go to college in the autumn, how he expected to earn his way, and he asked if the superintendent could aid him. He also wanted to know what had become of his sisters.

"I am now 18," he wrote, in part, "and am finishing high school this year and I want to go to college next fall if arrangements can be made. Of course, I will have to work my way through, with little or no assistance from Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs (his foster parents), although I know they will help me if they can. . . .

"As to my family, I feel that I am old enough to hear from them." . . .

The superintendent dug into the records. And he found the record of Louise. Through the offices of the superintendent, Leon and Louise heard of each other. And Louise's guardian wrote the boy: "It may be that I can be of service in assisting you in securing the college education which is your worthy desire."

During the past school year Louise attended Ward-Belmont College at Nashville, Tennessee. Her monthly pin-money allowance would have been a good salary for her husband. When Louise was in Richland she lived in the "big house" on the plantation. Her future husband lived in a small dwelling with his mother, his step-father, and his two half-sisters, back in the pine forest five miles away.

While Louise lived a pleasant, leisurely life, the boy she was to wed was engaged in farming on shares with his stepfather, or working for his grandfather at the latter's filling station, a mile and a half from Louise's guardian's home.

Louise Strother and Felix Bunch met at a meeting of the Baptist Young People's Union at the Richland Baptist Church. That was three years ago. These church meetings were the only social contacts of the two young people. Just how long ago it was that Louise and Felix Bunch discovered they were in love with each other no one seems to know.

But about two weeks before their elopement Felix "laid by" his cotton crop and went to work for his grandfather at the filling station not far from the Warden plantation. This enabled the two to meet more easily. About 10 days before the actual elopement the active plans for the runaway began to develop.

It was on the Saturday morning of the elopement that Mrs. Warden and Louise visited the town of Delhi, a few miles away, on a shopping trip. Now, it was Louise's custom to ask Mrs. Warden for pin money. She usually took $10 at a time. But on this day Louise asked her chaperone for $25. Mrs. Warden had only $15 handy, for, while she had been in Delhi, she had put all the money she didn't need into the bank there.

After Mrs. Warden and Louise had returned to Richland Louise asked for permission to return to Delhi that afternoon with another girl. They wanted, she said, to attend the picture show. There was nothing unusual about this request and Mrs. Warden gave her consent.

At about 2:30 o'clock Louise and Florence Oakes, her friend, and Louise's Negro maid started for Delhi in Louise's roadster. Louise parked the car several blocks from the theater, they all got out and the maid accompanied the girls to the theater door, where she left them to follow her own pursuits until the show was over and they were ready to leave.

Louise and Florence went into the theater. And some time after that Louise made her getaway. Just when is not definitely known. For Florence says she did not notice her departure. Florence was so engrossed with the film, she explains, that she was unaware Louise had left the darkened hall until the show was over.

Florence, on discovering her companion was missing, was not concerned. She fancied Louise would be waiting for her outside the theater. And when she got outside she found Louise's maid. But no Louise! Thinking Louise was waiting for them in the car, they walked to where the machine was parked. The car was gone. Perhaps Louise had gone for a spin, they thought; they would wait there for her. But Louise did not return.

AFTER a time Mr. Warden chanced to drive by. He enquired about Louise, and when they told him they were waiting for her he suggested she might have driven to the garage to have some repair work done. So he invited Florence and the maid to get into his car, and they drove home.

But Louise did not return. The Wardens, of course, became concerned. And then came a telegram, saying: "Don't worry. I have a husband and I'm happy."

Warden, thinking the pair were headed for St. Louis, hurried there. Mrs. Warden had found a letter from Felix to Louise revealing their plans to go to St. Louis. But after he had arrived he heard that the elopers were at Bastrop, Louisiana. There they had obtained a marriage license and there they had been married by a Justice of the Peace. And there they were spending their honeymoon. They didn't go any further, it seems, because of lack of funds. It was the belief of Bunch's relatives that he had less than $15 when he started out on the venture.

"From this letter which the boy wrote to Louise I am confident she planned the elopement," Mrs. Warden told the writer.

"Neither Mr. Warden nor I even dreamed of Louise's affection for this boy. There are many theories I could advance for her action. Perhaps we over-indulged her with travel and education, and she was in search of a new thrill. Perhaps she saw too many movies whose themes treated of the intimate things of life, or perhaps I did not give her enough work to occupy her. She never arose before 9 o'clock in the morning and she had nothing to do for the remainder of the day.

"She had no interest in sports. Reading held no fascination for her. In fact, her chief diversions are driving her automobile and conversing with people. She is an incessant talker.

"The child is one of the most nonchalant persons I have ever known," Mrs. Warden continued. "Then she read a passage from Bunch's letter to Louise, which Mrs. Warden had discovered: "'I just accept life as it is and go rolling along,'" read Mrs. Warden.

"That," she said, "is typical of Louise. They are two of a kind."

All of Felix's immediate family were aware of the impending nuptials. Coates, his stepfather, and the youth's mother had given him advice. They had warned him that Warden would probably try to annul the wedding, or at least would be very angry. Coates told him that if he was determined to marry the girl not to take her too far away, warning him Warden might try to have Bunch arrested on a kidnaping charge.

"When Louise told Felix that her guardian intended sending her to a convent he immediately decided on an elopement; that was the clinching argument," Bunch's mother declared.

But Mrs. Warden flatly denies that any plans were under way to send Louise to a convent.

MRS. COATES said she had never seen her new daughter-in-law. She looked at a picture of Louise, which the writer had, examined it carefully, and returned it without comment. Bunch's two half-sisters also examined the picture.

These two little girls had come home from their work of picking cotton in a nearby field. Much of the fleecy stuff remains in the fields of Coates and Bunch. Whether Felix will return to gather his share of the crop remains to be seen.

Mr. Warden, Louise's guardian, says he is ready to forgive her. "Had I been able to prevent the marriage," he says, "I would have done so. But now that they are married I am satisfied to let things be as they are. Bunch is a decent, respectable young man. His family is poor. He is well thought of in Richland Parish. I would rather have Louise married to him than be open to the attentions of fortune hunters, who would try to marry her for her money."

ON STRIKE

By

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

THIS Is One of a Series of Prize Stories, by Celebrated American Authors, Which Is Being Published in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

There stood Najib, in the center of the firelit circle.

"FURTHERMORE, howadji," ventured Najib, who had not spoken for fully half an hour, but had been poring over a sheaf of shipment items scribbled in Arabic, "furthermore, I am yearnful to know who was the unhappy person the wicked general threatened. Or, of a perhaps, it was that poor general himself who was bethreatened by his padishah or by the—"

"What on earth are you babbling about, Najib?' absent-mindedly asked Logan Kirby, as he looked up from a month-old New York paper which had arrived by muleteer that day and which the American had been reading.

Now, roused from his persual by Najib's query, Logan saw that the little Syrian had ceased wrestling with the shipment items and was peering over his employer's shoulder, his beady eyes fixed in keen curiosity on the page.

"I enseeched you to tell me, howadji," said Najib, "who has been threatening that poor general. Or, perchancely, who has been made to cower himself underneath of that fierce general's threatenings. See, it is there, howadji."

Following the guidance of Najib's stubby finger, Kirby read the indicated headline:

General Strike Threatened.

"Oh!" he answered, choking back a grin. "I see. There isn't any 'general,' Najib. And he isn't threatened. It means—"

Kirby's attempt at self-control went to pieces. He guffawed. Najib eyed him sourly; then said in icy reproof:

"It is known to all, howadji, that Sidi-ben-Hassan, the sheikh, was the wisest of men. And did not Sidi-ben-Hassan make known, in his book, that 'Laughter is for women and for hyenas?' Furthermore—"

"I'm sorry I laughed at you, Najib," returned Kirby, with due penitence. "I don't wonder you got such an idea, from the headline. You see, I have read the story that goes under it. It's like this: We'll say a gang of men aren't satisfied with the pay or the hours they are getting. They asked for more money or for shorter hours; or for both. If the demand is refused, they stop working. They won't go back to their jobs till they get the cash and the hours they want. That is known as 'going on strike.' When a number of concerns are involved in it, it's called 'a general strike.' This paper says a general strike is threatened. That means—"

"I apperceive it, howadji!" exclaimed Najib. "I am onward to it, now. I might have known the printed page cannot lie. But, oh, my heart berends itself when I think of the sad fate of those poor folk who do the striking! Of an assuredly, Allah hath deprived them of wisdom!"

"NOT necessarily," argued Kirby, wondering at his henchman's outburst of sympathy for union laborers so many thousand miles away. "They may win, you know; or, at least, get a compromise. And their unions will support them while they are out of work. Of course, they may lose. And then—"

"But when they make refusal to do their work," urged Najib, "will not the soldiers of the pasha cut them to ribbons with the kourbash and give them back to their toil?"

"Hold on!" exhorted Kirby; albeit despairing of opening the mind of a man whose forbears for thousands of years had lived in a land where the corvee—forced labor—was a hallowed institution; and where the money of employers could always enlist the aid of government soldiery to keep the fellaheen at their tasks. "Hold on! That sort of thing is dead and done with. Even in the East. If a man doesn't want to work he can't be forced to. All his boss can do is to fire him and try to get someone in his place. When a whole factory of men strike—especially if there are any big contract orders to fill in a rush—the employers sometimes find it cheaper to give them what they want than to call in untrained strikebreakers. On the other hand, sometimes, the boss can bring the men to terms. It all depends."

Now, Logan Kirby knew the tangled Syrian character and its myriad queer slants, as well as it can be given to a white man to know it. Kirby's father had been a missionary, at Nablous. He himself had been born there and had spent his boyhood at the mission. That was why—after he had completed his engineering course at Columbia's school of mines and had served an apprenticeship in Colorado and Arizona—the Cabell Smelting Company of New York had sent him out to the land of Moab as manager of its newly-acquired little antimony mine.

THE mine—a mere prospect shaft—was worked by about thirty fellaheen—native laborers—supervised by a native guard of twelve Turkish soldiers. Small as was the plant, it was a rich property and it was piling up dividends for the Cabells. Antimony, in the East, is used in a score of ways—from its employment in the form of kohl, for the darkening of women's eyes, to the chemical by-products, always in demand by Syrian apothecaries.

Kirby's personal factotum, as well as superintendent of the mine, was this squat little Syrian, Najib, who had once spent two blissfully useless years with an All Nations Show at Coney Island, and who there had picked up a language which he proudly believed to be English; and which he spoke exclusively when talking with the manager.

Kirby's rare knowledge of the East had enabled the mine to escape ruin a score of times where a manager less conversant with Oriental ways must have blundered into some fatal error in the handling of his men or in dealing with the local authorities.

Remember, please, that in the East it is the seemingly insignificant things which bring disaster to the feringhee, or foreigner. For example, many an American or European has met unavenged death because he did not realize that he was heaping vile affront upon his Bedouin host by eating with his left hand.

Many a foreign manager of labor has lost instant and complete control over his fellaheen by deigning to wash his own shirt in the nearby river or for brushing the dirt from his own clothes. Thereby he has proved himself a laborer, instead of a master of men.

YES, Kirby had been invaluable to his employers by virtue of his inborn knowledge of Syrian ways. Yet, now, he was not enough of an Oriental to understand why his lecture on the strike system should thrill his listener.

He did not pause to realize that the idea of strikes was one which carries a true appeal to the Eastern imagination.

It has all the elements of revenge, of coercion, of trapping, of wily give-and-take and of simple and logical gambling uncertainty which characterize the most popular of the Arabian Nights yarns and which have made those tales remain as Syrian classics for more than ten centuries.

"It is of an assuredly a pleasing and noble plan," applauded Najib when Kirby finished the divers ramifications of his discourse. "If the stroking ones may not be lawfully attackled by the pashalik troops, indeed must the general—"

Presently, in his absorption in his work, the American forgot the whole incident. It was the beginning of a rush period at the mine—the busiest month in its history was just setting in. The Alexandretta-bound shipment of the morrow was but the first of twelve big shipments scheduled for the next twenty-nine days.

The restoration of peace and the shutting out of several Central European rivals had thrown an unprecedented sheaf of rush orders on the Cabell mine.

It was a big chance, as Kirby had explained at some length to Najib, during the past few weeks. At his behest, the little superintendent had used every known method to get extra work and extra speed out of the fellaheen; and, by judicious baksheesh, had even impressed to the toil several members of the haughty Turkish guard and certain folk from the nearest hill village.

As a result, the first shipment was ready for the muleteers to carry coastward a full week ahead of schedule time.

The work was progressing finely. Kirby thrilled at the thought. And he was just a little ashamed of his recent impatience at Najib, when he remembered how the superintendent was pushing the relays of consignments along. After all, he mused, it was no reflection on Najib's intelligence that the poor little chap could not grasp the whole involved Occidental strike system in one hasty lecture; and that his simple mind clung to the delusion that there was some fierce general involved in it.

BUT, soon after dusk, Kirby had reason to know that his words had not fallen on barren soil. At the close of the working day, Najib had brought the manager the usual diurnal report from the mine. Now, after supper, Kirby, glancing over the report again, found a gap or two in the details. This was no novelty, the Syrian mind not lending itself readily to the compilation of terse yet complete reports. And occasionally Kirby was obliged to summon his henchman to correct or amend the day's tally sheet.

Wherefore, the list in his hand, the American strolled down from his own knoll-top tent toward Najib's quarters. As Najib was superintendent, and thus technically an official, Kirby could make such domiciliary visits without loss of prestige.

Just outside the radius of the fellaheen's firelight Kirby paused. For he heard Najib's shrill voice uplifted in speech. And amusedly he halted and prepared to turn back. He had no wish to break in upon a harangue so interesting as the speaker seemed to find this one. Najib's voice was pitched far above the tones of normal Eastern conversation—louder and more excited even than that of a professional story teller.

YET at a stray word of Najib's, Kirby checked involuntarily his own retreat; and paused again to look back. There stood Najib, in the center of the firelit circle; hands and head in wild motion. Around him, spellbound, squatted the ring of his dark-faced and unwashed hearers. The superintendent, being with his own people, was orating in pure Arabic—or, rather, in the colloquial vernacular which is as close to pure Arabic as one can expect to hear, except among the remoter Bedouins.

"Thus it is!" he was declaiming. "Even as I have sought to show you, oh, addle-witted offspring of mangy camels and one-eyed mules! In that far country, when men are dissatisfied with their wage, they take counsel together and they say, one unto the other: 'Lo, we shall labor no more unless our hire be greater and our toil hours less.' Then go they to their sheikh or whomever he be who hath hired them, and they say to him: 'Oh, favored of Allah, behold we must have such and such wage and such and such hours of labor!' Then doth their sheikh cast ashes upon his beard and rend his garments. For doth he not know his fate is upon him and that his breath is in his nostrils? Yet will they not listen to his prayers, but at once they make 'strike.'

"Then doth their sheikh betake himself to the pasha with his grievance; beseeching the pasha, with many rich gifts, that he will throw those strike-making laborers into prison and scourge their kinsmen with the kourbash. But the pasha makest answer, with tears: 'Lo, I am helpless! What saith the law? It saith that a man may strike at will; and that his employer must pay what is demanded!' "

And Kirby waited to hear no more. With a groan of disgust at the orator's imbecility, he went back up the hill to his own tent.

Stretching himself out lazily in his long chair, Kirby exhumed from a shirt pocket his disreputable brier pipe, and filled and lighted it. The big white Syrian stars glinted down on him from a black velvet sky. Among the nearer peaks and hollows of the Moab Mountains, the knots of prowling jackals kept up a running chorus of yapping—a discordant chant punctuated now and then by the far-away howl of a hunting wolf; or by the choking "laugh" of a hyena in the valley below, who thus gave forth the news of some especially delicious bit of carrion discovered among the rocks.

And Kirby was reminded of Najib's quoted dictum that "laughter is for women and hyenas."

The Syrian had been his comrade in many a vicissitude. And he knew that Najib's fondness for him was as sincere as can be that of any Oriental for a foreigner, an affection based not wholly on self-interest. Kirby enjoyed his evening powwows with the superintendent beside the campfire; and the little man's amazing faculty for mangling the English tongue.

HE RATHER missed Najib's presence tonight. But he was not to miss it for long. Just as he was about to knock out his pipe and go to bed the native came pattering up the slope on excitedly rapid feet and squatted as usual on the ground beside the American's lounging chair. In Najib's manner there was a scarce-repressed jubilant thrill. His beady eyes shone wildly.

"Well?" queried Kirby in no especial excitement. "I've been here all evening, while you've stayed below there, trying to increase those fellaheen's stock of ignorance. What's the idea?"

"Oh, I prythee you, do not let my awayness beget your goat, howadji!" pleaded Najib, ever sensitive to any hint of reproof from his master. "I am the bearer of grand tidings. If I had not of been where I have been this evening—and doing what I have done—there would not be any tidings at all."

"Go ahead," adjured Kirby, humoring the wistful eagerness of the man. "What's the news you have for me?"

"TO SPEAK with a briefness, howadji," he proclaimed grandiloquently, "We have all stroked ourselfs!"

"For the love of heaven," exclaimed Kirby in sudden loss of patience. "What are you driving at? What do you mean about 'stroking yourselves?' Say it in Arabic. Then perhaps I can find what you mean."

"It is not to be said in the Arabic, howadji," returned Najib, wincing at this slur on his English. "For there is not such a thing in the Arabic as to make strike. We make strike. This I say it we 'stroke ourselves.' If it is the wrong way for saying it—"

"Strike?" repeated Kirby, perplexed. "What do you mean? Are you still thinking about what I told you today? If you are going—"

"I have bethought of it, howadji, ever since," was the reply. "And it is because of my much bethoughting that I found my splenderous plan. That is my tidings. I bethought it all out with tremense clearness and wiseness. Then I told those others down yonder. At first they were of a stupidity. But at last I made them understand. And they rejoiced of it. So it is all settled most sweetly. You may not fear that they will not stand by it. As soon as that was made sure I came to you to tell—"

"Najib!" groaned Kirby, his head awhirl. "Will you stop chewing chunks of indigestible language and tell me what you are jabbering about? What was it you thought over? And what is 'all settled?' What will—"

"The strike, of an assuredly," explained Najib, as if in pity of his chief's denseness. "Tonight we make strike. All of us. That is one tiding. And you, too, make strike with us. That is the other tiding. Tomorrow we all sleep late. No work to be made. And so it shall be on each dear and nice and happy day, until Cabell Effendi—he, his sons an hundred and his wives true!—shall pay us the money we ask and make short our hours of toil. Then—"

KIRBY sought to speak. But his breath was gone. He only gobbled. Taking the wordless sound for a token of high approval, Najib hastened on, more glibly, with his program.

"On the tomorrow's morning, howadji," he said, "we enseech that you will write a sorrowsome letter to Cabell Effendi, in the Broad street of New York, and say to him that all of us have made strike and that we shall work no more until we have from his hands a writing that our payment shall be two mejidie for every mejidie we have been capturing from his company. Also and likewise that we shall work but half time. And that you, howadji, are to receive even as we; save only that your wage is to be enswollen to three times over that what it is now. Furthermore, howadji, tell him, I prythee you, that we—"

A veritable yell from Kirby broke in on the smug instructions. The American had recovered enough of his breath to expend a lungful of it in one profane bellow. In a flash he visualized the whole scene at the fellaheen quarters—Najib's crazy explanation of the strike system and the supposed immunity from punishment that would follow outrage and other violence; the fellaheen's duller brains grasping on the idea until it had become as much a part of their ruciliaginous mentality as the Koran itself; and Najib's friendly decision that Kirby might share in the golden benefits of the new scheme.

Najib smiled up at him as might a dog that has just performed some pretty new trick for a child who has brought it a father a gift. But the aspect of Kirby's distorted face there in the dying firelight shocked the Syrian into a grunt of terror. Then, scrabbling to his feet, he spoke quaveringly:

"Tame yourself, howadji, I enseech you! Why are you not joiceful? Will it not mean much money for you; and—"

"LISTEN to me!" ordered Kirby, fighting hard for self-control and forcing himself to speak with unnatural slowness. "You've done more damage than if you had dynamited the whole mine and then turned a river into the shaft. This kind of news spreads. In a week there won't be a worker east of the Jordan who won't be a strike fan. And these people here will work the idea a step farther. I know them. They'll decide that if one strike is good, two strikes are better. And they will strike every week—loafing between times."

This prospect brought a grin of pure bliss to Najib's swarthy face. He looked in new admiration upon his far-sighted chief.

Then, taking new hold on self-control, Kirby began again to talk. As if addressing a defective child, which, as a matter of fact, he was doing, he expounded the hideous situation.

He explained the disloyalty of the Cabells of such a move as Najib had planned. He pointed out the pride he and Najib had taken in the new business that had secured from the home office and the fact that this new business had brought an increase of pay to them both as well as to the fellaheen. He showed how great a triumph for the mine was the vast increase of business; and the stark necessity of impressing new customers with the promptitude and uniform excellence of shipments. He pointed out the utter collapse to this and to all the rest of the mine's connection which a strike would entail.

Najib listened to this with interest, but with no great concentration.

EVEN Kirby's declaration that the ridiculous scheme would be a failure, and that the government would assuredly punish any disturbance to the Cabell property, did not serve to impress him. Najib was a Syrian. An idea, once firmly rooted in his mind, was loath to let itself be torn thence by mere words. Kirby waxed desperate.

"You have wrecked this whole thing!" he stormed. "You gave idiotically wrong slant on what I told you about strikes today; and you have ruined us all. Even if you should go down there to the quarters this minute and tell the men that you were mistaken—that the strike is off—you know they wouldn't believe you. And you know they would go on strike ahead with the thing. That's the Oriental of it. They'd refuse to go on working. And our shipments wouldn't be delivered. None of the ore for the next six months would be mined. The men would just hang about, peacefully waiting for the double pay and half-time that you've promised them."

"But soon Cabell Effendi will reply to your letter," went on Najib. "And then the double pay ing—"

"To my letter!" mocked the raging Kirby.

Then he paused, a sudden inspiration smiting him.

"Najib," he continued after a minute of concentrated thought, "you have sense enough to know one thing: You have sense enough to know you people can't get extra pay till I write to Mr. Cabell and demand it for you. There is not another one of you who can write English. There's no

low. In a flash he visualized the whole scene at the fellaheen's quarters—Najib's crazy explanation of the strike system and of the supposed immunity from punishment that would follow sabotage and other violence; the fellaheen's duller brains gradually seizing on the idea until it had become as much a part of their malleable mentality as the Koran itself; and Najib's friendly desire that Kirby might share in the golden benefits of the new scheme.

Najib smiled up at him as might a dog that has just performed some pretty new trick, or a child who has brought to its father a gift. But the aspect of Kirby's distorted face there in the dying firelight shocked the Syrian into a grunt of terror. Scrambling to his feet, he sputtered quaveringly:

EVEN Kirby's declaration that the ridiculous strike would be a failure, as that the government would assuredly punish any damage to the Cabell property, did not serve to impress him. Najib was a Syrian. An idea, once firmly rooted in his mind, was loath to let itself be torn thence by mere words. Kirby waxed desperate.

"You have wrecked this whole thing!" he stormed. "You got an idiotically wrong slant on what I told you about strikes today; as you have ruined us all. Even if you should go down there to the quarters this minute and tell the men that you were mistaken and that the strike is off—you know they wouldn't believe you. And you know they would go straight ahead with the thing. That's the Oriental of it. They'd refuse to go on working. And our shipments wouldn't be delivered. None of the ore for the next shipments would be mined. The men would just hang about, peacefully waiting for the double pay and the half-time that you've promised them."

"But soon Cabell Effendi will reply to your letter," went on Najib. "And then the double pay ing—"

"To my letter!" mocked the raging Kirby.

Then he paused, a sudden inspiration smiting him.

"Najib," he continued after a minute of concentrated thought, "you have sense enough to know one thing: You have sense enough to know you people can't get the extra pay till I write to Mr. Cabell and demand it for you. There is not another one of you who can write English. There's no lucky if, on non-receipt of their demanded increase, they did not follow Najib's muddled preachments to the point of sabotage.

The more he thought of it the less possible did it seem to Kirby that Najib could undo the damage he had so blithely done. Ordering the blubbering little fellow out of the tent and refusing to speak or listen further, Kirby went to bed.

Oddly enough, he slept. Only once in the night was he aroused. Perhaps two hours before dawn he started up at the sound of an humble scratching at the open door flap of his tent. On the threshold cowered Najib.

"Furthermore, howadji," came the Syrian's woe-begone voice through the gloom, "could I borrow me a book if I shall use it with much carefulness?"

Too drowsy to heed the absurdity of such a plea at such an hour, Kirby grumbled a surly assent, and dozed again as he heard Najib rumbling in the dark, among the shelves of the packing-box bookcase in a far corner of the tent. Here were stored nearly a hundred old volumes which had once been a part of the missionary library belonging to Kirby's father at Nablous.

KIRBY awoke at grayest daylight. Through force of habit he woke at this hour; in spite of the workless day which he knew confronted him. It was his custom to get up and take his bath in the rain cistern at this time, and to finish dressing just as the men piled out for the morning's work.

Yet now the first sounds that smote his ears as he opened his eyes were the rhythmic creak of the mine windlass and the equally rhythmic, if less tuneful, chant of the men who were working it:

"All-ah sa-edd!—Ne-bi sa-eed! Ohe! Sa-eed! Sa-eed! Sa-eed!"

In the distance, dying away, he heard the plodding hoofs of a string of pack mules. From the direction of the mine came the hoodlum racket which betokens, in Syria, the efforts of a number of honest laborers to perform their daily tasks in an efficient and orderly way.

Kirby, in sleep amaze, looked at his watch in the dim dawn light. He saw it was still a full half-hour before the men were due to begin work. And by the sounds he judged that the day's labor was evidently well under way. Yes, and today there was to have been no work done!

Kirby jumped out of bed and strode dazedly to his tent door. At the mine below him his fellaheen were as busy as so many dirty and gaudy bees.

EVEN the lordly lazy Turkish soldiers were lending a hand at windlass and crane. Over the nick of the pass, leading toward Jerusalem, the last animal of a mule train was vanishing. Najib, who had as usual escorted the departing shipment of ore to the opening in the pass, was trotting back toward camp.

At sight of Kirby in the tent door the little superintendent veered from his course toward the mine and increased his pace to a run as he bore down upon the American. Najib's swart face was aglow. But his eyes were those of a man who has neglected to sleep. His cheeks still bore flecks of the dust he had thrown on his head when Kirby had explained the wreck of his scheme and of his future. There, in all likelihood, the dust smears would remain until the next rain should wash them off. But, beyond these tokens of recent mental strife, Najib's visage shone like a full moon that is streaked by dun dust clouds.

"Furthermore, howadji!" he hailed his chief as soon as he was within earshot, "the shipment for Alexandretta is on its wayward—over than an hour earlier than it was due to bestart itself. And those poor hell-selected fellaheen are betoiling themselves grand. Have I done well, oh howadji?"

"Najib!" stammered Kirby, still dazed.

"AND here is that most sweet book of great worthiness and wit which I borrowed me of you in the night, howadji," pursued Najib, taking from the soiled folds of his abieh a large, old volume, bound in stout leather, after the manner of religious or scientific books of a half-century ago. On the brown back a scratched gold lettering proclaimed the grewsome title:

"Martyrs of Ancient and Modern Error."

Well did Kirby know the tome. Hundreds of times, as a child, had he sat on the stone floor of his father's cell-like mission study at Nablous, and had pored in shuddering fascination over its highly-colored illustrations. The book was a compilation—chiefly in the form of multichrome pictures with accompanying borders of text—of all the grisly scenes of martyrdom which the publishers had been able to scrape together from such classics as "Fox's Book of Martyrs" and the like. Twice this past year he had surprised Najib scanning the grewsome pages in frank delight.

"I betook the book to their campfire, howadji, and I smote upon my breast and I bewept me and I wailed aloud and I would not make comfort. Till at last they all awoken and they came out of their huts and they reviled me for disturbing them as they slept themselfs so happily. Then I spake much to them. And all the time I teared with my eyes and moaned aloudly."

"But," put in Kirby, "I don't see what this"——

"In a presently you shall, howadji. Yesterday I begot your goat. Today I shall make you to frisk with peacefulness of heart. Those fellaheen cannot read. They are not of an education, as I am. And they know my wiseness in reading. For over than a trillion times I have told them. And they believe. Pictures also they believe. Just as men of an education believe the printed word; knowing full it could not be printed if it were not Allah's own truth. Well, these folk believe a picture, if it be in a book. So I showed them pictures. And I read the law which was beneath the pictures. They heard me read. And they saw the pictures with their own eyesight. So what could they do but believe? And they did. Behold, howadji!"

Opening the volume with respectful care, Najib thumbed the yellowing pages. Presently he paused at a picture which represented in glaring detail a stricken battlefield strewn with dead and dying Orientals of vivid costume. In the middle distance a regiment of prisoners was being slaughtered in singularly bloodthirsty fashion. The caption, above the cut, read:

"Destruction of Sennacherib's Assyrian Hosts, by the People of Israel."

"WHILE yet they gazed joyingly on this noble picture," remarked Najib, "I read to them the words of the law about it. I read aloudly, thus: 'This shall be the way of punishing all folk who make the strike hereafter this date.' Then," continued Najib, "I showed to them another pretty and splendid picture. See: "Martyrdom of John Rogers, His Wife and Their Nine Children."

"And," proclaimed Najib, "of this sweet portrait I read thus the law: 'So shall the wifes and offsprungs of all strike-makers be put to death; and those wicked strike-makers themselfs along with them.' By the time I had shown them six or fifteen of such pictures and read them the law for each of them, those miserable fellaheen and guards were beweeping themselfs harder and louder and sadder than I had seemed to. Why, howadji, it was with a difficultness that I kept them from running away and enhiding themselfs in the mountains, lest the soldiers of the Pasha come upon them at once and punish them for trying to make strike! But I said I would intercede with you to make you merciful of heart toward them, to spare them and not to tell the law what they had so sinsomely planned to do. I said I would do this, for mine own sake as well as for theirs, and that I knew I could wake you to pity. But I said it would perchancely soften your heart toward them if all should work harder to atone themselfs for the sin they had beplotted. Wherefore, howadji, they would consent to sleep no more; but they ran henceforthly and at once to the mine. They have been onto the job ever since. And, howadji, they are jobbing harder than ever I have seen them bejob themselfs. Am I forgiven, howadji?" he finished timidly.

"FORGIVEN!" yelled Kirby, when he could speak. "Why, you eternal little liar, you're a genius! My hat is off to you! This ought to be worth a fifty-mejidie bonus. And"——

"Instead of the bonus, howadji," ventured Najib, scared at his own audacity, yet seeking to take full advantage of this moment of expansiveness, "could I have this pleasing book as a baksheesh gift?"

"Take it!" vouchsafed Kirby. "The thing gives me bad dreams. Take it!"

"May the houris make soft your bed in the paradise of the Prophet!" jabbered Najib, in a frenzy of gratitude, as he hugged the treasured gift to his breast. "And—and, howadji, there be more pictures I did not show. They will be of a nice convenience, if ever again it be needsome to make a new law for the mine."

"But"——

"Oh, happy and pretty decent hour!" chortled the little man, petting his beloved volume as if it were a loved child and executing a shuffling and improvised stepdance of unalloyed rapture. "This book has been donationed to me because I was brave enough to request for it while yet your heart was warm at me, howadji. It is even as your sainted feringhee proverb says: 'Never put off till tomorrow the—the—man who may be done today!' "

They will even hear the unmoral, hard-drinking, loose-living American woman praised for her courage, her chic and for the brilliance of her mind. They will, except in the houses of some of the diehards whose titles date from the Second Empire and therefore must be borne with greater care, be offered a cocktail, in spite of the fact that it spoils the palate for the wines.

And if those Americans be men like Mr. O'Malley and myself, who have work to do for the American public, they will find it necessary to repeat to themselves between each course:

afraid to bring my two children through their coming 'teens in a so-called prohibition land. Along the northern coast of Lake Geneva, where they have been attending school in recent years, there is a great State university, a magnificent public school system in every city and town and more private schools for boys and girls—118 private schools in and immediately around the small city of Lausanne itself—than can be found anywhere else on earth. In the late afternoons the streets are crowded with scholars of hip-flask age. They crowd the tables of tea shops, with shelves of gins, whiskys and cordials just above their heads. Wine shops and beer gardens abound—there is a wine shop and garden next door to the main building of my own boy's French-Swiss school.

A large proportion of the students in this greatest of preparatory school regions are American youths and misses—blood brothers and sisters of the hip-flask scamps here at home. Head masters of the schools there tell me that the hip flask is unknown.

I personally know of only one lad who drank too much, a stalwart of 19. He was an American lad who had arrived a tippler. He was promptly shipped home.

IN Europe my children receive classroom instruction quite as thoroughly as the best America has to offer, far better than our average public or private schools can give. Their training abroad gives them other advantages impossible to obtain in American schools, the advantage of learning languages with that perfection of idiom and pronunciation that is possible only in the country where the language is the native tongue; the association with the better-bred, better-trained children of Europe; the mingling with playmates from all European countries, from India, Australia, South America, and the consequent correction of that deplorably ignorant notion that all American children and most of their parents entertain about "foreigners, frogs and wops."

It is impossible to be a prohibitionist and a gentleman; the instant one insists upon jamming one's private, purely personal likes and dislikes and one's private notions of ethics down the throats of his guests and neighbors one ceases to be civilized, a gentleman. A nation that places purely material progress, money-grabbing and vulgar display above straight thinking and the cultural beauties of living is not civilized. I want to raise my boy and girl and end my days amid the oldest and loveliest of Occidental civilizations, the most civilized continent on earth.

The vacillations and worse of our Hoovers, the insanities of our National and State legislators, the antics of our Cannons, Willebrandts and their kind, the bigotries of American Catholics, American Protestants and our unclassed "reformers"—all this big stock company of comedians capering across the American stage puts on an amusing, magnificent show. But one is soon fed up even with laughter when it is constant.

Europe minds its own business so far as one's private life is concerned. America is positively gifted at minding everybody else's business, even to sending abroad more snooping, proselyting, meddlesome missionaries than all the rest of the world combined. Personally, I have spent too many years studying architecture, drawing and painting, too many years a professional artist in New York, too many years in the study and practice of writing, to be even slightly interested in the swinish "ideals" of our nationally-deified he-go-getters and our blue-nosed clerics and legislators. Together they have dragged to the gutter, down to their own moron level, the decencies and the beauties of the lovely art of real living. I have had enough of them.

The fact that America never has produced a painter, poet, novelist, sculptor, essayist, orator, musician, playwright, historian, scientist or philosopher of the first class is no one's fault. We are too young and crude still for glories like these. But we never shall have them, never, so long as successful money grubbing remains our highest ideal.

EUROPE has produced all the mental giants of our civilization, and the untold wealth of their works and thoughts still remains on lavish display there, all the way southward from the wonders of England's ancient cathedrals and universities down to the last sands of the great glory that is Italy. No blue-nosed bounder in a clerical collar regulates your enjoyment of the glorious gorgeousness. You work hard or play hard as you wish, always surrounded by peaceful friends and neighbors, thousands of them self-exiled Americans, who have mastered the very real art of living.

I shall leave behind me a country with a criminal record that leaves a more civilized continent aghast. I have had my fill of the laughs and the groans that I have got from the funny ladies of the W. C. T. U., from a nation-wide defiance of constitutional laws, strict observance of the law concerning the exact date upon which our straw hats must be discarded and similar physical and mental standardizations, the tap dancing of Bishop Cannon, anti-evolution laws, book and play censors, subway jamming that Europe would not inflict upon its cattle, moron movie stars, John Roach Stratons, our depressing succession of mediocre Presidents of the United States, sloppy, slurring, slangy speech, monkey-house strivings, Mr. Edison's "thoughts" on education and life, night-club jazz, insane hurry over nothing, elbow jabbings, architectural monstrosities, professional sports and the great national pastime of keeping up with the Joneses. I can have a chauffeur, a cook and a chambermaid for about the same amount that one incompetent cook costs here. I can do more work in a week in Europe than I can do in a month in America. So I shall leave you with your troubles, pack the old kit bag and smile, smile, smile.

and it was postponed until 1912. Expenses were mounting and Loud was sent back to Illinois to find work during the interim. On July 2, 1912, while he was preparing to rejoin the crew, a trial flight was made and the Akron exploded, killing his two brothers-in-law and Bottscher, the navigator.

No reason could be assigned for the disaster. An electrical spark, generated by the machinery or by friction, was sufficient to ignite the explosive hydrogen.

"My aerial day is long past," Loud said. "When I was married a few years after the Akron accident, one of the stipulations was that I shouldn't associate myself with any more airship ventures."

Loud's sister, Melvin Vaniman's widow, makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. Loud and their two sons, in a white colonial house not far from sylvan Washington Park. As for Wellman himself, his gradual decline in prestige and material means until he sank into complete obscurity was the tragedy of his life rather than his failure to reach the North Pole or cross the Atlantic. The last that Loud heard of Wellman was in 1926, when he was put in jail for contempt of court in New York, the action arising out of Wellman's inability to pay a debt of $250. Wellman's puzzles still appear in the New York Daily News and the Chicago Tribune.

PROSPECTS for FOREST RILLS

The Flora and Fauna of the Tennis Court.

P. G. Wodehouse.

WHEN I received a letter from the editor asking me to write a crisp, chatty article on the form of the more generally fancied contestants for the Lawn Tennis Championships at Forest Rills, I confess I was a little puzzled. I should have thought myself that its tennis was scarcely of a caliber to excite nation-wide interest, but editors know what they are doing. If the public wishes to know all about Forest Rills tennis, it simply shows—well, I cannot at the moment think just what it does show, but it obviously has a significance of some sort.

Tennis at Forest Rills is confined mostly to the residents. It is among the native sons, then, that we must seek for the winners of the handsome pewter cups so generously presented by Mr. Forest, the promoter of the Forest Rills development.

The singles, at least in the general consensus of Forest Rills opinion, lies this year between four men. I allude to George Murgatroyd, Arthur ("Grandpop") Binns, Archibald Twirling and John Jasper Jones—the last-named our courteous and popular undertaker.

IT WAS early in June that George Winstanley Murgatroyd made his initial appearance on the tennis court. A graduate of Harvard University, he had been engaged by Mr. Forest to act as tutor to his son, Oscar, a charming but somewhat backward boy; and it is not too much to say that he caused a veritable sensation. No such magnificent vision had ever been seen before in the Forest Rills arena. About George's shoulders there hung the prismatic sweater of his old college, loosely draped over the throat and blending subtly with the green, orange and purple blazer of a dining club to which he had belonged when at the university. He had a lovely tan, and on his snowy trousers and gleaming shoes there was no spot or blemish.

For some days it seemed as though no opposition could live against George Murgatroyd. Nothing like his first serve, the fast one, had ever been seen at Forest Rills. It astounded all beholders, dismayed all adversaries. And then, little by little, critics arose to point out that this serve, superb though it was in conception and magnificent as a mere spectacle, had never yet succeeded in getting over the net.

It was a serve that relied entirely on moral suasion. Leaping some feet into the air, George would hurl the ball to the clouds, strike it with hideous violence and return to earth with a loud grunt. And his pallid opponent, cowering on the other side of the net, was invariably so unnerved by the performance that he nearly always failed to return the second serve, which was of a milder nature and more semicircular, reminiscent rather of the gentle rain after a thunderstorm.

But now, as I say, criticism has done its deadly work. His antagonists of late have been plucking up heart. They cower as before, but rally more swiftly, and recently the second serve has generally been killed. Nevertheless, there always remains the possibility of something practical developing from that first terrific slash, and it is still felt that George Murgatroyd is a man to be reckoned with. He has the Law of Averages on his side. In the ten years that have passed since he first took up the game he has never yet got that first serve over the net. It may—nay, must—happen soon, and who knows but that it will happen during our annual tournament?

We come next to J. Arthur Binns, a player of a very different order. "Grandpop," as he is called affectionately — and at a safe distance — by the younger set, is a man of mature years. Nobody, in fact, knows exactly how old he is.

His years tell both for and against him. They have, of necessity, diminished the boyish sprightliness of his nonage, but, on the other hand, they have given him a wonderful steadiness and poise. He is not a remorseless machine like Archibald Twirling (with whom I shall deal presently) but nothing upsets him. He serves underhand, and has once been known to volley — in June of the year 1910. His principal asset is his extraordinary knowledge of the ground. And in Forest Rills tournaments, to have a familiarity with the terrain is half the battle.

The tennis court at Forest Rills adjoins the Sea View Hotel, and in his capacity of proprietor of that establishment it falls to Grandpop Binns to look after it and prepare it for the annual championships.

No one, therefore, knows better than he the exact position of the many bumps and hollows which punctuate the smoothness of its surface. A man who knows the topography of the arena as well as does Arthur Binns must have more than a sporting chance of victory. Indeed, I, personally, would rank him a shade higher than the third player on my list, his friendly rival, Archibald Twirling.

It is an interesting and a pitiful sight to see Archibald Twirling when a crisis arrives.

Archibald Twirling is a man of method. I have called him a remorseless machine, and that is what he is. In this restless age, it is rarely that we find a man who takes one definite line and sticks to it. Archibald Twirling is one of the exceptions. A builder by profession, he builds nothing but bungalows, and each Twirling bungalow is precisely the same as every other Twirling bungalow, even down to the horseshoe nailed over the front door. And so with his tennis. Right from the beginning, Archibald Twirling made up his mind how he proposed to play tennis, and he has never deviated from his chosen course.

It is Archibald's custom to stand at the back of the court and lob. If his adversary smashes, Archibald lobs. If he tries placing, Archibald still lobs. The longer the game goes on, the higher he lobs, until his antagonist, losing patience or, it may be, forgetting during the long wait for the ball to descend that he is engaged in a game of tennis, omits to return the stroke. Then Archibald shifts his chewing gum from left to right, or vice versa, calls out the score in a rather melancholy voice, and goes on lobbing.

But Achilles had his heel, and so has Archibald Twirling. For a while, Archibald's progress was one of unalloyed triumph. All the best and bravest fell before him. And then one day some shrewd student of the game discovered that he was physically and mentally unable to deal with a backhand stroke, and now his rivals play seduloulsy on that fatal weakness.

It is an interesting and a pitiful sight to see Archibald Twirling when a crisis arrives which can only be met by a judicious application of the backhand. There was a time when he would dive at the ball and try to lob it in the constrained attitude which had been forced upon him. But, after lobbing perhaps a hundred balls into the sea, directly at right angles to the spot where they should have gone, a frozen calm, a sort of dull resignation, seemed to descend on the unhappy man. He has now decided to treat such crises as inevitable. There is something of the defeatist Russian philosophy in his attitude, a kind of crushed refusal to battle with Fate. Today, when a ball comes at his backhand, Archibald just stands and looks at it sadly, in his eye something of that mild reproach which a hat-check boy bestows on a client who tips him with an aspirin tablet.

We now come to the last name on the list, and it is the name of a dangerous man. There is, indeed, a strong school of thought in the village, whose members refuse to bet of anybody but John Jasper Jones as the next Forest Rills champion. I happen to know that down at the Fisherman and Mackerel odds are being offered on his success which would stun the public.

THIS Jones has practically everything. As regards service, he is undoubtedly the superior of any of the other entrants. True, he lacks George Murgatroyd's cavalier-like dash and fire, but, on the other hand, he has frequently been known to get his first serve over the net and on several occasions to place the ball in the right section of his opponent's territory. He does not slash at the ball like George, preferring to throw it a few inches in front of him and then give a sort of stabbing lunge at it. No one who has not played at Forest Rills can understand the moral effect of a first serve that gets over the net. One might almost say that it is etiquette not to return it.

In addition to this, he is, if given plenty of time, a master of the backhand. I speak a little loosely, perhaps. To be perfectly accurate, John Jasper Jones has never brought off a backhand shot in his life, and never expects to. But, Nature having made him ambidextrous, he has found a way of meeting the situation. When Archibald Twirling merely stands and sighs, John Jasper Jones acts. If the ball comes to the left, he rapidly shifts the racquet to the other hand, and, before his startled adversary can brace himself to cope with this new development, the sphere is on its way back over the net. I have seen strong men positively paralyzed by the manœuver.

NOTE: I find on re-reading the editor's letter that it was the Forest Hills, not the Forest Rills, lawn tennis championships with which he wished me to deal; and, strictly speaking, I suppose I ought to write this article all over again. I am informed, however, that by the time these lines are in print, this other meeting will have been concluded; so I will leave things as they stand, merely mentioning that the date of the Forest Rills tournament is September 20, and that any of my readers who care to be present will be assured of a warm welcome.

New Skin Beauty in Five Minutes—It's as Simple as Washing Your Face

Sallow, Dingy Skin made Lovely—Coarse Pores become Fine—It corrects oily skin, heals eruptions and dissolves blackheads

This easy, quick way to new skin beauty is called the most amazing beauty miracle of modern science. Women are astonished! You will not believe it until you see other women suddenly get lovely complexions.

Think of it! You can have a clear, lovely skin tonight. Any woman over twenty-five looks at least five years younger in five minutes! Dull, off-color skin is changed to bright, true-color; enlarged pores are refined to the smoothest, finest texture; oily skin is corrected; blackheads are dissolved; persistent skin eruptions are banished and the tell-tale signs of age vanish as if by magic! Poor complexions become lovely as if skin faults were wiped away with a sponge. You will marvel at the lovely face you see in your mirror tonight.

Instant Skin Beauty

It's no fairy wand that gives a new skin so quickly. It's simply due to the amazing, rejuvenating properties of cremed milk of magnesia, which rehabilitates the skin in the same easy way that plain milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And, now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with cremed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face!

Accidental Discovery

Until recently, cremed magnesia was the secret formula of a very successful New York skin specialist. He prescribed it as a sure, quick remedy to heal unsightly skin eruptions. But, women soon discovered it also refines enlarged pores, changes sallow, off-color skin to true-color clearness and makes the face look years younger. They also found it removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than any soap or cleansing cream. Scientific tests proved these women had found a quick, easy way to new skin beauty. So, thanks to this accidental discovery, science now offers you a

They also found it removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than any soap or cleansing cream. Scientific tests proved these women had found a quick, easy way to new skin beauty. So, thanks to this accidental discovery, science now offers you a priceless skin beautifier, better for your complexion than anything ever before discovered. It takes the place of soap, cleansing cream, massage cream, astringent, skin tonic and rejuvenator. It gives the skin a radiant clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons.

Doctors Recommend It

It is so mild that doctors tell mothers to use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing to fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Being greaseless, it cannot fatten the face or grow hair.

Thousands of doctors now insist that their wives, patients and nurses use nothing but cremed magnesia on their faces. They say it keeps fine skin fine and makes poor skin lovely. It is pure enough to drink.

Don't Hesitate

Do not hesitate to use this marvelous skin treatment at once. Thousands of delighted women have written they could not at first believe anything so simple could be so wonderful. But, they were convinced when they saw so many friends suddenly get lovely complexions. Because it gives such amazing results so quickly, even the largest druggists find it hard to keep enough in stock to supply the tremendous demand.

To get genuine cremed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. Remember, five minutes works wonders. So, get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It costs almost nothing to try.

GUARANTEE

It's impossible for Denton's Facial Magnesia not to improve your complexion. But, should it fail to delight you, even after the very first application, your druggist is requested to refund your money at once without question.

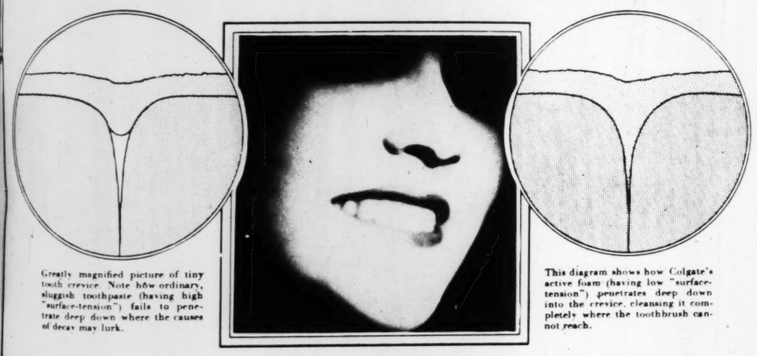
DANGER LURKS in Half-Clean Teeth!



Greatly magnified picture of tiny tooth crevice. Note how ordinary, sluggish toothpaste (having high "surface-tension") fails to penetrate deep down where the causes of decay may lurk.

This diagram shows how Colgate's active foam (having low "surface-tension") penetrates deep down into the crevice, cleansing it completely where the toothbrush cannot reach.

Mere surface brushing is not sufficient protection . . . Decay starts when tiny crevices are left uncleansed . . . Colgate's penetrating foam gets down into these hard-to-reach places . . . removes decaying particles . . . cleans teeth* completely.

Your dentist will tell you that decay doesn't start on the smooth, outer surfaces of your teeth, but in the tiny crevices where food particles collect. These places must be kept clean!

Your dentist will also tell you that not all toothpastes clean alike. A recent scientific test proved that Colgate's has the highest penetrating power of any leading dentifrice. Its penetrating foam surges down into every tiny fissure, dislodging impurities and sweeping them away in a detergent wave. Thus Colgate's gives an extra protection to teeth and gums . . . the protection of complete cleanliness. Why risk "half-clean" teeth?

No toothpaste can cure pyorrhea; no toothpaste can correct acid saliva; no toothpaste can firm the gums. That is your dentist's job. The one thing a toothpaste should do is to clean . . . and Colgate's cleans the best!

Prisoners of an artificial civilization! . . . Must you, too, spend the sunny, health-giving hours in cave-like office or factory, in sunless school or home? . . . Read how science has captured the health power of the sun itself in a famous food!

Every year hundreds of American doctors study under Dr. Paul Gerber, of Vienna, famous specialist in internal medicine. He is a member of the Academy of Medicine of Austria. He says, "The discovery of vitamin D, the 'sunshine' vitamin, and its recent production by irradiating fresh yeast, should be a boon to millions who are indoors most of the day."

for

"Sunlight-Starved" men, women and children

The NEW Fleischmann's Yeast with the "sunshine" vitamin

STARVED! for lack of sunshine. Weak-bodied, flabby—"soft". Bones under-developed. Teeth a prey to decay.

Such is the fearful price we pay for the sunless lives we lead. . .

A brilliant American scientist set out to find a substitute for the health energy of the sun.

He calls his discovery "irradiation". When fresh yeast, for example, has been exposed to certain powerful rays like those from the sun, it acts on the human system exactly the same as the ultra-violet rays of the sun itself! . .

"Irradiated" by a unique, patented process, the new Fleischmann's Yeast is by far the richest food source of the precious "sunshine" vitamin, the health principle of sunlight. Our laboratories estimate that three cakes are equivalent to a whole day in the summer sun!

Most people, especially those of growing age (under 25), need the "sunshine" vitamin now in Fleischmann's Yeast. Without it, your system cannot absorb enough lime and phosphorus—elements necessary to bones, teeth and muscles. With it, bones and teeth grow straight and strong. Your body is harder, tougher.

The expectant or nursing mother needs the "sunshine" vitamin to help her assimilate the bone and tooth-hardening elements from her food. It fortifies the unborn or nursing child against rickets (soft, crooked bones and teeth).

Eat Fleischmann's fresh Yeast, as before, to keep your intestinal tract active, clean—to purify your whole system. This is the easy, natural way to banish constipation and kindred ills—indigestion, bad skin, headaches, "nerves".

And now—eat it because every cake brings you the hardening, ultra-violet energy of the sun itself! Eat 3 cakes daily, before or between meals; plain or in water, cold or as hot as is pleasant to drink. Buy 2 or 3 days' supply. At grocers, restaurants and soda fountains, in the familiar foil package with the yellow label. It is as effective as ever for baking.

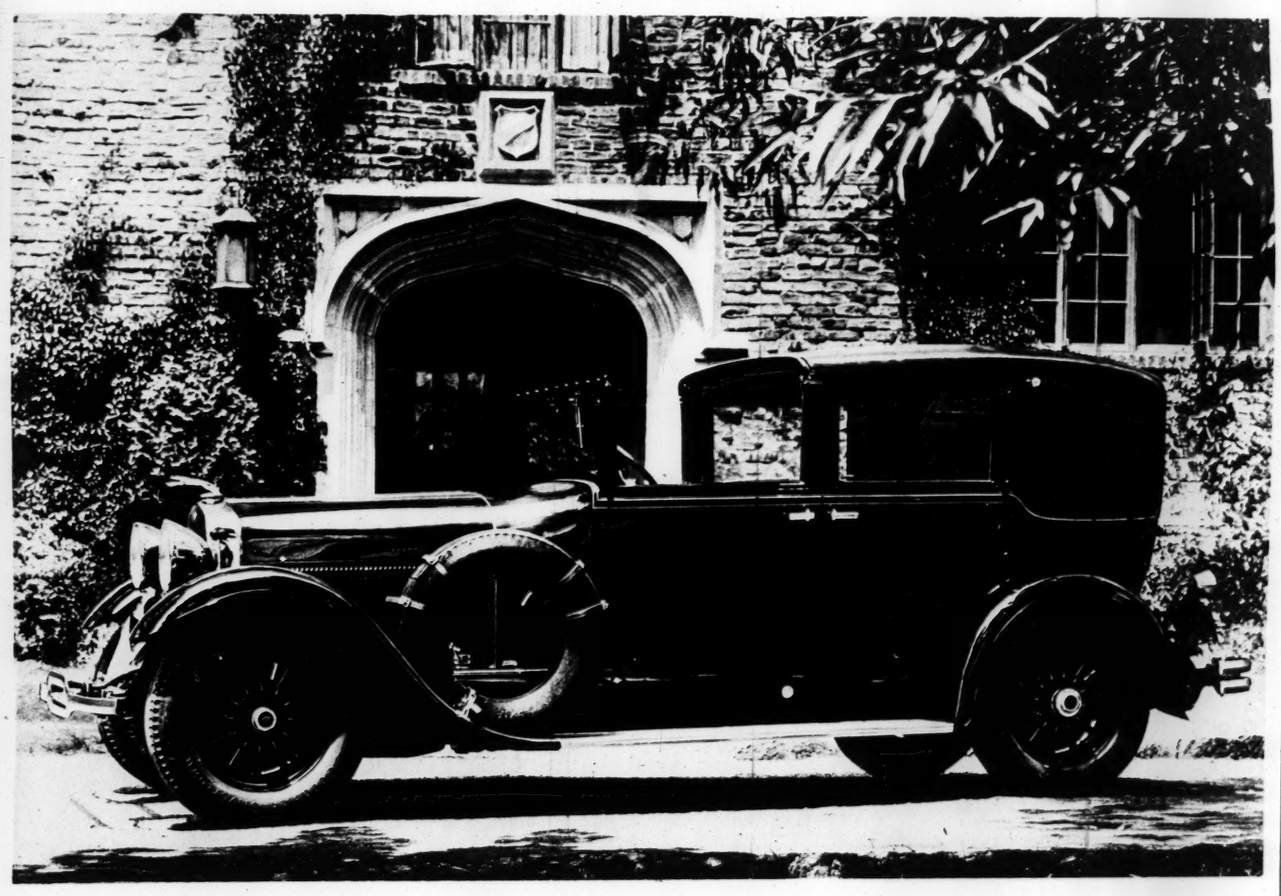
THE LINCOLN KEEPS FRESH THE ENTHUSIASM OF THOSE WHO KNOW IT BEST



The Brunn all-weather semi-collapsible Cabriolet is an ideal chauffeur-driven car for town and social uses

UNDOUBTEDLY a special relationship exists between the Lincoln owner and his car.

One senses this in his attitude toward everything that goes with motoring. He has a confidence in his car that extends to every detail of motor, chassis, and body. Style and safety, endurance and comfort and speed—he finds, day after day and year after year, in his Lincoln. And he believes—with the conviction that comes with experience—that the motor car he drives is as fine an automobile as his money could buy.

It is natural that the Lincoln should inspire this feeling in those who know it best. Its quiet beauty, its smooth power and its enduring strength are the results of the sincerity and intelligence with which it is made. Precision operations that range in delicacy to one-fifteenth of a hair's breadth are rigidly maintained in the making of its separate parts and in the assembly of the car, as a whole. No higher quality of basic materials or engineering skill could go into an automobile.

Because many thousands of miles of service matter little to such a car, Lincoln owners remain Lincoln enthusiasts. Years of familiarity increase their appreciation of the Lincoln's well-balanced excellence. Its unfailing performance is more and more impressive. The enduring style of its custom coachwork becomes fully evident. . . . And as they continue to drive it, this motor car assumes a satisfying and personal value that has been growing from the first day of their ownership.

STOCKS MOVE HIGHER BUT PACE SLOWER

Bearish Operations Generally Unsuccessful and Before Close Shorts Are Driven to Cover.

CALL MONEY RENEWAL RATE 7 1-2 PER CENT

Wide Assortment of Leading Issues Close 3 More Points Higher — High-Priced 10 to 20.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Stock market took a pronounced turn for the better today. Bear operations were generally unsuccessful and before the close shorts were driven to cover, as the general list moved substantially higher. The pace of trading slackened considerably particularly on the dines, and the day's turnover was but approximately 4,000,000 shares.

Money 7½ Per Cent.

The 7½ per cent charge for money renewals marked the first time a fractional rate had been posted on carryovers since April 23 last. It was true banks were desirous, if possible of getting away from full charges. Money was firm throughout the day at the renewal charge, due chiefly to the drawing down of banks of between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 presumably for adjustment of reserve balances. Despite there was little or no disturbance even on the surface. The day's heavy shifting of funds incident to treasury operations and tax payments.

Considerable nervousness was apparent earlier in the day, when the leaders, such as United States Steel and American Telephone, lost a couple of points or more. In afternoon bulls gained control of the price movement, many losses were canceled, and a wide assortment of leading issues closed 3 points higher, and a number of high-priced shares, 10 to more than 20 points.

The fact that selling appeared to dry up on declines was attributed to forced operators for the account that the distress liquidation of last week was largely completed. It was felt that this had strengthened the general technical position since commission houses were inclined to make selected buying recommendations, but still advised a cautious position and caution until trends become more definite.
